PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION.

When I undertook the preparation of this second edition of my Maithili Grammar, my intention was to do little more than to arrange a corrected reprint of the first edition published in 1881. I soon found that the necessary corrections were so heavy and so important that the whole work had to be recast. It has, in fact, been rewritten.

When the first edition was prepared, the only specimens of literary Maithili available were those then in my possession, and subsequently published in my Maithili Chrestomathy. Since then more literary materials have been discovered and have been made available to students. These have all been carefully worked through by me, and, as a result, I have been able to give in the present edition of the Grammar a fairly complete set of examples of the manner in which the various forms are employed. The examples are not absolutely complete, for I have rigidly confined myself to passages taken from actually existing literature. With the exception of a few reproduced from the first edition, not a single example has been made up for the purpose of illustration.

The second edition has been prepared in England, and I have not had the advantage of further native assistance; but, on the other hand, I have fully utilized my notes which have been accumulating during the past twenty-five years. As compared with the former edition, the book represents a quarter of a century's progress in the study of an interesting and by no means easy dialect.

INTRODUCTION.

In submitting the following somewhat full grammar of the Maithili dialect to the Asiatic Society of Bengal, I wish to explain the sources of my information.

They may be divided into two classes—

1st—Forms obtained by translating into Maithili.

2nd—Forms obtained by translating from Maithili.

The first I obtained as follows: I printed paradigms of all the forms in Hindi and Sanskrit Grammar and circulated them as widely as possible amongst the paṇḍits, village school masters, and educated native gentlemen of Northern Mithilā, with directions to give the exact translation of each of these forms in their own native language.

I was enabled, in this way, to collect some fifty most useful books of forms, supplied by representatives of all classes of society, from the village guru, who knew little more than the herd-boys he taught, to the most learned paṇḍits of Mithilā. I am glad to say that the utmost interest was taken in my design, for the people are proud of their language and were pleased at the idea of its being made a polite one by obtaining the honour of print. These books of paradigms formed the basis of this grammar. They were compared with each other; and where one was found wanting, another supplied the deficiency. At the same time, it must not be imagined that they showed many mutual discrepancies: on the contrary, considering the many varied sources from which they were derived, their unanimity was wonderful and justifies me in hoping that what I here publish will be found fairly accurate.

With regard to the forms obtained by translating from Maithili, they were obtained in various ways. In cutcherry I collected myself a large number of words from the mouths of the witnesses who came in from a distance. These I found very useful in checking the books of forms above referred to. I also collected a number of country songs, which afforded invaluable materials when properly sifted.

From these two sources, aided by the practical knowledge possessed by myself and one or two native friends, the following grammar has been compiled. I wish I could believe that it is thoroughly accurate; all I can say is that we have done our best to make it as accurate as possible.

The above was what I said about the first edition. During the twenty-five years which have since elapsed, I have had frequent opportunities of checking my statements on the spot, and, when necessary, of correcting them. A large mass of notes on the language has also accumulated, and the results of all these have been incorporated in the present edition.

The Chrestomathy, published in Part II of the first edition, contained all the Maithili literature then known to me. Its most important contents were the Song of Salhēs, the Song of the Famine, a collection of poems attributed to Vidyāpati Thakkura, and another of poems by Harṣa Nātha. Since then the following Maithili works have been published: Twenty-one Vaiṣṇava Hymns, Manbōdh's Haribans, the Gīt Dinā Bhadrīk and the Gīt Nebārak, all edited by the present writer. An excellent Rāmāyaṇa and a translation into Maithili of Vidyāpati's Sanskrit Puruṣa Parikṣā have also been composed by Paṇḍit Chandra Jhā, and have been printed and published in Darbhanga. All these have been carefully worked through by me, and have furnished innumerable examples of the various forms given in the grammar.

Maithili is one of the three dialects,—Maithili, Magahi, and Bhojpuri—of the Bihāri language. Roughly speaking, we may say that Maithili occupies North Bihār, east of the river Gaṇḍak, although towards the east it has crossed the Ganges and is spoken in parts of South Bihār. Magahi occupies South Bihār, east of the Sōn, and the northern of the two plateaux of Chota Nagpur. Bhojpuri occupies the southern plateau of Chota Nagpur and the country north and south of the Ganges as far west as, say, Benares. Maithili and Magahi are much more closely related to each other than either is to Bhojpuri. Indeed, the last named might almost be called a separate language. The approximate number of the speakers of each, each in its own habitat, are:—

Maithili	10,000,000
Magahi	6,240,000
Bhojpuri	20,000,000
Total				36,240,000

Besides these there are speakers of the various Bihārī dialects scattered all over Northern India and even in the Deccan.

Turning more specially to Maithili, the standard form of the language is that spoken in the Madhubani subdivision of the Darbhanga district, and in the adjoining portion of the district of Bhagalpur. It is this form which is described in the present grammar. The other forms of the dialect are described in the present writer's Seven Grammars quoted below.

The following account of the Maithili dialect, as a whole, is taken from the Vol. V² of the Linguistic Survey of India :—

Maithili or Tir^ahutiyā is, properly speaking, the language of Mithilā or Tairabhukṭi (the ancient name of Tirhut). According to the Mithilā-māhātmya, a Sanskrit work of considerable repute in the territory which it describes, Mithilā is the country bounded on the north by the Himālaya, on the south by the Ganges, on the west by the river Gandak, and on the east by the river Kosi. It thus includes the British districts of Champaran, Muzaffarpur and Darbhanga, as well as the strip of the Nepal Tarai, which runs between these districts and the lower ranges of the Himālaya. The districts of Muzaffarpur and Darbhanga originally formed one district called Tirhut, and that name is still used as a convenient appellation for the country included in these two districts. At the present day, the language of the greater portion of Champaran is a form of Bhojpuri and not Maithili, but, with that exception, Maithili is spoken over the whole of this tract. It has also extended east of the river Kosi, and occupies the greater part of the district of Purnea. It has moreover crossed the Ganges, and is now spoken over the whole of the South-Gangetic portion of the Bhagalpur District, over the eastern portion of the South-Gangetic portion of the Monghyr District, and in the north and west of the Sonthal Parganas.

Maithili is spoken in its greatest purity by the Brāhmaṇas of the north of the Darbhanga and Bhagalpur districts, and by those of western Purnea. These men have a literature and traditions that retarded the corruption of the dialect. It is also spoken with some purity, but with more signs of the wearing away of inflexions, in the south of the Darbhanga District, and in those portions of the Monghyr and Bhagalpur Districts which lie on the northern bank of the Ganges. This may be called Southern Standard Maithili. To the east, in Purnea, it becomes more and more infected with Bengali, till, in the east of that District it is superseded by the Siripuriā dialect of that language which is a border form of speech, Bengali in the main, but containing expressions borrowed from Maithili, and written, not in the Bengali character, but in the Kaithī of Bihār. The Maithili spoken in Purnea may be called Eastern Maithili.

South of the Ganges, Maithili is influenced more or less by the Magahī spoken to its west, and, partly also by Bengali. The result is a well-marked dialect, locally known as Chikā-chikī bōlī, from its frequent use of the syllable 'chik,' the base on which the Verb Substantive is conjugated.

The Maithili spoken in the Muzaffarpur District, and in a strip of country on the western side of Darbhanga, is strongly infected by the neighbouring Bhojpuri spoken in various forms in the adjacent district of Saran and in the greater part of Champaran. So much is this the case, that, as spoken by some people, it is difficult to say whether the dialect is Maithili or Bhojpuri. It may be called Western Maithili.

The Musalmāns of Mithilā do not all speak Maithili. In Muzaffarpur and Champaran, they speak an altogether different dialect, closely allied to the language of Oudh. It is locally known as Shēkhāī or as Musalmānī, and is sometimes called Jolahā Bōlī, after the caste which forms one of the most numerous Musalmān tribes, according to popular opinion, of the locality. The true Jolahā Bōlī, however, is the language spoken by the Musalmāns of Darbhanga, which is a form of Maithili, though somewhat corrupted by the admission of Persian and Arabic words to its vocabulary.

The number of people who speak each form of Maithili is as follows:—

Number of Sub-dialect.		Number of Speakers.
Standard	1,946,800
Southern Standard	2,300,000
Eastern	1,302,300
Chikā-chiki	1,719,781
Western	1,783,495
Jolahā	337,000

Total number of speakers of Maithili in Maithili-speaking districts ... 9,389,376

These figures do not include the speakers of Maithili in the Nepal Tarai, concerning whom no figures are available. Under any circumstances, therefore, we shall be justified in assuming that at least ten million people speak Maithili in the country of which it is the vernacular.

The number of persons who speak Maithili in other parts is unknown. All that we can say is that, in Bengal and Assam, they have been estimated as amounting to about 275,000 people. They are not so numerous in other provinces.

Maithili is the only one of the Bihārī dialects which has a literary history. For centuries the paṇḍits of Mithilā have been famous for their learning, and more than one Sanskrit work of authority has been written by them. One of the few learned women of India whose name has come down to us was Lakhimā Thakkurāṇī, who, according to tradition, lived at the end of the 14th century A.D. Nor was the field of vernacular literature neglected by them. The earliest vernacular writer, of whom we have any record, was the celebrated Vidyāpati Thakkura or Thākura, who graced the court of Mahārājā Śiva Simha of Sugāonā, and who flourished in the middle of the 15th century. As a writer of Sanskrit works he was an author of considerable repute, and one of his works, translated into Bengali, is familiar as a text-book, under the name of the Puruṣa-parīkṣā, to every student of that language. But it is upon his dainty songs in the vernacular that his fame chiefly rests. He was the first of the old master-singers whose short religious poems, dealing principally with Rādhā and Kṛiṣṇa, exercised such an important influence on the religious history of Eastern India. His songs were adopted and enthusiastically recited by the celebrated Hindu reformer Caitanya, who flourished at the beginning of the sixteenth century, and, through him, became the house-poetry of the Lower Provinces. Numbers of imitators sprung up, many of whom wrote in Vidyāpati's name, so that it is now difficult to separate the genuine from the imitations, especially as in the great collection of these Vaiṣṇava songs, the Paḍa-kalpa-taru, which is the accepted authority in Bengal, the former have been altered in the course of generations to suit the Bengali idiom and metre. The Paḍa-kalpa-taru was the only record that we had of the poet's vernacular works, till, in the first edition of the Maithilī Chrestomathy, the present writer was enabled to publish a collection of songs attributed to Vidyāpati, which he collected in Mithilā itself, partly from the mouths of itinerant singers and partly from manuscript collections in the possession of local paṇḍits. That all the songs in this collection are genuine is not a matter capable of proof, but there can be little doubt that most of them are so, although the language has been greatly modernised in the course of transition from mouth to mouth during the past five centuries. A larger collection of these songs has been made by Babu Nagēndra Nāth Gupta, and will, it is believed, shortly be published.

Vidyāpati Thakkura or, as he is called in the vernacular, Bidyāpatī Thākur, had many imitators in Mithilā itself, of whom we know nothing except the names of the most popular, and a few stray verses. Amongst them may be mentioned Umāpati, Nandipati, Mōda-narāyaṇa, Ramāpati, Mahipati, Jayānanda, Caturbhujā, Sarasa-rāma, Jayadēva, Kēśava, Bhaūjana, Cakrapāṇi, Bhānunaṭha, and Harṣanāṭha or, in the vernacular, Harkh-nāth. The last two were alive when the present writer was in Darbhanga thirty years ago.

Amongst other writers in Maithilī may be mentioned Manbōdh Jhā, who died about the year 1788 A.D. He composed a Haribans, or poetical life of Kṛṣṇa, of which ten cantos are still extant, and enjoy great popularity.

The drama has had several authors in Mithilā. The local custom has been to write the body of a play in Sanskrit, but the songs in the vernacular. The best known of these plays are as follows. None of them has been published.

The Pārijāta-haraṇa, and the Rukmiṇī-pariṇaya, both by Vidyāpati Ṭhakkura.

The Gaurī-pariṇaya by Kavi-lāla.

The Uṣā-haraṇa by Harṣanātha above mentioned.

The Prabhāvatī-haraṇa by Bhānunātha above mentioned.

Under the enlightened guidance of the late Mahārāja of Darbhanga, there has been a remarkable revival of Maithili literature during the past few years. At least one author deserving of special note has come to the front, Candra Jhā, who has shown remarkable literary powers. He has written a Mithilā-bhāshā Rāmāyaṇa, and a translation, with an edition of the original Sanskrit text, of the Puruṣa-parīkṣā of Vidyāpati Ṭhakkura, both of which will well repay the student by their perusal.

No translation of any part of the Bible into Maithili has been issued by the Bible Society, nor is that language included amongst those into which the Serampore missionaries translated the Scriptures. At the same time, if an article in the Calcutta Review is to be believed, the first translation of any portion of the Bible into any language of Northern India was that of the Gospels and Acts, made into the Chikā-chiki dialect of Maithili, by Father Antonio, at the end of the eighteenth century. The only other translations with which I am acquainted are versions of the Sermon on the Mount, and other short portions of Scripture, made about thirty years ago by Mr. John Christian, and published at Monghyr.

I.—EARLY REFERENCES.—The earliest reference which I can find to Maithili or Tirhutiyā is in Amaduzzi's preface to Beligatti's Alphabetum Brammhanicum, published in 1771. This contains a list of Indian languages amongst which is 'Tourutiana.'

Colebrooke in his famous essay on the Sanskrit and Prakrit languages written in the year 1801, is the first to describe Maithili¹ as a distinct dialect. He points out its affinity with Bengali, discusses the written character used by the Brāhmaṇs, and adds, 'as the dialect of Mithilā has no extensive use, and does not appear to have been at any time cultivated by elegant poets, it is unnecessary to notice it any further in this place.' Since then,¹ like the other dialects of Bihār, Maithili remained unnoticed and forgotten, till Mr. Fallon gave a few specimens of it in the *Indian Antiquary*² in the year 1875. In the preceding year, it is true, some examples of the dialect were given in Sir George Campbell's Specimens,³ but they are there classed as some of many dialects of Hindi spoken in Bihār. Indeed, at this time it was the general belief that, all over Bihār, the language spoken was a corrupt form of Hindi, whereas, as Colebrooke had long previously pointed out, it was much more nearly allied to Bengali than to the Hindi of the North-Western Provinces. Matters remained in this state, till the first edition of the present Maithili grammar appeared in the year 1880-81.

MAITHILĪ GRAMMAR.

PART I.

ALPHABET AND VOCABULARY.

CHAPTER I.

THE ALPHABET.

1. The Alphabets in use in Mithilā are three—The Dēva-nāgarī, the Maithili, and the Kaithī. The first is familiar to every reader of this, and need not be described here. In Mithilā it is not much used in common life, and seldom even in manuscripts.

2. The Maithili is the character used by the Maithil Brāhmaṇs, both in the affairs of common life, and in their sacred books. Few of the Brāhmaṇs, who are not professed paṇḍits, can read the Dēva-nāgarī character. The Maithili character is also affected by Maithil Kāyasthas, who pretend to be better educated than their fellows. The Maithili character is nearly the same as that of Bengali, differing only in one or two letters.

3. The Kaithī character is that in general use throughout Mithilā by all educated persons who are not Brāhmaṇs. It is a corruption of the Dēva-nāgarī, and can be written much faster than the latter, even as fast as shikasta Urdū. There was a clerk in my office in Madhubanī, who could write excellent Kaithī more quickly than even the most practised of the old “Persian” muharrirs. Besides the speed with which it can be written, it has the advantage of thorough legibility. It is the official character employed in Government offices throughout Bihār and Chutiā Nāgpur.

4. A lithographed comparative table, giving specimens of these three alphabets, will be found at the end of this Grammar.

Pronunciation.

5. The vowels should be pronounced as in Sanskrit, with the following exceptions :—

6. The vowel a has four distinct sounds, not two, as in Sanskrit. In Sanskrit we have अ a and आ ā. In Maithilī each of these has developed into a pair, a short and a long. The sound of short अ a is peculiar. It is not so broad as that of the corresponding vowel in Bengali, but on the other hand it is broader than the neutral vowel in Hindi. We may describe it as something between the o in ‘cob,’ and the u in ‘cub,’ or as the short sound corresponding to the long a in the word ‘all.’ From this has developed a long sound almost exactly like that of the ā in ‘all.’ This long sound is nearly confined to the termination of the second person in verbs, and is due to the influence of a u which once followed it, but has now disappeared. Thus, the termination अह āh is derived from an older अहु ahu. The sound is not usually represented in native writing but is commonly written merely as अ a. When it is desired to show it in writing it is sometimes represented by the mark of length ऽ, above the line, and sometimes by the visarga ∴. Thus अह[‡] or अहः. I shall in these pages employ the former sign, and in transliteration, I shall adopt the sign ā, which is the character used for this sound in the publications of the Assam Government, and has been borrowed from Swedish.

7. Just as a long अ[‡] ā sound has been developed from अ, so a secondary short a-sound has been developed from आ ā. Ordinarily speaking, this letter is pronounced as the a in ‘far.’ Sometimes, according to the rule of the short antepenultimate to be described below (see § 32 and ff.), it has to be shortened, and is then pronounced like the a in ‘farrier.’ In native writing it is not customary to indicate this sound, an ordinary आ ā being usually written in its place. Some writers, however, use अ a for this sound, instead of आ. In the following pages, I shall indicate it, in the Dēva-nāgarī character, by the short mark ¹ written above the line. Thus मारलै, I killed. In transliteration I shall indicate it by the sign ā. Native scribes would write this word either मारलै or मरलै. This short मार ā has a great tendency to be weakened to म a, and it may be taken as a general rule that, unless ambiguity would ensue it does usually become म a. Thus the long form of पानि pānī, water, is properly पानिया pāniyā, but is usually पनिया paniyā. On the other hand, 'I killed,' is always pronounced मारलै māralai, and never मरलै maralai, however it is written, because the latter pronunciation would lead to ambiguity, मरलै maralai properly meaning 'he died.'

8. The rule for the pronunciation of a final a is the same as in Hindi. As a general rule, it is silent in prose as in गुण pronounced gun, not guna; फल phal, not phala. In other terms these words are practically monosyllables, and the final silent a is not counted as a syllable in applying phonetic rules depending on the number of syllables in a word (see §§ 28 and ff., 32 and ff.). Similarly चफल saphal must be treated as a dissyllable, not as a trisyllable, and so on. In transliteration this final silent a will be omitted in the following pages in writing prose. In poetry it is pronounced and will therefore be represented in transliteration.

In a few cases a final a is pronounced even in prose. When there is any doubt, I shall indicate it in the Dēva-nāgarī character by the sign o, and in transliteration I shall, when so pronounced, always write it in full. The most important cases in which it is pronounced are :—

- (i) Original monosyllables, such as न na, not.
- (ii) Words in which the final a is necessary for enunciation, as in शास्त्र śāstra, a holy book; प्रिय priya, dear; ग्राह्य grāhya, acceptable (see § 26).
- (iii) A few verbal forms, in which it is really ā, as in देखि dekhihā, be pleased to see; देखि क dekhi-kā, having seen.

9. When two words are compounded, the final a of the first member reappears and is pronounced very lightly. Thus (फल phal + दायक dāyak) is pronounced phal^adāyak, in which the a is hardly audible, very like the Hebrew sh^awā mobile.

The same imperfect a also occurs in many polysyllabic words in the syllable after the accent, when not final. Thus हमरा ham^arā, me; देखब^३ dēkh^abāh, you will see (but देखब dēkhab with the a fully pronounced as it is in the final syllable); देखल dēkhal or देखलिछे dēkh^aliai, I saw. As above shown, I represent this imperfect vowel in transliteration by a small a above the line. I have not thought it necessary to indicate it in the Dēva-nāgarī character. Natives never do so.

In poetry, the final silent a, and this imperfect a are always fully pronounced. We thus have, in poetry, guṇa, phala, saphala, phaladāyaka, hamarā, dekhābāh (or, more usually, the older form dekhābahu), dēkhaba, dēkhalu and dekhāliai.

10. The short vowels इ i and उ u, when final in prose are also, as a rule, only half-pronounced. They may then be compared, in this respect, to the 'compound sh^awās' of Hebrew, which, however, occur at the beginning, not at the end, of a syllable. They are not absolutely silent, but (as in Sindhi, Kāśmīrī, and Dravidian languages) are barely audible. Natives make no attempt to indicate in writing the extreme shortness of these vowels. As the matter is of some importance, I shall in the following pages indicate the fact by the sign for virāma () placed under the vowel-sign. In transliteration I shall indicate it by small letters above the line. Thus, अइ achⁱ, he is; देखथु dēkhath^u, let him see. As in the case of the final absolutely silent a, these imperfect i and u are not counted as forming syllables in applying the rule of the short antepenultimate (§ 32). For the purposes of that rule देखथु dēkhath^u is a word of two syllables.

There are exceptions in which a final i is pronounced as a full vowel. These are:—

(i) The final i of the plural termination अनि ani, as in लोकनि lok^ani (not लोकनि lōkanⁱ) people, the plural of लोक lōk, a person.

(ii) The final i of masculine nouns, as in पानि pāni, water; मनि māni, proud (not पानि pānⁱ, मनि mānⁱ).

(iii) A final i preceded by a vowel, as in हलुकार् halukāi, lightness (not हलुकार् halukāi).

These imperfect vowels are frequently nasalised by anunāsika. Thus देखितहि dekhitahⁱ, immediately on seeing; देखलहुँ dekh^alah^u, I saw.

In poetry these imperfect i and u are fully pronounced, thus achi, dēkhathu.

11. As in the case of आ ā, the vowel ए ē has two sounds, a short and a long. The long sound is the one with which we are familiar in Sanskrit, something like that of the a in 'mate.' The other is the corresponding short sound, something like that of the e in 'met.' Natives make no distinction between these two sounds in writing. In the following pages, the long sound will be represented by ए or, when non-initial, by ̄, and the short sound by ए or, when non-initial, by ̇. In transliteration I shall represent them by ē and e respectively.

It should be noted that ए e and ऐ i are freely interchangeable. Thus, we may either have पट्टतार paṭṭāh or पटतार paṭtāh, he will see. Northern Maithili, as a rule, prefers to use ए e.

12. In an exactly similar way, there is a pair of long and short o sounds. The long is the Sanskrit ओ ō, and is sounded like the second o in 'promote.' The short has the sound of the first o in the same word, and will be represented in the following pages by ओ or, when non-initial, by ̄. The corresponding transliteration will be ō and o, respectively. Native writers make no distinction between these two sounds, representing both by ओ. As in the case of ए e and ऐ i, ओ o and उ u are freely interchangeable, ओ o being usually preferred in the north and उ u in the south. Thus, we have either पओलहुँ paōlah^u or पउलहुँ paūlah^u, I obtained.

13. In Sanskrit the vowels ऐ āi and औ āu are really diphthongs made up of आ + ऐ ā + i and आ + औ ā + u, respectively. Their origin is therefore āi and āu, and the pronunciation is distinctly long. We may compare the pronunciation of the ai in the English word aisle, and of the ou in the English word 'our.' In Maithili these sounds only occur in words directly borrowed from Sanskrit as in कैकेयी Kāṅkeyī, औषध auṣadh. In Maithilī these letters invariably represent an older अ + र (or ऋ) a (not ā) + i (or e) and अ + उ (or औ) a (not ā) + u (or o) respectively. In fact, at the present day native writers sometimes write ऐ and औ and sometimes अर or अऋ, अउ or अऔ. Thus they write the present participle of the root देख dēkh, see, sometimes देखै (or in this book देखै dekhait) and sometimes देखर (or in this book देखर dekhait). I have even, on occasions, seen the word spelt देखयित, in which the य is merely a fulcrum for carrying the i much as alif is employed in Hindōstānī. Again 'I shall obtain' is written परवै (or in this book परवै paibai), परवै (or in this book परवै paibai), or पैवै (or in this book पैवै paibai). Similarly they indicate 'he will obtain,' by पउताह (or in this book पउताह paūtāh), पऔताह (or in this book पऔताह paūtāh) or पोताह (or in this book पोताह pautāh). Native writers make no distinction between the Sanskrit and Maithilī ai and au. Both ai sounds they represent, in the Sanskrit fashion by ऐ, and both au sounds by औ. As, however, the Maithilī sounds are shorter both by origin and in pronunciation, I represent the short sounds by ऐ (or, when non-initial, by ^ॐ), and by औ (or, when non-initial by ^ॐ), respectively. In transliteration, I represent the long sounds by āi and āu, and the short sounds by ai and au.

It is important to note that the Maithilī ऐ ai and औ au are merely alternative graphic representations of अर ai or अऋ āi and अउ au or अऔ āu, respectively. This rule must be borne in mind in counting syllables for applying the rule of the short antepenultimate (§ 33, ii) in which both ऐ ai and औ au count each as two syllables. Thus, the word देखै dekhait, seeing, must be considered as a word of three syllables, viz., देख de + अ kha + र it; and not as one of two.

As, whatever the method of writing employed may be, the pronunciation of वर and ऐ and of वउ and वो is in each case identical, I shall in future make no distinction in transliteration.¹ I shall represent both वर and ऐ by ai, and both वउ and वो by au. वउ will be represented by ae (pronounced, however, the same as ai), and ववो will be represented by ao (pronounced as au).

14. Native scribes are by no means uniform in their methods of representing vowel-sounds in writing. In the table below I give the system of spelling adopted for this grammar, and also the more usual scribal variations.

System of spelling adopted in this Grammar.

Variations often employed by native scribes.

र initial (रक्षा, a wish, देखरत, seeing).	यि (यिक्का), बी (बीक्का), र (देखरत)
र medial (लिखित, written).	ई (लौखीत) (very common).
ई initial (ईंटा, a brick).	बी (बींटा).
उ initial (उक्का, a torch).	वु (वुक्का), or वू (वूक्का).
उ initial (उंच, high).	वू (वूंच), or व (वूंच).
उ medial (भूठ, भूट).	व (भूठ) (very common).
ए { initial (एक, one).	बे (बेक).
ऐ { initial (ऐठ, twist).	बे (बैठ).
वो { initial (वोर, direction).	वो (वोर).

NOTE.—All the above are only varieties of spelling, and have nothing to do with pronunciation.

¹ Whether the sound is really diphthongal, or whether the two elements are separately pronounced, it is difficult to say. Pronunciation varies in different mouths. In old Maithili the sound was certainly not diphthongal, and it seems to me that at the present day the vowels are beginning to coalesce, but that the custom has not yet been established.

15. The vowels र r, रि rī and ल l only occur in words borrowed direct from Sanskrit. When so met, they are pronounced like ri, rī, and li, respectively. They are never found in pure Maithilī words.

16. The following is therefore a complete conspectus of all the Maithilī vowels. Those which are only found in Sanskrit words are marked with the letter S.

Short.	Long.
अ a	आ ā
अ† ă	आ† ā̃
इ i	ई ī
उ u	ऊ ū
र r (S.)	रि rī (S.)
ल l (S.)
ए e	ऐ ē
ऐ ai	ऐ āi (S.)
ओ o	औ ō .
औ au	औ āu (S.)

17. The Sanskrit Visarga (:) no longer exists in Maithilī except in a few borrowed words. The character is, however, as stated above, sometimes, but rarely, employed to indicate the sound of the letter ā.

18. Anusvāra (¯), when immutable, is also retained in a few words borrowed from Sanskrit. It is very commonly employed (like the changeable anusvāra of Sanskrit) as a compendium scripturæ for ङ ṅ, ञ ñ, ण ṇ, न n, or म m before another consonant of the same class. Thus बुँदा instead बुन्दा bundā. It will hence be represented in transliteration by ṅ, ñ, ṇ, n, or m, according to circumstances. Native writers very commonly employ it instead of anunāsika.

19. Anunāsika (¨) is met extremely frequently. It indicates the nasal sound which we hear in the French word 'bon.'

It will be represented in transliteration by the mark ~ placed over the nasalised vowel. Thus अँखिया ākhīyā, an eye. मँ mǎ or मँ mē in; बाँहि bāhī, an arm; देखलुँ dekh^alah^u, I saw.

20. Consonants.

क k, ख kh, ग g, घ gh, ङ ñ, च c, छ ch, ज j, झ jh, ञ ñ, ट t, ठ th, ड d, ढ dh, त t, थ th, द d, ध dh, न n, प p, फ ph, ब b, भ bh, म m, य y, र r, ल l, व w, श ś, स s, and ह h are usually pronounced as in Sanskrit.

21. When ड d and ढ dh are not initial they become ढ r and ढ rh. These cerebral r-sounds, are not so definitely cerebral as in Western Hindi. They are very frequently interchanged with र r and र rh respectively, and, indeed the latter dental sounds more nearly approach the correct pronunciation. Thus, 'a horse' is either घोड़ ghōṛ or घोर ghōr, of which two the latter is the preferable spelling. Native custom as to writing these sounds fluctuates.

22. The pronunciation of ण ṇ is peculiar. The cerebral nature of its sound is much more marked than in the Sanskrit of Eastern India. It has more the sound of a muffled cerebral r followed by a cerebral ṇ; e.g., राबण is pronounced almost like Rābaṇ, the r in rṇ having a peculiar muffled sound, impossible to describe in writing. न n is occasionally substituted for ण ṇ and is then pronounced as n.

23. Original य y and व w always become ज j and ब b respectively, although the letters य् and व् are often retained in writing. In the following pages the spelling will strictly follow the pronunciation. Thus I shall write जाबन jāuban, not यौवन yāuvan, and बात bāt, not वान wāt. The only cases in which we find य y and व w with their proper pronunciations are when they are used euphonicallly,—like the ya-śruti of the Prakrit Grammarians,—as described in the following sections.

24. When two vowels, of which the latter is short or long ă come together, a euphonic य y or व w is often inserted to prevent a hiatus. The insertion is generally optional, and is merely intended to facilitate utterance. This euphonic insertion takes place between ā and ā̃, between ī and ī̃, between ē and ē̃, between ū and ū̃, and between ō and ō̃.

(i) Between ā and ā̃ the semi-vowel which is inserted is always w.¹ नेनवा nen^a-ā becomes नेनवा nen^awā, a boy. In this case the insertion is not optional, but is compulsory.

(ii) Between i or e and ā̃, the inserted letter is y. Thus मालिवा mālīā or मालिया mālīyā, a gardener. In this case the insertion of the y is quite optional, but careful writers generally insert it.

(iii) Between ī or ē and ā̃ it is always w which is inserted, and the insertion is compulsory. Thus मालीवा mālīwā for मालीवा mālīā, a gardener. Here it must be explained, that the w was originally really between a and ā̃. Almost the only case in which ī immediately precedes ā̃ is in the redundant form of nouns (§ 41). This form properly ends in इयवा īy^awā, thus—मालियवा mālīy^awā—and the इय īy^a is liable to be contracted to ई ī, so that we get मालीवा mālīwā.

(iv) Between ū or ō̃ and ā̃, the inserted vowel is always w. The insertion is quite optional, not compulsory, but careful writers usually omit it. We thus get आँसुवा āsuā or आँसुवा āsuwā, a tear.

In the following pages, I shall follow the usage of the most careful writers, and shall spell upon the principles indicated by the forms नेनवा nen^awā, मालिया mālīyā, मालीवा mālīwā, and आँसुवा āsuā.

The above are the only instances in which y and w really occur in Maithilī, and it will be seen that, as they are euphonic additions and only appear between contiguous vowels, they can never occur at the beginning of a word, except in the case of the incorrect native spellings indicated in § 14.

It must, however, be mentioned that the diphthongs ऐ ai and औ au are often written अय ay^a and अव aw^a by some writers. This is only a question of spelling. Again the vowel ए e is often written य ya, and the vowel ओ o is often written व wa. Thus we find होएब hōeb, to be, written होयब ; केओ keō, any one, written क्यो kyō; and पाओल pāōl, I got, written पावल pāwal. This again is a mere matter of spelling. The pronunciation is not affected.

25. The sibilants श् ś and ष् ṣ only appear in words borrowed from Sanskrit. The only sibilant which Maithili has of its own is the dental स् s. श् ś is pronounced as in Sanskrit; but ष् ṣ when standing alone, and not compounded with another consonant is always pronounced like ख kh. Thus षष्ठ ṣaṣṭh, sixth, pronounced khaṣṭh. This pronunciation is universal: the vulgar even write such a ष ष phonetically ख ख. In the compound consonant र्व rṣ ष ष is also always pronounced as ख ख; e.g. आकर्षण ākaraṣaṇ is pronounced ākarkhaṇ. By some this ख ख sound of ष ष is pronounced as a guttural breathing, and not as a guttural check,—something, but not quite, like the Persian خ kh, or the ch in ‘loch.’ The compound letter क्ष kṣ is pronounced like क्ख cch, which is occasionally written for it by the vulgar; e.g. लक्ष्मी is so written, and is pronounced as Lakṣmī by purists, but is commonly written and pronounced लक्खमी Lacch^mmī. The compound ष्प ṣp is peculiar. It is pronounced something like hfp; e.g., पुष्प puṣp, a flower, is pronounced puhfp. This seems to be a relic of the old Sanskrit upadhmanīya.

Native scribes regularly write श् ś for स् s; thus, they write सागर sāgar, instead of सगर sāgar, the sea. The pronunciation is, however, always that of a dental स् s. In Māgadhi Prakrit every स् s was pronounced as श् ś. This pronunciation has long ceased to exist in Bihār, but the mode of writing has survived.

26. The letter ह h, when compound with य y, becomes ह्य hy, which, in words borrowed from Sanskrit, is pronounced in a peculiar way. If zh be taken to represent the Persian ژ zh, the pronunciation of this compound can best be represented by zhjy; e.g., ग्रह्य, fit to be accepted, is pronounced grāzhjiya, the final अ a being retained in pronunciation, though usually inert, for the sake of euphony (§ 8).

27. The mute letters are divided into surds and sonants. Surds and sonants may each be aspirated or unaspirated. Thus—

SURDS.		SONANTS.
Unaspirated.	Aspirated.	Unaspirated.	Aspirated.
क् k .	ख kh .	ग g .	घ gh .
च c .	छ ch .	ज j .	झ jh .
ट t .	ठ th .	ड d , ड्र r	ढ dh , ढ्र rh .
त t .	थ th .	द d .	ध dh .
प p .	फ ph .	ब b .	भ bh .

In connexion with the sonants, there is an important rule.

(i) When any unaspirated sonant is preceded by anunāsika,¹ the nasal of the corresponding class may be substituted for the two.

(ii) When an aspirated sonant is preceded by anunāsika, the nasal of the corresponding class aspirated by the addition of h may be substituted for the two.

Thus—

(i) ग् g may become ङ ñ. Thus, आंग āṅ or आङ āṇ a limb.

ज् j may become ञ ñ. This is, however, of very rare occurrence. Example, आज् ājū or आञ् āñū, a tear.

ॠ ~ r may become ण n. Thus, भॠ ॠ bhār or भाण bhān, an earthen pot.

ॡ ~ d may become न् n. Thus, नीॡ nīd or नीन nīn, sleep.

ॢ ~ l may become म् m. Thus, नीॢ nīl or नीम nīm, a nīm-tree.

(ii) ॣ ~ gh may become ह् h. Thus, सीॣ sīgh or सीह् sīh, a lion.

॥ ~ jh may become उह् ūh. This, as in the case of ज् ~ j, is very rare. Example म॥ mājh or माउह māūh, middle.

० ~ rh may become एह् ēh. Thus, को० kōrh or कोएह kōēh, a pumpkin.

ॡ ~ dh may become न्ह् nh. Thus, बाॡ bādh or बान्ह bānh, bind. Compare as a reverse example कान्ह kānh or काॡ kādh, a name of Kṛṣṇa.

ॢ ~ bh may become न्ह mh. Thus, खाॢ bhābh or खान्ह khāmh, a pillar.

All the above changes are quite optional. Those of ॠ ~ r, ॡ ~ rh, ॡ ~ d, ॢ ~ dh, ॢ ~ b, ॢ ~ bh, are very common. The others, especially those of ज् ~ j and ॥ ~ jh, are more rare.

There is one point to be noted. The aspirated nasals ह् h, उह् ūh, एह् ēh, न्ह् nh, and न्ह mh, are never treated as compound letters, and do not make a preceding vowel long by position. They are treated exactly like aspirated mutes ख् kh, घ् gh, च् ch, ॥ jh, and so on. They might indeed be added as single letters to the alphabet. Thus:—

Gutturals, क् k, ख् kh, ग् g, घ् gh, ङ् ṅ, ङ्ह् ṅh.

Palatals, च् c, च् ch, ज् j, ॥ jh, ञ् ñ, उह् ūh.

Cerebrals, ट् t, ट् th, ड् d, ड् r, ढ् dh, ढ् rh, ण् n, एह् ēh.

ACCENTUATION.

28. The stress accent exists in Maithili, but is not strongly pronounced. In counting syllables for fixing the place of an accent, the final silent a of words ending in a consonant, and a final imperfect ¹ and ² are not considered. On the other hand, the imperfect ² in the middle of a word, corresponding to the Hebrew shewā mobile, is counted as a syllable. For instance, in the word देखलह dēkh¹lāh², there are for our present purposes three syllables, viz., दे dé + ख kh¹ + लह lāh².

(i) If a word ends in a consonant (whether followed by imperfect ¹ or ² or not) preceded by a long vowel or a diphthong, the main accent is on the last syllable. Thus किसान kisān, a cultivator; देखलहनि dēkh¹lāh²ni¹, you saw; देखलिदेनि dēkh¹līdēni¹, I saw.

(ii) If a word ends in a fully pronounced vowel, and if the penultimate is long, the accent falls on the penultimate. Thus पानि pāni, water; छोटका chòṭākkā, small.

(iii) In other cases (except in the case of words borrowed from Sanskrit) the accent falls on the antepenultimate. Thus हमरा hāmārā, me; लोकनि lókani, people; खोपड़ी khóp²ṛī a hut; देखलह dēkh¹lāh², I saw; तितलिया tītāliyā, a butterfly.

If a word, which has the accent on the antepenultimate, takes a suffix, the antepenultimate becomes the syllable before the antepenultimate, and may optionally retain the accent. Thus, the word तितली tītālī, a butterfly, has the accent on tī, the antepenultimate. The long form of तितली tītālī is made by suffixing ā, and we get तितलिया titaliyā. This ordinarily has the accent on tā, the new antepenultimate, according to the above rule; thus tītāliyā, but some people retain the accent on the tī, and say tītāliyā. Pronunciation in this respect fluctuates much.

(iv) In words borrowed from Sanskrit, the accent may be thrown back as far as the syllable before the antepenultimate, provided the antepenultimate and the penultimate are both short. Here again pronunciation varies. कुटिलता, deceitfulness, may be either kūṭilatā or kūṭilātā.

29. If the accent does not fall on the first syllable of a word, that syllable has a secondary accent, which I indicate by the sign, as in kisán, dèkh^olahún^h, dèkh^oliáin^h, chòtákkā, títáliyā and kùt^ll^otā given above.

30. If a word ends in imperfect ⁱ or * and if the last syllable has not the main accent of the word, then that syllable has a secondary accent, as in देखि dèkhàthⁱ, he may see ; कहर^३ kàh^oràh³, any one (accusative) ; देख^३ dèkh^olàh³, I saw.

31. In compound words, the first member retains its own stress-accent as a secondary accent, the stress-accent of the second member being the stress-accent of the word. Thus मुख-चंद्र mùkh^ocánd, the moon of a girl's face. Compound words borrowed directly from Sanskrit are often treated as simple words. Thus विद्यापति bidyā-patⁱ, which, according to the above rule, should be pronounced bidyā-pátⁱ is always pronounced bidyāpàtⁱ. The word is the name of a famous poet of Mithilā.

RULE OF THE SHORT ANTEPENULTIMATE.

32. The following rules are most important. They are applied rigorously throughout the whole system of Maithili Grammar, and unless they are fully grasped, much of what is in the following pages will be found obscure.

(i) The rules here given apply only to Maithili words. They do not apply to words borrowed direct from Sanskrit, which are not subject to change.

(ii) The genius of the whole Maithili language is adverse to the existence of a long vowel in a Maithili word, when it would occupy a position removed more than two syllables from the end of a word.

Note.—In counting syllables neither the final silent a, nor a final imperfect ⁱ or * counts as a syllable; but the medial imperfect ^o, corresponding to the Hebrew shewā mobile does so count. Thus घर ghar, a house, is a word of one syllable; देख dèkhab, I shall see, बाबोरि āorⁱ, and, सुतथु sūtath^u let him sleep, are words of two syllables; while सुतिह^० sutih^o, sleep thou, and देख^० dèkh^obē, you will see, are words of three syllables.

33. The practice of shortening a vowel is subject to the following rules:—

(i) Whenever the vowel आ a finds itself in the antepenultimate syllable, i.e., in the third from the end of the word, it is shortened to अ ă. Thus, नाउआ nāuā (or, contracted नौआ nauā) long form of नाऊ nāū, a barber; आगिया āgiyā, long form of आग āgī, fire; पाओलह pāolāh (or, contracted, पोलह paulāh), 2nd plur. past of पाएब pāēb, to obtain; मारलक māralak, he struck, from मारब mārab, to strike; बतिया bātiyā, long form of बात bāt, a word.

There is a tendency to pronounce and write this shortened अ ă as if it were अ a, so that we sometimes hear, instead of the above; नाउआ nāuā; आगिया āgiyā; बतिया bātiyā. But this is only in the case of nouns. अ ă does not often become अ a in verbs, as this would tend to give rise to ambiguity. Thus, the verb मार, means 'strike,' while, if we shortened it to मार, the root would mean 'die.' Sometimes, however, we find आ ā shortened to अ a, even in verbs. In this respect, the rule is that we may have अ a if no ambiguity occurs. Compare § 7.

(ii) Similarly, any other vowel finding itself in the antepenultimate, is shortened, provided a consonant which is not euphonic य y or व w follows it. Thus, सिखलक sikh^alak, he learnt, from सिख sikh, learn; देखइत dekhaiṭ (or, contracted) देखैत dekhaiṭ), seeing. On the other hand, चूखलह cū^alāh or चूवलह cūw^alāh, he dripped; सीखलक sī^alak or सीयलक siy^alak, he sewed; from roots चू cū and सी sī; in which the long i and the long ū are retained as they are followed by vowels or by euphonic y or w.

From the above it will be noted that the contraction of a and i to ai does not affect the shortening. In other words ऐ ai and औ au, for the purposes of these rules, count as two syllables each.

(iii) Any vowel whatever, finding itself removed more than three syllables from the end of the word is shortened, whether it is followed by a consonant or not. Thus चूरतथीन्ह chuit-thinh (if) he had dripped, from root चू cū; होइबर hoiai (or, contracted होइ hoiai), (if) I become, from root हो hō, become; देखितिय dekhitiāi (or, contracted देखितियो dekhitiāu) (if) I had seen you, from root देख dēkh.

34. Amongst native writers of Maithili no fixed usage has as yet established itself regarding the graphic representation of the short antepenultimate. Though it is always pronounced short, it is often written long. Thus we find the words given above sometimes written नाउआ, आगिया, पाओलह (or पोहह) मारलक, बतिया, सीखलक, and चूरतथीन्ह, and sometimes नउआ (or नौआ), अगिया, पओलह, मरलक, बतिया, सिखलक, and चुरतथीन्ह देबरत and होइटे are, of course always written देबरत and होइरे as the writers have no character for short e, o, or ai.

35. All the above examples have exhibited the shortening of vowels long by nature. Exactly the same principle is followed in the case of vowels long by position. When such vowels precede a compound consonant (usually a nasal plus a mute, or a double mute), the nasal is weakened to anunāsika, and the double consonant is simplified. Thus from the root बन्ध bandh, to bind we have बंधुआ bādhua or बन्हुआ banhuā (see § 27, ii) not बन्धुआ bandhuā, a prisoner; and from the long form (see § 41) चोटका choṭakkā, small, we have the redundant form चोटकावा choṭakāwā.

CHAPTER II.

VOCABULARY.

36. In the preceding pages I have more than once made a distinction between Maithili words and Sanskrit words.

37. Maithili is an Indo-Aryan language, and though the statement is not strictly accurate, it may conveniently be said to be descended from Sanskrit. According to native belief it is so descended.¹ In the course of its development it passed through various stages, the latest of which (before the birth of Maithilī) was that known as Māgadhi Prakrit, the colloquial language of the whole of Bihār, in various stages of development from, say, the time of Buddha (550 B.C.) down to about A.D. 1000.² From this Māgadhi Prakrit are directly descended not only Maithilī and the other languages of Bihār, but also Bengali, Assamese, and Oṛiyā. For our present purposes it is sufficient to remember that the Maithilī Vocabulary is descended from Sanskrit through Māgadhi Prakrit.

38. In order to supply real or fancied deficiencies in this vocabulary, writers have borrowed words from other languages,—English, Persian, Arabic, and Sanskrit. The English, Persian, and Arabic importations are very few in number, but the case is different with Sanskrit. In the vocabulary compiled for this work, out of the first hundred words, about twenty-seven may claim to be more or less distorted forms of words borrowed direct from Sanskrit, without having passed through Māgadhi Prakrit. These borrowed Sanskrit words are just as foreign to the language as are Latin words borrowed at the present day by French or Italian. Natives are quite aware of the existence of these two classes of words, and have given each class a name. They call the words borrowed from Sanskrit Tatsamas, i.e., ‘the same as It’ (‘It’ being Sanskrit), while the true Maithilī words, which have developed naturally through Māgadhi Prakrit they call ‘Tadbhavas’ i.e., ‘sprung from It.’

39. The distinction between these two classes of words is of importance, for Tatsamas, like all borrowed words in all languages, are treated as foreigners and are not subject to the phonetic rules which govern Tadbhavas. For instance, the rule of the short antepenultimate does not apply to Tatsamas. Again Tatsamas cannot be conjugated (with one or two rare exceptions) as verbs. For instance दर्शन darśan is a Tatsama meaning ‘seeing,’ but we cannot say दर्शन-करि *darśanai-ach*ⁱ, he sees. If we want to use the word we must compound it with another Tadbhava verb and say दर्शन करे-करि *darśan karai-ach*ⁱ, he does seeing. From this it follows that the class of Tatsama words is confined to nouns substantive or nouns adjective, and that, as a broad rule, no verb can be a Tatsama.

² It must be understood that these limits are only approximate.

For the future, on the following pages, I shall employ these two words, tatsama and tadbhava, in the sense explained above.

PART II.

DECLENSION.

CHAPTER I.

FORMATION OF NOUNS.

40. Space will not permit us to go at any length into the question of the formation of Maithili nouns. It must suffice to say that, with few exceptions, nouns are formed on the same principles as in Western Hindi, and in other Indo-Aryan languages. I shall first deal with—

EQUIVALENT FORMS OF NOUNS.

41. All nouns, whether substantives or adjectives, admit of various equivalent forms, i.e., of various forms which do not differ appreciably in meaning. These forms are the short, the long, and the redundant. The short form may be either weak or strong. In practice every noun does not take all these four forms, only experience can teach which of the short forms (the weak or strong) is employed in the case of any particular noun ; but theoretically all nouns, and in reality some few nouns, do take both. All nouns can, at option, take the long and redundant forms.

42. The short form is the primary form by which the word is generally known. It is also, in most cases, the only one admissible in good and literary language.

43. Of its two varieties, the weak form is the shortest form of the noun, generally ending in a consonant, a short i, or an imperfect

4. Thus घोड़ा ghōṛ, a horse; लोह lōh, iron; पानी pāni, water; मारि a beating; छोटा chōṭ, small (masc.); छोटी chōṭī, small (fem.).

44. The strong form is simply the weak form (when such exists) strengthened by the addition of आ ā, or by the lengthening of the final vowel. When there is no weak form, the strong form always ends in a long vowel. Thus, घोड़ा ghōṛā, a horse; लोहा lōhā, iron; मारी māri, a beating; छोटा chōṭā, small (masc.); छोटी chōṭī, small (fem.); आँसू āṣū (no weak form), a tear; पोथ pōthi (no weak form), a book.

45. The long forms of substantives are made by adding one of the suffixes आ ā, या yā, or वा wā (sometimes vulgarly आँ āi or ऊँ ūi, याँ yāi or यैँ yēi, वाँ wāi or wēi) to the short form, the final vowels of which, if long, are shortened. Thus घोड़वा ghoṛwā (or -wāi, -wēi), a horse; मारिया māriyā or मारिवा māriwā, a beating, पोथिया pothiyā or पोथिवा pothiwā, a book; आँसुवा āsuwā or आँसुवा āsuwā, a tear.

46. The long forms of adjectives are similarly made by adding one of the suffixes का kā or क्का kkā (fem. की kī or क्की kkī) to the short forms. Thus, from बड़ bar or बड़ा barā (short forms), great, we have as long form बड़का bar^akā. So from छोटा chōṭ or छोटा chōṭā, small, we have छोटका choṭ^akā or छोटक्का choṭakkā, and from भारि bhāri or भारी bhāri, heavy, भारिका bhārikā or भारिक्का bhārikkā. For the long form of the feminine छोटी chōṭī, however, we must go back to the masculine छोटा chōṭ, and form a new feminine from the long form. Thus, छोटकौ choṭ^akī or छोटक्की choṭakkī. There is no such form as छोटिका choṭikā or छोटिक्का choṭikkā derived directly from छोटी chōṭī.

47. The redundant forms of substantives and adjectives are formed from their long forms precisely as long forms of substantives are formed from their short forms, viz., by adding आ ā, या yā, or वा wā, to the long forms; but, once these additions are made there are frequent contractions. We thus get the following table exhibiting all the forms at one view.

SHORT FORM.		Long form.	Redundant form.
Weak.	Strong.
घोड़ ghōṛ , a horse	घोड़ा ghōṛā	घोड़वा ghor^awā	घोड़ोवा ghorawā (contracted from घोड़वा ghor^awā).
घर ghar , a house (masc.) None	none सभा sabhā , an assembly (fem.)	घरवा ghar^awā सभवा sabh^awā	घरोवा gharawā (similarly contracted). सभोवा sabhawā .
मारि māri , a beating. (So any noun ending in i .)	मारी māri	मारिया māriyā	मारियवा māriy^awā or मारीवा māriwā .
पानि pāni , water. (So any noun in i .) None.	none पोथी pōthī , a book. (So any noun in i .)	पानिया pāniyā पोथिया pōthiyā	पानियवा pāniy^awā or पानीवा pāniwā . पोथियवा pōthiy^awā or पोथीवा pōthiwā .

SHORT FORM.		Long form.	Redundant form.
Weak.	Strong.
None	बाँसु āsu , a tear. So any noun in ū .	बाँसुवा āsuwā	बाँसुवा āsuwā or बाँसु āsu .
चोट chōṭ , small So any mascu- line adject- ive.	चोटा chōṭā	{ चोटका choṭakā चोटका choṭākkā	चोटका choṭakawā . चोटका choṭākwā .
चोटि c h ō ṭ i , small. So any feminine adjective.	चोटी chōṭī	{ चोटकी choṭakī चोटकी choṭākkī	चोटकिया choṭakīyā . चोटकिया choṭākiyā .

48. With reference to the above table, attention must be called to the remarks in § 24 concerning the optional insertion or omission of euphonic y and w. For instance, instead of बानिया bāṭiyā, we may have बानिवा baṭiā, and instead of बाँसुवा āsuwā, we may have बाँसु āsuwā. Attention is also to be called to the fact that natives very frequently substitute wa for ā in writing (this does not affect the pronunciation). So that, in native books, we should usually find forms like बानिया bāṭiyā, बतीवा batiwā, पनिया paniyā, बाँसुवा āsuwā, and so on. It will be noticed that the rule of the short antepenultimate (§§ 32 and ff.) comes into full force in these forms.

49. All these forms, the short weak, the short strong, the long, and the redundant, have, in theory, exactly the same meaning. The long form is, however, generally used in a non-honorific sense or to give definiteness. Thus नैनवा nenwā, the boy (familiarly or contemptuously); घोड़ा ghoṛwā, the horse. The long form in the feminine is frequently employed in the sense of a diminutive. Thus नेनी nēnī, a girl, नेनिया neniyā, a little girl ; खाट khāṭ, a bed, खाटिया khaṭiyā, a cot.

50. The redundant form is used in much the same sense as the long form, but only by the vulgar or in familiar language. The vulgar, indeed, employ both the long and the redundant forms as caprice dictates, in the sense of the short form. The use of the redundant form in this way is still more vulgar or familiar than that of the long form.

NOMINAL SUFFIXES.

51. In the following examples, as my object is here purely practical, I shall not attempt to distinguish between primary and secondary suffixes. It must be understood that अर ai or अउ ae and ऐ ai are always absolutely interchangeable, and so also अउ au or अओ ao and ओ au. I have written, in each case, the forms which I have seen most frequently.

52. अर ā (Masculine). The strong short forms in अर ā correspond to the large class of Hindi nouns which end in अर ā, such as Hindi घोड़ा ghōṛā, a horse ; but many nouns, which in Hindi are only used in the strong form, in Maithilī prefer the weak form. Thus :—

Maithilī.	Hindī.
आन्ह ānh , blind	अंधा ādhā
ऊँच ūc , high	ऊँचा ūcā
कान kān , one-eyed	काना kanā
कान्ह kānh , the shoulder	काँधा kādhā
गहिर gahīr , deep	गहिरा gahirā
गोर gōr , pale	गोरा gōrā
घोड़ ghōṛ , a horse	घोड़ा ghōṛā
चून् cūn , lime	चूना cūnā
छूर chūr , a knife	छूरा chūrā
दहिन् dahin , right (not left)	दहिना dahinā
बहिर bahīr , deaf	बहिरा bahirā

Maithili.

मूस mūs, a ratलोह lōh, ironसार sār, a brother-in-lawसोन sōn, gold

So (weak form in ')

मारि mārī, a beating

Hindī.

मूसा *mūsā*लोहा *lōhā*साला *sālā*सोना *sōnā*मारी mārī

In some cases Maithili has the strong, as well as the weak form. Thus, घोड़ा ghōrā as well as घोड़ ghōr, लोहा lōhā as well as लोह lōh, but in all the above, the weak form is the one customarily heard.

Weak nouns are of course very common in Hindī. But I think it is safe to say that they are much more common, both in the case of masculine and in that of feminine nouns, in Maithili.

53. आ ā (Feminine). Nearly all the feminine words in आ ā are tatsamas borrowed directly from Sanskrit, such as सभा sabhā, an assembly. The only Maithili tadbhavas which I have noted as ending in this letter are बुन्द bund or बुन्दा bundā, a drop, and the connected बुना bunā, zero, the figure 0.

54. आस ās, वास wās. These usually form desideratives as in Hindī, but are not so common as in that language. The only forms which I have met in Maithili are:—

पिआस piās, thirst; hence पिआसल piāsāl, thirsty.

तरास tarās, thirst; hence तरासल tarāsāl, thirsty.

(This word is not to be confounded with तरास tarās, fear).

मुतवास mut^awās, desire to make water (Hindi मुतास mutās).

हगवास hag^owās, desire to stool (Hindi हगास hagās).

Other words with (in form) the same suffix, but not desideratives, are such as:—

झपास jhapās, a violent burst of rain (so Hindi for jhapavāsā, sudden rain).

गढ़ास garās, a pole-axe (Hindi गढ़ासा gārāsā).

The derivation of the suffix in the last two words is obscure.

55. आह ah, (Fem. आहि ahī), weak form; आहा āhā (Fem.

āh), strong form. This is a common adjectival termination in Maithili. Thus :—

अधलाह adh^alāh, bad.

पिचराह pich^arāh, slippery.

बताह batāh or बउराह baurāh, mad.

बलुआह baluāh, sandy.

The strong form is specially used in the following three cases :—

पदिमाहा pachimāha, a man of the west.

दक्षिमाहा dachināhā, a man of the south.

उत्तराहा utārāhā, a man of the north.

But पूबा pūbā, a man of the east.

56. As probably connected with these forms we may quote घोड़ाघा ghorāhiyā, a horse-dealer, which is the long form of घोड़ाही ghorāhī, a masculine noun which I have not met in the short form. Compare also बाटोही baṭōhī, a wayfarer, from बाट bāṭ, a road.

57. ṛ ⁱ, weak short form ; ṛi ⁱ, strong short form ; ṛyā, long form.

The weak short form is mainly employed to make feminines from masculine weak short forms ending in a consonant ; as गोर gōr, fair, fem. गोरि gōrⁱ. It also forms feminine nouns generally, as in गोहि gōhⁱ, an iguana ; धारि dā^ri, a line ; भूहि bhūⁱ (the final vowel fully pronounced being preceded by a vowel, see § 10) ; or भूयहि bhūyⁱā (long form), the ground ; लगति laggatⁱ, an assessment ; बाहि bā^hi, an arm ; करघारि karuārⁱ, an oar ; दूरि dūrⁱ, distance ; आगि āgⁱ, fire.

An important class falling under this head consists of feminine verbal nouns formed by adding ṛ ⁱ to the root, as in मारि mārⁱ, a beating ; भूलि bhū^li, an error.

In Hindi most of the above end in long ṛi, as in गोरी gōrī, गोही gōhī. Sometimes in that language the final vowel is dropped, as in बांह bā^h (fem.), an arm ; दूर dūr (fem.), distance ; and in the case of Hindi verbal nouns the इⁱ may be either dropped or the strong form is used, as मार mār (fem.) or मारी mārī, a beating.

Masculine nouns of this class (when in the weak form) end in a fully pronounced इ i, not in इⁱ. They generally represent Sanskrit words ending in ऋ r (or ऋक rka) इक ika, ईय īya, or एन in. Such are नानि nāti, a grandson; दूबि dūbi (masculine, not feminine), dūb grass; पानि pāni, water; केहरि kehari, a lion; उरि uri, a rower छंदि śāṇḍi, a distiller; तेलि tēli, an oil-man; तमोळि tamōḷi, a betel-seller; कोढ़ि kōṛhi, a leper; मानि māni, proud.

Many of these words are also pronounced with a long ई ī, or, in other words, have strong forms in use as well as the weak ones. Thus, we have also नान्नी nāṭī, केहरी kehārī, तमोळी tamōḷī, and so on, but the forms with short इ i are the more usual. So, for feminine nouns, we have माटि māṭī or माटी maṭī, earth; कांकरि kāṅkarī or कंकरी kāṅkārī, a cucumber; कुंजि kūñjī or कुंजी kūñjī, a key; दहि dahī or दही dahī, curdled milk (this word is feminine, not masculine).

The strong form in ई ī also sometimes occurs as the only form for feminine nouns as in मच्छी māchī, a fly; खरी khārī, chalk; लगारी laḡārī, inquisitiveness (and other similar abstract nouns, instead of with the more usual termination नाई ṇāī). We sometimes meet this feminine long ई ī in diminutives, as दाढ़ dārḥ, a long beard, दाढ़ी darḥī, a beard. पुजेरी pujērī, a priest, and मोती motī, a pearl, are examples of masculine words in ई ī, which do not also optionally end in इ i.

The long form is used, quā long form, in the case of any of the foregoing nouns, and then usually has a meaning either familiar, contemptuous, or diminutive, as in माम्मी māmī, a gardener, long form माम्मिया māmiyā or माम्मिया māmiyā, the gardener (familiarly), or (contemptuously) the wretched gardener; पोथी pōthī, a book, पोथिया pōthiyā, a small book. कोढ़ी kōṛhī, leprous, कोढ़िया kōṛhiyā, a poor unfortunate leper.

The same long termination is employed to indicate (a) a man, country, and (b) his profession.

Thus:—

(a) सेहिया senhiyā, a man of Sindh; मगहिया magahiyā, a man of Magah or Magadha; तिरहुतिया tir^hhutiyā, a man of Tirhut or Tirabhukti; मथुरिया mathuriyā, a man of Mathurā; नेपालिया nepāliyā, a man of Nēpāl; पहाड़िया pahāriyā, a man of the pahār or mountain, a mountaineer.

(b) अढ़िया aṛhatiyā, a broker; कमरिया kamariyā, a blanket-wearer, a labourer; घटिया ghaṭiyā, a brāhmaṇ who attends ghāts.

Exhibiting character more generally are फुसिया phusiyā, a flatterer; चिकनिया cikaniyā, one who is always shining and clean (from चिकन cikkan, smooth); and दुखिया dukhiyā, one who is miserable, poverty-stricken.

58. Connected with these इ i-suffixes is आई āi or आर ār, long form आरया aiyā. As in Hindi, this forms abstract nouns. Thus:—भलाई bhalāi, goodness; खटाई khaṭāi, acidity; छोटाई choṭāi, smallness, and hundreds of others.

It is also employed to signify the wages or price of any operation, as in चराई carāi, the wages of a herdsman; पिसाई pisāi, wages of grinding; खेवाई khēwāi, ferry hire; ढोलाई ḍholāi, the cost of carriage. Connected with this are words like धोआई dhōāi, the art of washing (as well as the cost of it); बटनाई baṭnāi, the art of twisting ropes; पटकनाई paṭ^okanāi, a task of winnowing.

The long form in आरया aiyā is employed to form masculine adjectives, such as चरराया gharaiyā, domesticated (Hindi घरेला gharēlā); बनराया banaiyā, wild; गमराया gamaiyā, rustic. It also forms feminine diminutives, such as मढ़रया maṛhaiyā, a small hut. Compare (the short form) तलाई talāi, a small pond (from ताल tāl, a pond). In Hindi, the long form तलारया talaiyā is preferred.

59. रम im (weak form), रमा imā (strong form).—This suffix also occurs in Bengali and Marāṭhī. In Maithilī it is found in the word लालिम lālim or ललिमा lalimā, redness.

60. उ ^u, weak short [form ; ऊ ^ū, strong short form ; उआ ^{uā}, long form.—Where we have weak forms in Maithili, Hindi has strong forms. Thus:—

भाल bhāl^u, a bear ; but Hindi भालू bhālū.

बाउ nāu § 10, iii), a barber ;, नाऊ nāū.

बह bah^u, a son's wife ;, बहू bahū.

In some cases the imperfect उ ^u has altogether disappeared, so that we have—बाल bāl^u or बाल bāl (fem.) sand, but Hindi बालू bālū.

माम mām or even मामा māmā, a maternal uncle, H. मामू māmū.

In all these cases, the existence of the उ ^u as a termination is due to an accident of origin, and the termination does not necessarily indicate any special shade of meaning. Most उ ^u-suffixes can be referred to the Sanskrit termination उक uka, which has also survived without change, and will be found under the क k-suffixes.

The suffix ऊ ^ū of the strong form often has the force of the agent. Thus, उजाड़ ujārū, a destroyer ; खाऊ or (long form) खोआ khauā, an eater ; डाकू ḍākū, a shouter, hence, a robber ; बिगाड़ bigārū, a spoiler ; भाड़ jhārū, a sweeper, a broom. Less distinctively nouns of agency are सहरू sahārū, a citizen (from शहर shahr, a city), and पहरू pahārū, a watchman (from पहर pahar, a watch, a guard). In गमारू gamārū, rustic ; दुलारू dulārū or (long form) दुलारआ dularuā, a darling ; मेहरारू mehārārū, a woman ; and भगेड़ू bhagērū, a runaway, the ऊ ^ū-suffix is simply pleonastic, as explained below, under the head of ल ^l-र ^r-ड़ ^r-suffixes. The suffix implies quality in भकू bhakkū, a fool (Hindi भकुआ bhakuā) ; नकू nakkū, long-nosed (Hindi, the same).

As usual, the long form उआ ^{uā} is commonly employed contemptuously as in भड़आ bharuā, a pimp, but not so always. In दुलारआ dularuā, quoted above, it is an affectionate diminutive, while the meaning is unchanged in खौवा khaud and in गेरुवा gerud, a large kind of pillow.

Parallel to the दाई dāi-suffix we have also an दाज dā-suffix, * with a long form दाउवा or औवा aud. It forms adjectives, as in झगड़ाज jhag^arāū or झगड़ाउवा jhag^arauā, quarrelsome; राहाज rahāū, abiding, a dweller, an old inhabitant. The long form of बिगड़ा bigārū, quoted above, is not the regular बिगड़ाउवा bigaruā, as we might expect, but is बिगड़ावा big^arauā, as if formed from * बिगड़ाज big^arāū.

Most causal verbs have their roots ending in दाव dāw, and from these a number of similar words are framed, such as जड़ाज jarāū, studded (with gems), jewelled. The termination दाव dāw is often written दावो dāo, and this gives verbal-nouns, such as बटकावो aṭkāo, the act of stopping, which should be distinguished from the दाज dā-suffix.

61. बौन्ह aunh or बौन aun (fem. बौन्ह aunhⁱ or बौनि aunⁱ). This termination forms adjectives generally implying a moderate degree of the quality referred to. The final consonant in every case may be either न्ह nh or न n. It agrees in sense with the Hindi termination रला elā. Just as in Hindi we have गोरा gōrā, fair, light-coloured, and गोरेला gorēlā, fairish, rather light-coloured, so we have Maithili गोर gōr, fair, गोरीन्ह goraunh or गोरीन goraun, fairish. Other examples are:—

अन्हरीन्ह anh^araunh, darkish.

अमिलोन्ह amilaunh, acidish.

उजरोन्ह uj^araunh, whitish (उज्जर ujjar, white).

उसरोन्ह us^araunh, saline (उसर ūsar, salt land).

कचोन्ह kacaunh, rawish.

कारिबोन्ह kari^aunh, blackish (कारि kāri, black).

- कसीन्ह kasaunh, rather astringent.
 गोबरौन्ह gob^oraunh, brown land (the colour of गोबर gōbar or cow-dung).
 गोलीन्ह golaunh, globular (गोल gōl, round).
 तिनीन्ह titaunh, bitterish.
 दुधौन्ह dudhaunh, milky.
 धुरौन्ह dhuraunh, dusty (धूरि dhūrī, dust).
 नैनीन्ह nenaunh, youthful (नैना nēnā, a lad).
 पीरौन्ह piraunh, yellowish (पीर pīar, yellow).
 फटौन्ह phaṭaunh, cracked (of milk).
 बुढ़ौन्ह burhaunh, oldish (बूढ़ būṛh, old).
 मठौन्ह maṭhaunh, sour (मट्ठा maṭṭhā, buttermilk).
 मेघौन्ह meghaunh, cloudy.
 लालौन्ह lalaunh, reddish (लाल lāl, red).

In all the above न n may be substituted for न्ह nh.

62. क k.—A number of nouns are formed by the addition of the letter क k preceded by a vowel.

With अक ak, we have common words like सरक sarak or सड़क sarak, a road; पाटक phāṭak, a gate; बइठक baiṭhak, a seat.

Many are primary nouns,—formed from verbs whose roots end in क k. They are the same in form as the roots. Such are¹ अटक aṭak, stoppage; कड़क kaṛak, a crash; कचक kacak, a sprain; कड़क kharak, a clang; खटक khaṭak, 'pit-a-pat'; मचक gahak, reeling in drink; चउंक caũk, starting; चिलक čilak, चमक camak, जलक jhalak, जमक jhamak, दलक dalak, दमक damak, glitter; चटक caṭak, a crack, snap; and many others.

With आक āk or आँक āik, are उड़क urāk, one who flies (not causal, one who causes to fly); पिआक piāk, a drinker; चडाक carhāk, a rider. Adverbs are also made with this suffix, as जाडाक jhaṭāk, suddenly; फडाक phaṭāk, unawares; तडाक taṭāk, immediately; पडाक paṭāk, immediately; खाडाक khaṭāk, immediately.

With उक uk, we have मारुक māruk, quarrelsome, one disposed to fight.

With आक aik, we have सेवारक sebaik (Hindi सेवारत sēwārit), a worshipper.

63. गर gar. This suffix implies agency. Thus कंठगर kāṭ^agar thorny; हथगर hath^agar, able to use the hands; गोङगर gor^agar, able to use the feet. The last two examples occur in a poem describing the babyhood of Kṛṣṇa. As he grew big he began to be able to use his hands and his feet. I have not met the suffix elsewhere in literature, but it is very common in the colloquial language, and can be employed with almost any word in the above sense. In ordinary conversation हथगर hath^agar means 'dexterous.'

64. त t is mostly employed as the suffix of the present participle, usually with अइ ai prefixed, as in देखरत dekhait, seeing. When verbal roots end in vowels, the termination is lightened, as in जाइत jāit, going; सिउत siut, sewing; होअरत hōait or होइत hōit, becoming. The suffix अइत ait, also occurs in words like चढ़इत carhait, a mounted man; डकइत ḍakait, a robber (these two are really present participles); and नतइत natait, a relation (from नात nātā, relationship). There are several words similarly formed from nouns in Hindī, but नतइत natait is the only one which I have noted in Maithili.

65. Of a quite different origin is a group of words ending in आइटि āhaiⁱ, अउटै auṭi, or अउतौ auti. These generally form abstract nouns. Thus: गड़बड़ाइटि gar^abarāhaiⁱ, confusion; गजब-जाइटि gaj^abajāhaiⁱ, confusion; गुलगुलाइटि gul^agulāhaiⁱ, whispering

घनघनाहटि ghan^aghanāhaṭi, a great noise; कानकानाहटि can^a-canāhaṭi, speaking loudly; फरफराहटि phar^apharāhaṭi, throbbing; मनसनाहटि san^asanāhaṭi, humming in the ear, and many other similar forms. It will be observed that all these words contain reduplications, and are more or less onomatopœic. Maithili reserves the termination आहटि āhaṭi, for this class of words, and has no words corresponding to (e.g.) the Hindi खिसियाहट khisiyāhaṭ, fretfulness; खुजलाहट khuj^alāhaṭ, itching. In Maithili these ideas are represented by खिसियाहट khisiyāeb and कुड़ियाहट kurīyāeb, respectively, the termination आहट āeb (of the infinitive or verbal noun) being usually employed in the place of the Hindi आहट āhaṭ. Cf. § 67.

The termination अउटो auṭi or अउतौ auti which is connected with the above, is not so common as in Hindi. It forms an abstract noun in सिधउटो sidhauṭi, uprightness (from सिद्ध siddh, upright). It expresses property in words like जेठउतौ jeṭhauṭi, the share of an eldest son, and बापउटौ bapauṭi, the share of a father. Connected with this idea is चोड़उतौ chorauṭi, ransom; while mere relationship is indicated in words like हारउतौ harauṭi, a particular kind of bamboo with a narrow pipe (cf. Hindi हरोटो harauṭi, a staff, derivation doubtful); सिकउतौ sikauṭi, a reed basket, from सौक sik, a reed; चुनउटौ cunauṭi, a box for holding lime; कजरउटौ kajarauṭi, a box for holding collyrium.

66. न n (fem. नि ni.) weak form; ना nā (fem. नौ nī) strong form.

Suffixes of which न् n is the characteristic letter are common in Maithili (even if we exclude the numerous tatsama words in ana borrowed from Sanskrit). Such suffixes are not employed to make infinitives as they are in Hindi.

Both weak and strong forms are frequently employed to make nouns of the instrument. Such are:—

(a) Masc. weak forms—

चपकन cap^akan, a close-fitting coat (✓चपक capak, compress).

चट्टन chatṭan, a gold-washer's pan.

डाँसन ḍāsan, a washerman's mallet.

दतुचन datuan, a tooth-brush (दाँत dāṭ, a tooth).

पटकन paṭ^akan, an instrument for teasing cotton.

बाढ़न bāṛhan, a broom.

महन mahan, an oil-mill pestle.

लोपन lōpan, a poker.

From causal roots we have—

घेरान gherān, a fence.

अतरावन at^arāwan, the reeds of a loom for keeping the threads apart (cf. Skr. अन्तर antara).

चपरावन cap^arāwan, a perforated block of iron for shaping nailheads.

लगावन lagāwan, a stuffed calf-skin shown to a cow to make its milk flow, literally, 'an appliance,' hence 'an imposture.'

(b) Fem. weak forms—

चाल्नि cālanⁱ, a sieve.

चाथोनि chāonⁱ, an encampment (चाथ chāw, thatch).

पौचनि pīanⁱ, tobacco for smoking (as distinct from snuff).

लाड़नि lāranⁱ, a grain-parcher's broom.

(c) Masc. strong forms—

अखैना akhainā, a threshing rake.

अँचना āc^anā, a poker.

खिखोरना khikhor^anā, a weaver's scraper.

करना kar^anā, a curd-vessel.

भपना jhap^anā, ढकना ḍhak^anā, or ढपना ḍhap^anā, a cover.

भरना jhar^anā, a broom.

पिटना piṭ^anā, a cobbler's mallet.

भरना bhar^anā, the stuffing of a quilt.

मोचना moç^anā, a barber's tweezers (मोँछ mō'ch, a moustache).

From causal roots, we have—

खेलाओन khelāon or खेलौना khelaunā, a toy.

छोरोना choraunā, a door-key.

बिछाओन bichāon or बिछाओना bichaonā or बिछौना bichaunā, bedding.

मिलौना mīlāunā, a potter's smoother.

हथौना hathaunā, a toddy-vessel.

(d) Fem. strong forms. These are the most common of all—

खुरचनौ khurac^anī, a pot-scraper.

उबहनौ ubah^anī, a well-rope.

कटरनौ kaṭar^anī, a cobbler's awl.

घिरनौ ghir^anī, a pulley.

बिटकनौ chiṭ^akanī, a door-bolt.

हेवनौ chēw^anī, a potter's cutting string.

हेनौ chēnī, a chisel.

ठेकनौ ṭhek^anī, a prop.

नथुनौ nathunī, a nose-ring.

नहरनौ nahar^anī, a nail parer, a gouge.

बटनौ baṭ^anī, a silk-reel.

बैसनौ bais^anī, a seat.

मथनौ math^anī, a kind of hammer.

महनौ mah^anī, a churn-dasher.

From causal bases—

चलौनी calaunī, a windlass handle.

छलौनी chalaunī, the cover of an ass's pad.

तरौनी taraunī, a sweetmeat-stand.

The same suffixes are also employed to indicate an occupation, trade, or profession. Thus :—

कोड़न kōṛan, hoeing.

पिसान pisān, the trade of corn-grinding.

लेन देन lên dên, taking (and) giving, trade, traffic.

पटावन paṭāwan, irrigation.

उछटनौ uchṭanī, weeding.

कटनौ kaṭanī, reaping.

कमनौ kamanī, weeding.

करोनौ keraunī, weeding.

टिपनौ ṭipnī, superficial weeding.

टुंगनौ ṭūḡanī, a special method of reaping.

फरनौ pharanī, the application of the ploughshare (फर phar), the first ploughing of the season.

ढंगोनौ ḍēḡanī, separating grain from the ears by beating on the ground.

I have not noted any strong masculine forms in न nā in this sense.

The same suffixes are further extended to imply the result of any occupation, or even a more indefinite connection with the root. Thus :—

चारन chāran, a grass thatch.

धावन dhāvan, opium-washings.

बहारन bahāran, sweepings.

चटनौ caṭanī (✓ चाट cāṭ, lick), a relish with food, 'chetnee.'

छितनौ chītanī, a broken basket.

Causal bases sometimes take the suffixes to indicate a ceremonial observance. Thus we have :—

कुमावन cumāwan, the kissing ceremony in a marriage.

चेकौनौ chekaunī, the stopping at the door, part of a marriage ceremony.

मुदेखौनी mudekhaunī, presents given to a bride on showing her face.

Compare मंगनी māḡanī, a betrothal.

A few nouns of agency are formed with the strong form of this suffix. Those which I have noted are all vulgar and indecent abusive terms, such as हगना hagānā, मुतना mutānā, or पदना padānā. They all imply that the action indicated is done to excess.

67. ब h, अब ab, एब eb.—This forms infinitives and verbal nouns, as in देखब dēkhab, to see, the act of seeing. When a verbal root ends in आ ā or ओ ō, the suffix is एब eb, not अब ab. Thus पाएब pāeb, to obtain; जाएब jāeb, to go; होएब hōeb, to become. In देब dēb, to give, and लेब lēb, to take, the junction vowel is dropped.

When this suffix is added to intransitive roots in आ ā, it also forms abstract nouns, as in खिसियाएब khisiyāeb, fretfulness (from खिसिया khisiyā, to be fretful), कुड़ियाएब kurīyāeb, to be angry. Cf. § 65.

68. ल l-र r-ड़ r-suffixes.—The letter ल l is characteristic of many noun forms.

The simplest is अल al, (fem. अलि ali), or (strong form) अला ālā (fem. अली ālī).

अल al forms past participles, such as देखल dēkhal (fem. देखलि dēkhalī), seen. In the case of verbs ending in vowels, it is sometimes उल ul, इल il, एल el or ओल ol. Thus सिवल sial or सिउल siul, sewn; मुरल mul, dead; आएल āel, come; पाओल pāol, obtained.

It also forms adjectives on the same lines, such as दुखाएल dukhāel, grieved (also a past participle); निनाएल nināel, drowsy; डेराएल derāel, fearful; घमाएल ghamāel, perspiring; अँघाएल aūḡāel, sleepy; सरमाएल sarāmāel (from شرم sharm, shame) bashful; and many others. All these may be looked upon as participles of neuter verbs, whose roots end in आ ā.

The same termination is employed to make verbal nouns or infinitives, with an oblique form in आ ā, as देखल dēkhal, the act of seeing; देखला सँ dekh^{alā} sā, from seeing.

The strong form अला alā is generally employed to make diminutives, and its feminine अली alī is used for things of a still smaller size. Thus चकला ca^kalā, a paste-board (from चाक cāk, a wheel); टिकुली ṭikulī, a wafer; कोठली koṭh^{alī}, a small room; तमला ta^salā, a brass vessel, तसली ta^salī, a small one.

Another connected suffix is इल il, strong form इला ilā, which is not so common in Maithilī as elsewhere. It forms possessive adjectives from substantives. The only true Maithilī examples which I have noted with certainty are मांभिला māṅhilā, the middle of three brothers, or the second of four brothers; and सांभिल sāṅhil, the third son of a family of four or more.

Of much more frequent occurrence is the closely related अरल ail, with the same meaning. It is often found where literary Hindī has other suffixes. Thus:—

Maithilī.	Hindī
तोड़ल tonail , pot-bellied	ताँदरल tōdail .
धोषरल dhodhail , pot-bellied	धोषाला dhōdhālā .
दंगरल dāgaril , a brawler	दंगरत dāgarit .
बोहरल bojhail , load-bearing	बुभरल bujhail .

In बाँसरला bāsailā, a young bamboo, the strong form, like अला alā forms a diminutive.

Another form of अरला ailā is एला ēlā, which we have in सउतेला sautēlā, of or belonging to a co-wife, and (feminine diminutive) खम्हली khamhēlī, a small pillar.

Parallel to इल il, we have उल ul in काजुल kājūl, a worker, bread-winner. Its strong form उला ulā, fem. उली ulī, is more common, and, like the other strong forms, the feminine usually is a diminutive. Thus:—

टिकुली ṭikulī, a wafer.

गचुली gachulī, a young tree.

कठुली kaṭhulī, a small wooden bowl.

खटुली khaṭulī, a small bamboo litter.

गेरुली gerulī, a small pillow (गेरुआ geruā, a large pillow).

अंठुली āṭhulī, a small आँठी āṭhī or fruit-stone.

बातुल bātul, a stammerer; बातुली batulī, a pitiful, stammering woman.

And many others. Occasionally the u is strengthened to ओ ō (cf. एला elā above), as in टिकोला tikolā, a young mango.

69. Cognate to the ल l-suffixes are those whose characteristic letter is ड r or र r.

The suffix अड़ा arā (fem. अड़ी ari) is as pleonastic as the long form in अवा awā, which every noun can take. Perhaps in the masculine it adds a shade of contempt. In the feminine it gives a diminutive meaning. This suffix is not so common in Maithili in the west, अरा arā (fem. अरी ari) being more usual. An example is भाँपड़ा jhōpārā or खाँपड़ा khōpārā, a hut; feminine भाँपड़ी jhōpārī or खाँपड़ी khōpārī, a small hut. So, from मटुका maṭukā, a large vessel, we have मटकुड़ी maṭakurī, a milk-pail; टुकड़ा ṭukārā or टुकरा ṭukārā, a piece; टुकड़ी ṭukārī or टुकरौ ṭukarī, a small piece.

The suffix is sometimes strengthened to एडू ērū, as in भगेडू bhagērū, a runaway, fugitive.

The connected अरा arā, (fem. अरी ari) is used with similar meaning, and is more often met with in Maithili. Examples are चकौ cakki or चकरौ cakarī, a mill-stone; गेठरौ geṭharī, a bundle; मूंगरौ mūṅarī, a small grain-mallet; टुकरा ṭukārā, -रौ -rī, as above.

Parallel to the suffix ओला olā, we have औरौ aurī in घमोरौ ghamaurī, small heat-spots, prickly-heat, from घाम ghām, heat.

70. There is another pair of ल l- and र r-suffixes preceded the letter आ ā.—Some of the examples are merely deformed tatsamas like किरपाल kir°pāl, Sanskrit कृपालुः kṛpāluḥ. But others are tadbhavas. The termination is आल āl (fem. आलि ālī) or आर ār (fem. आरि ārī). Strong forms are आला ālā (fem. आली ālī) or आरा ārā (fem. आरी ārī). This has several derivations, according to the particular words with which it is used.¹ In putting them here together, no attempt is made to consider derivation. All words formed with these suffixes are of a very similar nature, and for practical purposes they can all be considered at the same time. The ल l-suffix is the less common of the pair. We have दड़ियाल darhiyāl, bearded, from दाढ़ी darhī, a beard. With the र r-suffix we have दुधारि dudhārī or दुधारी dudhārī (feminine), milch (of a cow); पियार piyār (fem. पियारि piyārī), a beloved one, as against the Hindi प्यार pyārā (fem. -री -rī). पेटारा peṭārā, a basket-box, fem. पेटारी peṭārī, used in a diminutive sense; गमार gamār, rustic; दुलार dullār, a darling (Skr. दुर्लभः durlabhaḥ). The last two words often take an additional final ū-suffix. Thus गमार gamārū, दुलार dulārū (or long form employed affectionately. दुलारवा dularuā), without change of meaning. So also the Sanskrit-Prakrit महिला mahilā becomes मेहरारू meharārū, a woman.

71. The suffix पन pan पन ppan, आपन āpan, is as common in Maithilī as in other Indo-Aryan vernaculars. It forms abstract nouns from adjectives or substantives. Thus:—

बुगलपन cugal°pan, backbiting.

दुधरपन chudhar°pan, meanness (दूधर chūdhar = शुद्र sūdra).

छोटपन choṭ°pan, smallness.

ठगपन thag°pan, cheating.

दढ़पन ḍṛh°pan, firmness.

धूर्तपन dhūrt°pan, knavery.

नेनपन nen^apan, childhood.

बल्लेकपन balel^apan, foolishness.

बहेरपन bahe^rpan, ne'erdoweelness.

बुड़िपन buripan, foolishness (बुड़ि būri, a fool).

बुढ़पन burh^apan or बुढ़पन burhappan, old age.

भलपन bhalāpan or भलपन bhal^apan, honesty.

भौड़पन bhā^rpan or भौड़पन bhā^rpan, rogery.

रँड़पन rāⁱpan, widowhood (रँड़ rāⁱ, a widow).

लंगटपन lāga^tpan or नंगटपन nāga^tpan, blackguardliness (लंगट laṅga^t, नंगट naṅga^t or नंगट nāga^tā, naked).

लगरपन laga^rpan, inquisitiveness (लगार lagār = 'Paul Pry').

लड़िकपन larik^apan, boyhood.

सेछानपन seān^apan, full-ageness (when a young lady has, as we should say in England, 'her hair up,' she is सेछानि seānⁱ).

It will be observed that the suffix is added even to tatsama words.

72. वाह wāh (fem. वाहि wāhⁱ).—This is the regular termination of nouns of agency and is the equivalent in meaning of the Hindi वाला wālā. Thus:—

अनवाह an^awāh, the man in charge of the other (अन्य anya) or spare pair of bullocks, when ploughing is going on.

कतरवाह katar^awāh, one who cuts sugarcane for feeding a sugarcane press.

करिवाह karin^awāh, a man who works a करीन karīn or irrigation lever.

कोदरिवाह kodari^awāh, a worker with a कोदार् kodārⁱ or mattock.

गछवाह gach^awāh, one who climbs trees (गछ gāch, a tree).

गँजवाह gāj^awāh, one who uses a गँज gājⁱ, or fish trap.

गड़िवाह gari^awāh, a cart-driver.

गुनवाह gun^awāh, the man who tows a boat (गुन gun, a rope).

गैवाह gaiwāh, a tender of cows.

घोड़वाह ghor^awāh, a groom.

चरवाह car^awāh, one who grazes cattle.

झल्लिवाह jhalīwāh, a cymbal-player (झल्लो jhālī, cymbals).

टोकवाह tok^awāh, an asker (टोक tök, ask).

पैनवाह pen^awāh, a cattle-driver (पैना painā, a cattle-whip).

बधवाह badh^awāh, a field watchman (बाध bādh, village lands).

मौरवाह mōr^awāh, one who drives cattle round and round in a mill (मौर mōr, a turn).

लठिवाह lathīwāh, a wielder of cudgels.

सुनवाह sun^awāh, one who hears complaints.

हथिवाह hathīwāh, an elephant-keeper.

हरवाह har^awāh, a ploughman.

The suffix is optionally spelt and pronounced बाह bāh, so that we may have अनबाह an^abāh, कतरबाह katur^abāh, and so on. Further, an abstract noun can be formed from these nouns of agency by adding the fem. suffix ई. Thus गड़िबाहि garīwāhī, the profession of a cart-driver. So from the ✓ चार cār, graze (active), we have चरबाह car^abāh, a cattle-grazer, and thence चरबाहि car^abāhī, cattle-grazing.

73. सार sār.—This is not a proper suffix, being simply a derivative form of शाला śālā, a house. In Maithili it is used as a suffix, and not as a member of a compound word. The whole compound is treated as if it were one word, with the usual shortening of the antepenultimate vowel. Thus, from—

हाथी hāthī, an elephant, we have हथिसार hathisār, an elephant-stable.

घोड़ ghōr, a horse, we have घोड़सार ghor^asār, a horse-stable.

छात्रि chātri, a pupil (Skr. छात्र chātra), छत्रिसार chātrisār, a school.

Similarly, कनिसार kanisār, a furnace for parching grain, and बनिसार banisār, a prison.

CHAPTER II.

GENDER, NUMBER AND CASE.

74. The noun has two Genders,—Masculine and Feminine. Words derived direct from the Sanskrit, which were originally neuter, generally become masculine in Maithili.

The most important exceptions to this last rule are आँखि ākhī, an eye; दहि dahī or दही dahī, curdled milk; दूरि dūri, distance; and पुस्तक pustak, a book; which are feminine. आगि āgi, fire, though derived from a masculine Sanskrit word, is feminine in Maithili.

75. There are two numbers, the singular and plural.

The plural number of nouns in Maithili is simply formed by the addition of a noun signifying multitude. Those most commonly used are सब sabh and सबहि *sabah*¹ meaning 'all,' and लोकनि lok^ani meaning 'people.' The last is only used with animate objects. सब sabh and सबहि *sabah*¹ can be used indifferently either before or after the qualified noun. Thus नेना सबक nēnā sabhak नेना सबहिक nēnā sab^ahik, सब नेनाक sabh nēnāk, सबहि नेनाक sabah nēnāk and नेना लोकनिक nēnā lok^anik are all possible forms of the genitive plural of नेना nēnā, a boy. लोकनि lok^ani, be it observed, can only be used after the qualified noun. In all circumstances, whatever be the order of the words, the postposition deciding the case comes last.

76. The same rules partially apply to pronouns: but, in addition to the word signifying plurality, many of them have entirely new bases for their plural forms.

77. Throughout the following Paradigms, I shall generally use only the word सब sabh to designate the plural; but it must always be understood that, unless specially forbidden, सबहि *sabah*¹ and लोकनि lok^ani can also be used.

¹ The old Maithili poet Vidyāpati sometimes has सबहु sabah^u, instead of सबहि sabah¹. Compare song l. 6.

78. Organic cases.—There was a case-termination हि hi or हिं hī and another हु hu or हुं hū in Apabhraṃśa Māgadhi Prakrit. These have survived in Maithili in the forms हि hi, हिं hī, हु hu and हुं hū, which can be used for practically any oblique case. They are not often heard nowadays, except in poetry and proverbial sayings, but they are common in these. They are also frequently met in the old poetry of Vidyāpati.

Examples of the use of हि hi and हिं hī in the various cases are as follows :—

Accusative—सत्रुहि आन satruhī ān, he brings an enemy.

पड़रुहिं मार paṛaruhī mār, beat the buffalo calves.

Instrumental—बलहि balahī, by force, violently.

अचरहिं भारि भुरि दितहुं acarahī jhārī jhuri ditahū, I would have swept it with my body-cloth.

Ablative—नैदहि सिख चरबाहि अहीर nēdahī sikh carabāhī ahīr, from boyhood cowherds learn cattle-tending.

Locative—जमुना हरदहि jamunā haradahī, in the Jamunā-pool.

अदकहि मिंदुर मेठ गेल adakahī sindur mēṭ gēl, in her astonishment, the vermilion was rubbed off.

गदरी खेतहि सुखाग्रल gadārī khētahī sukhāgral, the unripe crop has dried up in the fields.

The following are examples of हु hu and हुं hū :—

Dative—सबहु जयोचित केल परनाम sabahū jathōcit kail parā-nām, to all he made meet reverence.

Ablative—ओतहु otahū, from there.

किहु नहिं ततहुं भेल kichū nahī tatahū bhēl, nothing came to pass from there.

Genitive.—अकरहुहुं अलप्रक डोल akārūhū alaprak ḍol, an opportunity for the coming of Akrūr.

Locative.—पचरहुं परम निपुन pacharāhū param nipun, exceedingly skilled in wrestling.

कोपड़ कटु नहिं भाखथि कबड़ kōpah^u kaṭ^u nahⁱ bhākhathⁱ kabah^u, even at any time he speaketh not harshly in anger.

Most of the above examples come from poetry, in which a final इ or उ is fully pronounced, but I have written them as if they were prose, so as to illustrate the grammatical forms.

In modern prose Maithili the form हिं hⁱ is contracted to ँ ĩ and is reserved for the termination of the Instrumental while हि hⁱ is contracted to ए ē, and is reserved for the termination of the Locative. Examples will be found below, in dealing with the separate cases.

79. Inorganic cases.—In Maithili (except in the organic Instrumental formed by adding ँ ĩ, and the organic Locative formed by adding ए ē) cases are formed by suffixing postpositions. In Hindōstāni these postpositions are added directly to the noun without any change of the latter. Thus, फल का phal kā, of fruit, नारी को nārī kō, to the woman. But, when a tadbhava noun (which is not a noun of relationship) ends in आ ā, that आ ā is changed to ए ē before a postposition. Thus, from घोड़ा ghōṛā, a horse, we have घोड़े का ghōṛē kā, of a horse. In Maithili the position is almost exactly reversed. Tadbhava nouns in आ ā are never changed, while certain other nouns do change before postpositions. In other words, the oblique form in Maithili is always the same as the direct form except in the case of certain nouns in इ i, उ u, न n, ब b, ल l and र r. For instance घोड़ा ghōṛā, a horse, has its genitive घोड़ा केर ghōṛā kēr, not घोड़े केर ghōṛē kēr.

80. The following are the rules for ascertaining the oblique form in the singular of those nouns which take it:—

(i) All verbs form a feminine verbal noun by adding इ i to the root (see § 57). Thus देख dēkh, to see; root देख dēkh; verbal noun देखि dēkhⁱ, seeing, in the sense of ‘the act of seeing.’ All these verbal nouns in इ i have an oblique form in ऐ ai, as in देखे के dēkhai kē, for seeing. The oblique form itself is often used as a dative of purpose, as in ओकरा देखै गेल बलछं okarā dēkhai gēl chalah̃, I had gone for seeing him, i.e., to see him. Other examples of the use of this oblique form are:—

हम चरैक (i.e., चरै+क) लेल ओकरा बाँडलें रहैत छी, ham caraik (i.e., carai+k) lāl okarā chārolē̃ rahĩt chī, I have let it (a goat) loose for the sake of grazing (i.e., to graze).

दौड़ल सलहस केँ पकड़ै daural salah̃s kē̃ pakṛṛai, they ran to catch Salhēs.

बल्लहीह हरवा बेचै balah̃ih harawā bēcai, she went to sell strings of beads.

अपना चढ़ैक घोड़ी देलक apnā carhaik ghōṛī dēlak, he gave the mare of his own riding (i.e., his own riding mare).

In the case of the roots दे dē, give, and ल lē, an म m (or sometimes ब b) is inserted in the oblique form. Thus, देर dēi, the act of giving, oblique देमै dēmai. Verbs whose roots end in इ i insert a अ a ब b throughout. Thus √ पि pi, drink, verbal noun, पिबि pibi, oblique पिबै pibai. Examples of these forms are:—

हमरा एक बकरी लेमैक अछि hamarā ek bakarī lēmaik achī, to me of taking one she-goat there is (necessity), i.e., I must get a she-goat.

In the following we have also the direct verbal noun भरि bharī, the filling:—

नेना सब केँ पिबैक भरि भै जाइत छैक nēnā sabh kē̃ pibaik bharī bhai jāit chaik, there becomes the filling of the drinking for the children, i.e., we get enough for the children's drinking.

Note that some people write and pronounce the final छे ai of this oblique form as if it were छै ā, thus चरैक carāk, बेचै bēcā, etc.

This oblique form of verbal nouns is very frequently employed in the construction of compound verbs, under the head of which several more examples will be found.

81. (ii) There are two other verbal nouns ending in ब b (§ 67) and ल l (§ 68), which have the same meaning. Thus देखब dekhāb, the act of seeing, to see; देखल dekha', the act of seeing. The former is commonly employed as an infinitive, but both are true nouns, and are thus declined:—

Nominative Singular	देखब dekhāb	देखल dekhal
Oblique Singular	देखबा dekhābā	देखला dekha'lā
Organic Instrumental Singular.	देखबे dekhābē	देखले dekha'lē
Organic Locative Singular.	देखबे dekhābē , sometimes written देखबे dekhābai.	देखले dekha'lē , sometimes written देखले dekha'lai.

In the second noun न n is sometimes written for ल. We thus have the compound लेले जाग्रब lēlē jāeb or लेने जाग्रब lēnē jāeb, to go by means of taking, to take away.

Examples of the employment of these two verbal nouns are:—

(a) 1. Direct forms—

ऊनक कानब सुनि hunak kānab suni, having heard his weeping.

हाड़ब की रहौ chārab kī rahau, what letting go was there to you, why did you let go ?

पछताग्रब pachā'tāeb, the act of regretting. The oblique form is पछतेबा pachā'taibā, see below.

2. Oblique cases—

प्रकरा मारबा में ekara mārābā mē, in killing it.

खोकरा तकबा में in searching for it (✓ ताक tāk, direct verbal noun ताकब tākab).

(b) 1. Direct forms—

ओ कहल करैबकि ō kahal karaiachⁱ, he does speaking, i.e., gretting.

i.e., (owing to) the want of rain.

there from wandering about.

दौर धूप कैला सँ किछु नहिं हँत daur dhūp kailā sã kicch^u nahī hait, nothing will result (lit. be) from running and fussing.

पछतोला सँ को भै सकैबकि pach^ataulā sã kī bhai sakaiachⁱ
what (good) can result from lamenting ?

लगल lag^alē, on the attaching, i.e., immediately.

82. Besides the above, several other nouns (including adjectives) ending in ड r, ढ rh, न n, र r, ल l, and occasionally other letters also, have oblique forms in आ ā. I have noted the following as certain instances :—

बड़ bar , great	Oblique form	बड़ा barā .
अखाड़ akhārḥ , an arena	..	अखाड़ा akhārḥā .
आँगन āḡan , a courtyard	..	आँगना āḡanā .

To these may be added :—

आगँ agū or आगँ āgū , front	..	आगँ agū , आगँ āgā .
पछँ pachū or पाछँ pāchū , rear	..	पछँ pachū , पाछँ pāchū .

दिस dis , a direction	..	दिसा disā .
धनुष dhanukh , a bow	..	धनुषा dhanukhā .

It is necessary to remark that these oblique forms are not invariably employed. We often find the direct form employed instead of the oblique one.

83. Examples are :—

(1) Direct forms—

बड़ा अनुरोध बड़ा पय राख bar (direct) anurōdh barā (oblique)

फोटरा बरा दीहा में गार भड़कबैत phoṭ^arā barā dīhā mē gāi bhar^akabait achⁱ, Phoṭ^arā is scaring the cattle in Barā village (or Barā Dīh).

कोन दिशा के अबैत चोछे कहइ बुझाय kōn disā kē abait hōai kahah^a bujhāy, tell clearly towards what direction he is coming.

मारब धनुखा देब खंसाय mārab dhanukhā dēb khāsāy, I will strike him with my bow (i.e., with an arrow from my bow) and fell him.

It will be seen subsequently that these oblique forms in ā are much more frequently employed in the case of pronouns than in the case of nouns substantive.

84. As there is no organic plural in Maithili, the question of a plural oblique form does not arise. The nouns of multitude, सभ sabh, सबहि sabahi, and लोकनि lok^ani, are treated exactly like singular nouns. Thus, the organic instrumental plural of नेना nēnā, a boy, may (amongst other forms) be नेना सभें nēnā sabhē or सभ नेनैं sabh nēnē.

85. There are (counting the vocative) eight cases,—viz., Nominative, Accusative, Instrumental, Dative, Ablative, Genitive, Locative and Vocative.

86. The NOMINATIVE is used before all kinds and before all tenses of verbs. There is no case of the Agent as in Hindōstānī.

87. The ACCUSATIVE is the same in form as the nominative. When a noun has an oblique form this is sometimes employed instead of the accusative by the vulgar. Thus, in the Song of Salāhēs, Mālin says बालपन अचरा बाबलि bāl^apan ac^arā (not आचर ācur) bānhalī, (from my) girlhood I have kept my body-cloth tied (over my body), i.e., have kept my bosom covered.

In cases in which Hindōstānī would employ the postposition को kō, Maithilī employs the dative postposition के kē, कै kē, कै kaṛ, or काँ kāṁ, as in बनौधिया दोड़ल सलहेस केँ पकड़ै banaudhiā daṛal Salāhēs kē pak^aṛai, the Banaudhiās ran to seize Salāhēs.

Note that in old Maithilī, the nominative and accusative often ends in ए ē, which is also an old Māgadhi Prakrit termination of the nominative case. Thus, Vidyāpati (i, 1) says, कामिनि करछु सिमाने kāminī karuc sinānē, the fair one does bathing.

88. The INSTRUMENTAL denotes the instrument, means, cause, or agent, by which a thing is done. It in no way corresponds to the 'agent case' of Hindōstānī of which the suffix is ने nē. It is usually formed by the suffix सँ sāṁ or सैं sāṁ of which सउँ saṁ and सौँ sōṁ are occasional varieties, which are more common in the older language.

The Organic Instrumental referred to above is formed by adding रँ ṛ, which is sometimes (especially in old poetry) written वरँ vaṛ. It is added as follows :—

(a) When the noun ends in आ ā, the रँ ṛ is substituted for the final vowel. If the noun has an oblique form ending in आ ā, t is added to the oblique form in the same way. Thus कथा kathā a story, instrumental कथें kathē, by a story; नेना nēnā, a boy, नेनं nēnē, by a boy; आंचर ācar, a body-cloth, oblique form आंचरा ācarā, instrumental आंचरें ācarē.

(b) In the case of all other nouns, the रं ē is added without elision of the final vowel, but if the latter is long, it is shortened, and if it is one of the imperfect vowels इⁱ and उ^u, it is fully pronounced. Thus फल phal, a fruit, फलें phalē, by a fruit; पानि pāni, water, instrumental पानिं pāniē; बेटी bēṭī, a daughter, instrumental बेटीं bēṭīē (not बेटीरं bēṭīrē); सबहि sabahī, all, instrumental सबहिरं sabahīē; भालु bhālū, a bear, instrumental भालुरं bhālūē. The following are examples of the use of this organic instrumental:—

कमर बांधे चुरिं कटारें kamar bādhē churiē kaṭārē, he binds his waist with knife and dagger.

गौरि मागु गौरबें आन्हुरि gōrī māgū gāurabē ānhari, a fair woman is blinded by pride.

रं कथं ई भेल ē kathē ī bhēl, owing to this, it happened by conversation (i.e., owing to the conversation). रं कथें ē kathē is not 'by this conversation, which would be एहि कथें ehī kathē.

जें कानें श्रीमद्भागवत सुनल कोरान नहिं सुनि सकैही jē kānē śrī-madbhāgavat sūnal korān nahī sūni sakaihī, I cannot hear the Qur'ān by the ear with which I have heard the Śrīmad Bhāgavata.

89. The DATIVE is formed by suffixing the postposition के kē, कं kē, कै kaī, or काँ kāi.

90. The ABLATIVE is formed by suffixing the postposition सँ sā or सेँ saī, of which सँ saū and सेँ sē (more common in the older language) are varieties. Verbs of speaking and asking govern the ablative of the person addressed as in Hindōstānī.

91. The sign of the GENITIVE is क k, which, at the present day, is no longer a postposition, but is a suffix attached to, and forming

One word with the base. Thus नेनाक nēnāk, of a boy; पानिक pānik, of water; नेना लोकनिक nēnā lokanik of boys. When the base ends in an imperfect र ⁱ or व ^v, this vowel is pronounced fully in the genitive. Thus सबधिक subāhik, of all; भालुक bhāluk, of a bear. When the base ends in a consonant, the vowel अ a is inserted before the क k. Thus, फलक phalak, of a fruit. When a noun has a separate oblique form, the क k is added to this. Thus बड़ bar, great, oblique form बड़ा barā, genitive बड़ाक barāk, of a great man; अपना चढ़ैक घोड़ा apnā carhaik ghōrā, the horse of his own riding, his own riding horse.

In Southern Maithili, a long vowel is shortened before this क k. Thus नेनक nēnak, not नेनाक nēnāk, of a boy.

The postposition केर kēr is also employed to form the genitive. This is more common in poetry and in the older language. Examples are नेना केर nēnā kēr, of a boy; फल केर phal kēr, of fruit. In the case of personal pronouns, the के kē of केर kēr is dropped, and the remaining र r becomes a suffix, as in हमर hamar, my.

The suffixes क k and केर kēr of the genitive are by origin adjectival, like the Hindōstānī का kā, के kē, को kō, but when added to nouns substantives they are in modern Maithili immutable, just as in the case of Bengali. They do not change either for gender or for case. Thus we have नेनाक बाप nēnāk bāp, the boy's father; नेनाक बाप केर nēnāk bāp kēr, of the boy's father; नेनाक माई nēnāk māi, the boy's mother; नेनाक भाइ सब nēnāk bhāi sabh, the boy's brothers. This rule does not hold good in the case of pronouns, the genitives of which have an oblique form.

92. The LOCATIVE indicates the place in, or the time at, which a thing is done. It is usually formed by the postposition में mē, of which मँ mā and मौ mō are optional forms. Of these three मौ mō is the oldest, and is generally found in poetry. The organic form of the Locative ends in र r, as explained above. It is not much used in modern prose Maithili, though it is frequent in poetry, where it is sometimes written घुर or घर ai. In the modern colloquial dialect it is, however, often heard in phrases such as घरे gharē gharē, in every house; गमे गमे gāmē gāmē, in every village, and so on. As an example from classical poetry we may quote Vidyāpati (v. 3) जाग्रव जोषठ घाटे jāgṛab aṅghaṭ ghāṭē, I shall go on the rugged river bank.

The following examples are all taken from one folk-song,—that of Dīnā Bhadrī.

घड़ि एक चलबे पहर बिति गेल gharī ek calābē pahar bitī gēl, in (i.e., after) going for one (or two) half-hours, a watch of the day passed.

चलह जोरे मिलि calāh jaurē milī, having joined in company (with us), come along.

छवि ठामे chī thāmē, in this place.

बेना बरा डीहे रहयि बनेर bēnā barā ḍihē rahathī anēr, Bēnā is wandering loose in Barā ḍih.

मुसाऊक दोकाने मना परि गेल musāhuk dokānē manā parī gēl, there was a prohibition (i.e., they were stopped) at the shop of Musāhu.

एक जुम तमाकू मोरा नामे नहिं चढ़ावै ek jum tamākū mōrā nāmē nahī carhāvai, they do not offer a single chew of tobacco in my name.

सात नींदे सुतलि बलैक फेकुनी sāt nīḍē sūtalī chaluik phekunī, Phekunī was sleeping in seven sleeps (i.e., was sound asleep).

बड़ भोरे छेकल दुआर bar bhōrē chēkul duār, in the early morning you have obstructed my door.

93. The VOCATIVE usually takes the same form as the nominative. In speaking to a person of lower rank or age, the long form of the noun is preferred. Thus, बेना nēnā, a boy, becomes रो

बेनबा rau nen^owā. बेनी nēnī, a girl, becomes गै नैनिया gai nēniyā.
 रघू Raghū, a proper name, becomes रौ रघुबा rau Raghūā.

The following interjections are used with the vocative:—

- (a) With masculine inferiors,—or familiarly, रौ rau, रे re.
- (b) With masculine equals or superiors, ओ au, हो hau, हे hē.
- (c) With feminine inferiors,—or familiarly, गै gai.
- (d) With feminine equals or superiors, है hai.

CHAPTER III.

DECLENSION OF NOUNS.

94. There is in Maithili really only one declension, but as the forms of some classes of nouns vary slightly from each other before some of the postpositions, it will be convenient to consider nouns in three classes.

95. I. The first class will consist of all nouns ending in बा ā or बी ī.

II. The second class will consist of all nouns ending in a consonant.

III. The third class will consist of all other nouns.

The difference between these three classes will be noticed on comparison of the Instrumental and Vocative singular.

96. It will be remembered that every noun has three forms, a short, a long, and a redundant (see §§ 41 ff.). In the following pages I shall only deal with the short form. As every long and redundant form ends in बा ā or बी ī, they all belong to the first class. Thus, फल phal, a fruit, belongs to the second class. Its long form is फलबा phal^owā, which belongs to the first class, its instrumental singular being फलवै phal^owē.

CHAPTER IV.

ADJECTIVES AND GENDER GENERALLY.

104. As the rules for the formation of the feminine of adjectives are the same as those for the formation of the feminine of substantives, it will be convenient to treat the whole subject of gender at the present opportunity.

105. Adjectives are liable to change for gender. That is to say, when agreeing with a feminine noun they are put in the feminine. Thus, the word ऐसन aisan means 'such,' and its feminine is ऐसनि aisanⁱ. The word झपट jhapṭ, a pounce, is feminine, and hence we have in the story of Salāhēs the phrase ऊँसुनि कपट मारै aisanⁱ jhapat mārāi, (the parrot) makes such a pounce (that—). I have said that adjectives are liable to change for gender, but in practice the change very rarely takes place. In ordinary conversation the masculine gender is quite commonly used instead of the feminine, and, indeed, except to paṇḍits grammatical gender is almost unknown; that is to say, adjectives only become feminine when applied to female living creatures. The following rules as to gender apply to substantives, as well as adjectives.

* Usually spelt thus in Maithilī.

106. It is a well-known fact that in Hindōstānī the adjectives which are tadbhavas, and which end in आ ā are in reality the only ones in that language which are affected by gender. Tatsama adjectives imported direct from the Sanskrit, and forming their feminines after the model of that language, do not form part of the living spoken stock of the Hindi dialect, but belong rather to the dead language of the books. The same is only partly true in Maithilī. In this language we find not only tadbhava but even some tatsama adjectives forming feminines distinctly the property of the language in which they have been adopted.

107. RULE I.—The first rule to be observed is that in Maithilī, tadbhava words ending in a consonant form their feminine in short ई i.

Examples:—

Masculine.	Feminine.
गोर gōr , fair	गो ^{रि} gōrⁱ .
बड़ bar , great	ब ^{ड़ि} barⁱ .
बुधियार budhiyār , wise	बुधिया ^{रि} budhiyārⁱ .
अधलाह adh^{alāh} , bad	अधला ^{हि} adh^{alāh}ⁱ .
गमार gamār , rustic	गमा ^{रि} gamārⁱ .
टेढ़ tērh , crooked	टे ^{ढ़ि} tērhⁱ .

108. RULE II.—The second rule is peculiar to Maithilī, and is as follows: Many Tatsama words ending in a consonant form their feminines in ई i; and that, whether in Sanskrit these words form their feminines in long ई ī or not.

Examples :—

Masculine.	Feminine.
सुन्दर sundar , beautiful	{ Sanskrit, सुन्दरी sundarī . Maithili, सुन्दरि sundari .
धूसर dhūsar	{ S. धूसरा dhūsarā or धूसरी dhūsarī . dusty { M. धूसरि dhūsarī .
अत्यन्त atyant , excessive	S. अत्यन्ता atyantā . ' M. अत्यन्ति atyanti .

The following may here be noted as irregular :—

Masculine.	Feminine.
सुबोध subōdh , wise	{ S. सुबोधा subōdhā . { M. सुबुधि subudhī .

109. RULE III.—Tadbhava words ending in चा ā, form their feminines in ई ī.

Examples :—

Masculine.	Feminine.
बेटा bēṭā , a son	बेटी bēṭī , a daughter.
बेना nēnā , a boy	बेनी nēnī , a girl.

110. RULE IV.—Long forms of nouns substantive and redundant forms of adjectives in वा °wā form their feminines in या iyā or रवा iā. Redundant forms of nouns substantive in वा auwā or वा auā, form their feminines in यवा iy°wā, रवा iawā, or रवा iwā. Thus :—

Masculine.	Feminine.
घोड़वा ghor°wā , a horse	घोड़िया ghoriyā or घोड़िवा ghoriā , a mare.
छोटकवा choṭ°kawā or choṭak°wā	{ small छोटकिया choṭ°kiyā or छोटाकिया choṭakiyā , or छोटाकिया choṭ°kiā or छोटा- kiā.

Masculine.

Feminine.

घोरोबा ghorauā or
घोरोबा ghorauwā } a horse

घोड़िया ghoriyāwā, घोड़िया ghori- awā or घोड़ीबा ghorīwā.

It is necessary to give further examples, as the subject has been already discussed in §§ 41 ff.

111. RULE V.—Tadbhava words signifying colour form their feminines as follows :—

Masculine.

Feminine.

उजर ujar	} white	{ उजरी ujārī . or उजरकी ujarākī . or उजरा ujārā or उजरका ujarākā
कारो kārī	} black	करिकी karikkī .
or करिया kariā or करिका karikkā
पीरा pīrā	} yellow	पिचरकी piarākī .
or पीचर pīar or पिचरका piarākā
हरिचर hariat	} green	हरिचरकी hariatākī .
or हरिचरका hariatākā
लाल lāl	} red	लालकी lālākī .
or लालका lālākā

EXCEPTION.—गोर gōr fair, which makes गोरि gōrī, or गोरिया goriyā. It will be observed that, in the feminine, all these adjectives prefer the long form.

Note also that नील nīl, dark blue, which also occurs in Sanskrit and which in that language forms its feminine नीला nīlā, or नीली nīlī, in Maithilī adopts नीली nīlī as its feminine form.

112. RULE VI.—The following classes of Tatsama words form their feminines generally as in Sanskrit :—

(a) Verbal adjectives in इ i, and ई ī, corresponding to Sanskrit adjectives in इन् in, nominative, ई ī.

Examples :—

118. Adjectives do not generally change for case. In other words, like substantives, they do not usually possess oblique forms.

119. Certain adjectives ending in इ r, न n, र r and ल l have, however, an oblique form in आ ā, which is employed when the noun with which they are in agreement is in an oblique case. In other words such adjectives follow the example of substantives. Examples of such adjectives are :—

बड़ bar, great.

ऐसन aisan or एहन ehan, such, and other pronominal adjectives ending in न n.

दोसर dōsar, second.

तेसर tēsar, third.

बहीर bahīr, deaf.

पहिल pahīl, first.

Examples of these oblique forms will be found in §§ 82 and ff. The oblique forms are not often employed attributively except in the cases of ordinal numbers as in तेसर tesar पहरा में paharā mē, in the third watch, and of pronominal adjectives. The latter will be discussed under the head of pronouns.

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

120. (a) Comparative. As in Hindōstāni, the comparative is formed, not by any change in the adjective, but by putting the word for the thing with which the comparison is made in the ablative case. Example, र गच्छी ओहि गच्छी सँ सुंदरि बैक i gāchī ohī gāchī sđ sundarī chaik, this grove is more beautiful than that.

121. (b) Superlative. This is formed either by prefixing सभ सँ sabh sđ, the ablative case of सभ sabh, all, or the adjective बड़ bar (which is liable to inflection according to gender) to the principal adjective. Examples : र गच्छी सभ सँ सुंदरि बैक i gāchī sabh sđ sundarī chaik, this is the most beautiful grove; or र गच्छी बड़ सुंदरि बैक i gāchī barī sundarī chaik, this grove is very beautiful. Usually, in such sentences, gender is neglected when the adjective is employed predicatively, so that we generally meet these expressions in the following forms: र गच्छी ओहि गच्छी सँ सुन्दर बैक i gāchī ohī gāchī sđ sundar chaik; र गच्छी सभ सँ सुन्दर बैक i gāchī sabh sđ sundar chaik; र गच्छी बड़ सुन्दर बैक i gāchī barī sundar chaik.

122. Certain comparatives and superlatives are also borrowed direct from the Sanskrit, which need not be noted here.

CHAPTER V.

PRONOUNS.

127. The declension of Pronouns presents some important points of difference from that of nouns, which should be carefully noted.

128. While most nouns remain unchanged before postpositions, almost all pronouns have an oblique form. This oblique form falls under two heads.

129. (1) The old oblique form. This, in the case of the personal pronouns, is only found in poetry. In the case of other pronouns it is, at the present day, rarely used except when it refers to inanimate objects, or when the pronoun is employed as an adjective. Thus, the old oblique form of तू tū, this, is छि chī, and छरि के eh' kē, to this, is only found when 'this' is something inanimate. छरि के eh' kē could not be used if 'this' was a boy. But we can say छरि नेना के eh' nēnā kē, to this boy, because here छरि eh' is used as an adjective.

The following is a list of these old oblique forms :—

Direct Form.	Old Oblique Form.
मैं mē , (old poetic form), I	मोरि moh'.
तू tū , thou	तोरि toh'.
इ i , this (non-honorific)	छरि eh' , छर eh , or छर aih.
ई i , this (honorific)	रिनि hin' or रिन hin.
ओ ō , that (non-honorific)	ओरि oh' , ओर oh , or ओर auh.
औ ō , that (honorific)	ऊनि hun' or ऊन hun.
जे jē , who (non-honorific)	जाहि jāh'.
जे jē , who (honorific)	जनि jan'.
से sē , he (non-honorific)	ताहि tāh'.
से sē , he (honorific)	तनि tan'.
के kē , who ? (non-honorific)	काहि kāh' (not used as an adjective).
के kē , who ? (honorific)	कनि kan'.
की kī , what ? (substantive)	कथी kathī.
कौ keo , anyone	काहु kāhū.

130. (2) The modern oblique form.—This is never used as an adjective. It is almost always the only form employed when the pronoun is used as a substantive and refers to an animate object. It is hence the only form used at the present day for personal pronouns. It is identical with the oblique form of the genitive, which is obtained by adding का a to the direct form of that case. Thus :—

Pronoun.	GENITIVE.
	Direct.	Oblique.
मैं mē , I	मोर mōr	मोरा mōrā .
हम ham , I	हमर hamar or हमार hamār	हमरा hamārā .
तू tū , thou	तोर tōr	तोरा tōrā .
तेरा tēh or तै tē , thou	तेहर tōhar or तोहार tohār	तेहरा tohārā .
अपनहिं ap^anahī , self	अपन appan or अपन apan	अपना ap^anā
ई ī , this (non-honorific)	एकर ēkar	एकरा ekārā .
ई ī , this (honorific)	हिनक hinak	हिनका hinākā .
ओ ō , that (non-honorific)	ओकर ōkar	ओकरा okārā .
ओ ō , that (honorific)	ऊनक hunak	ऊनका hunākā .
जे jē , who (non-honorific)	अकर jakar	अकरा jakārā .
जे jē , who (honorific)	अनिक janik	अनिका janikā .
से sē , he (non-honorific)	तकर takar	तकरा takārā .
से sē , he (honorific)	तनिक tanik	तनिका tanikā .
के kē , who ? (non-honorific)	ककर kakar	ककरा kakārā .
के kē , who ? (honorific)	कनिक kanik	कनिका kanikā .

To the remaining pronouns these observations do not apply. It will be observed that in the honorific forms the genitive ends in क k, while all the other genitives end in र r.

131. We have observed (see §§ 75, 76) that nouns substantive have no proper organic plural. When the idea of plurality has to be expressed it is done by adding new words indicating plurality, such as सब sabh or सबहि sabahī, all; लोकनि lok^ani, people. The same is the case with pronouns. Their plurals are formed in the same way. In the ancient Māgadhi Prakrit from which Maithilī is descended there were distinct organic plural forms, and (except in the case of the pronouns of the first and second persons) these old plural forms have survived in the shape of the honorific singulars, the old singulars being relegated to a non-honorific meaning. With regard to the pronouns of the first and second persons the case is somewhat different. In ordinary Maithilī, the old singulars (मैं mē, I and तू tū, thou) have fallen into disuse and are now only found in poetry. The old plural forms are now employed in the sense of the singular, and the plurals are now formed by the addition of सब sabh, etc. (as is also the case with the honorific pronouns mentioned above) and are really by origin double plurals.

132. It may be mentioned here that the pronoun of the second person has also an honorific form अहाँ ahāñ, अहाँ ahañ or अपने ap^{ne}ne which will be described later on.

133. The employment of the old oblique form varies, and the different methods of employment will be described under each pronoun.

134. The genitives of the pronouns are freely used as possessive pronouns, and, when agreeing with a noun in an oblique case they are put into the modern oblique form described above. It will be convenient to give examples of this once for all here.

(a) DIRECT POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS AGREEING WITH NOUNS IN THE NOMINATIVE FORM:—

हमर रोज़ हरज होइत hamar rōj haraj hōit, my means of livelihood will be spoiled.

बिया कारन मुदे तोर जुमल triyā kāran mudai tōr jumal, for the sake of a woman your enemy has come.

सब धन उड़ाय भिखारि भै गेल appan sabh dhan urāy bhiikhārī bhai gēl, having wasted all his substance he became a beggar.

कानब सुनि hunak kānab sunī, having heard her lamentations.

जकर बेदुलौ लाएल, तकर कौहन सुरखी jakar bedulī lāel, takar kehan surakhī, how wonderful must be the beauty of her whose bedulī you have brought.

जकर खेत तकर धान jakar khēt, takar dhān, whose is the field, his is the paddy-crop.

तकर अकरार लिखि दाखिल करई takar akrār likhī dākhil karāh, write and file a bond to that effect (lit. of that).

ककर घोड़ हैक kakar ghōṛ chaik, whose is the horse ?

(b) OBLIQUE POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS AGREEING WITH NOUNS IN THE OBLIQUE CASES :—

हमरा सिरकी में hamarā sirakī mē, in my hut.

तोहरा घर में toharā ghar mē, in your house.

गिरहस्थ अपना मन में कहलक girhasth apnā man mē kahalok, the farmer said in his own heart.

अपना चढ़ेक घोड़ी देल apnā carhaik ghōṛī dēl, he gave the mare of his own riding (i.e., his own riding mare).

संग समाज सखी आरहि उनका फुलवाड़ी saṅg samāj sakhī āriḥ hunakā phulawārī, (her) companions and friends came (into) her garden.

उनका कारन hunakā karan, for his sake.

These oblique forms are not always employed. The direct form is often used instead of the oblique form, but not vice-versa. The oblique form is never used instead of the direct form.

The following pairs are therefore both correct; though the second is the more usual :—

{ हमर सिरकी में hamar sirakī mē, and हमरा सिरकी में hamarā sirakī mē.

{ अपन चढ़ेक घोड़ी appan carhaik ghōṛī, and अपना चढ़ेक घोड़ी apnā carhaik ghōṛī.

And so for the other examples. But the following examples, in which an oblique form is used instead of a direct form, are wrong :—

ऊनका कानब सुनि hun^akā kānab sunⁱ.

जकरा खेत तकरा धान jak^arā khēt tak^arā dhān, this would mean 'to whom there is a field, to him there is a paddy-crop,' conveying an altogether different meaning.

तकरा अकरार लिखि tak^arā ak^arār likhⁱ.

In phrases like हमरा सक नहिं ham^arā sak nahⁱ, I have no power (to do so and so), हमरा ham^arā is not a genitive. It is a dative, and the sentence literally translated is 'to me power is not.'

The above possessive pronouns do not change for gender in the modern language. 'My mother' is हमर माई hamar māi, not हमरि माई hamarⁱ māi. In the old language, however, we now and then come across instances of the feminine.

135. Given the oblique form, the declension of pronouns closely follows that of nouns substantive. The principal points of difference are :—

(1) The Accusative singular is rarely the same as the nominative, but is in the oblique form either by itself or with the postposition के kē, added. Thus हम ham, I; हमरा ham^arā or हमरा के ham^arā kē, me. The honorific pronoun of the second person, अपेन ap^ane or अहाँ ahāñ, and the interrogative pronoun की kī, what? are the only exceptions to this general statement.

(2) The Genitives are formed according to a different series of rules, as above explained.

(3) The Dative often drops the postposition के kē, an idiom which is not allowable in the case of nouns substantive. Thus हमरा के ham^arā kē or हमरा ham^arā, to me.

(4) Pronouns have the same form whether referring to masculine or feminine nouns.

(5) With the exception of the pronouns of the second person, they all want the vocative case.

PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

136. There are three sets of personal pronouns, the first set referring to the first person, the second to the second person, and the third to the third. Each of the two last sets consists of two divisions—an honorific, and a non-honorific division. In other words, the pronouns of the second and third persons have each two forms, an honorific and a non-honorific. To people accustomed to deal with eastern languages, I need do no more than point out the fact, except to notice en passant, that in no Eastern Indo-Aryan language is this distinction carried to a greater length* than in Maithili. The pronouns of the third person are identical with the Remote Demonstrative Pronouns, and will be dealt with under that head.

137. In order to clear the way, I commence with the two old singular forms of the pronouns of the first and second persons which at the present day are only used in poetry. These are मै mē, I, and तू tū, thou, and are declined as follows:—

Nom.	मै mē , I.	तू tū , thou.
Acc.	मोहि mohi , me.	तोहि tohi , thee.
Instr.	मोहि सौं mohi sō , by me.	तोहि सौं tohi sō , by thee.
Dat.	मोहि mohi , to me.	तोहि tohi , to thee.
Abl.	मोहि सौं mohi sō , from me.	तोहि सौं tohi sō , from thee.
Gen.	मोर mōr , my, of me.	तुअ tua , or तोर tōr , thy, of thee.
Loc.	मोहि सौं mohi sō , in me.	तोहि सौं tohi sō , in thee.

The oblique forms of the genitive are मोर mōrā and तोर tōrā. In Vidyapati, lxxix. 13, मोर mōrā is employed as a dative of possession. नहिं मोर टका अहि nahi mōrā (scanned as if it were मोर mōra) ṭakā ahi, there is not a rupee to me, I have no money.

* It will be seen further on, that some verbs have not only a honorific and a non-honorific form depending on the subject, but have also another pair of honorific and non-honorific forms depending on the object.

The plural forms are not used. When necessary, the modern plurals are said to be employed instead, but I have never met an example of this.

138. It will be observed how closely the declensions of the pronouns of the first and second persons agree in the above paradigm. The same is the case in the modern pronouns, which are as follows :—

Singular.

Nom.	हम ham , I.	तौह tōh , or तौ tō , thou.
Acc.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{हमरा } ham^a rā, \\ \text{हमरा के } ham^a rā\ kē, \end{array} \right\}$ me	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{तोहरा } toh^a rā, \\ \text{तोहरा के } toh^a rā\ kē, \end{array} \right\}$ thee.
Dat.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{हमरा } ham^a rā, \\ \text{हमरा के } ham^a rā\ kē, \end{array} \right\}$ to me.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{तोहरा } toh^a rā, \\ \text{तोहरा के } toh^a rā\ kē, \end{array} \right\}$ to thee.
Abl.	हमरा से ham^a rā sē , from me.	तोहरा से toh^a rā sē , from thee.
Gen.	हमर hamar , or हमार hamār , my, of me.	तोहर tōhar , or तोहार tohār , thy, of thee.
Loc.	हमरा में ham^a rā mē , in me.	तोहरा में toh^a rā mē , in thee.
Voc.	...	हौ तौह hau tōh , O thou.

Nom.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{हम सब } ham\ sabh, \\ \text{हमरा सब } ham^a rā\ sabh, \end{array} \right\}$ we.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{तौह सब } tōh\ sabh, \\ \text{तौ सब } tō\ sabh, \\ \text{तोहरा सब } toh^a rā\ sabh, \end{array} \right\}$ ye.
Acc.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{हमरा सब } ham^a rā\ sabh, \\ \text{हमरा सब कैं } ham^a rā\ sabh\ kē, \end{array} \right\}$ us.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{तोहरा सब } toh^a rā\ sabh, \\ \text{तोहरा सब कैं } toh^a rā\ sabh\ kē, \end{array} \right\}$ you.
Dat.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{हमरा सब } ham^a rā\ sabh, \\ \text{हमरा सब क } ham^a rā\ sabh\ kē, \end{array} \right\}$ to us.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{तोहरा सब } toh^a rā\ sabh, \\ \text{तोहरा सब कैं } toh^a rā\ sabh\ kē, \end{array} \right\}$ to you.
Abl.	हमरा सब सैं $ham^a rā\ sabh\ sī$, from us.	तोहरा सब सैं $toh^a rā\ sabh\ sī$, from you.
Gen.	हमरा सबक $ham^a rā\ sabhak$, our, of us.	तोहरा सबक $toh^a rā\ sabhak$, your, of you.
Loc.	हमरा सब में $ham^a rā\ sabh\ mē$, in us.	तोहरा सब में $toh^a rā\ sabh\ mē$, in you.
Voc.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{हो तौह सब } hau\ tōh\ sabh, \\ \text{हो तोहरा सब } hau\ toh^a rā\ sabh, \end{array} \right\}$ O ye.

Instead of सभ sabh we may as usual employ सबहि sabahⁱ or लोकनि lok^{ani} throughout, except that it is not customary to use them with the direct forms हम ham, and तौह tōh or तौ tō. Thus we do not hear हम सबहि ham sabahⁱ, or तौह लोकनि tōh lok^{ani}. In the genitive plural we can, as usual, have सभ केर sabh kēr, instead of सभक sabhak.

The terminations हिं hⁱ and हुं h^u are often added to these pronouns. The former gives emphasis, and the second means ‘also.’

Thus हमहिं hamahⁱ, I (emphatic), I alone, as distinguished from other people; हमहुं hamah^u, I also; तौहुं tōh^u, thou also; हमरहुं ham^arah^u (with shortening of the final vowel of हमरा ham^arā), to me also.

139. तौह tōh and तौ tō are non-honorific pronouns of the second person. There are two honorific pronouns of this person, अहाँ ahā^ũ or अहाँ ahā^ẓ, and अपने ap^{ne}.

These are declined exactly like substantives, and have no oblique form. Thus, genitive अहाँक ahā^k, or अहाँक ahā^k, and अपनेक ap^{ne}k, your. The only irregularity is the instrumental singular, the various forms of which are:—

अहाँ ahā^ẓ , अहाँ सँ ahā^ũ sã , or अहाँ सँ ahā^ẓ sã ,	} by you.
and अपने सँ ap^{ne} sã ,

The plural is, as usual:—

अहाँ (or अहाँ) सभ ahā^ũ (or ahā^ẓ) sabh, सबहि sabahⁱ, or लोकनि lok^{ani}, अपने सभ ap^{ne} sabh, etc.

अपने ap^{ne} is more honorific than अहाँ ahā^ũ. The latter is sometimes even used when talking to inferiors. अहाँ ahā^ũ, in fact, is polite; while तौह tōh is rude or vulgar.

In Hindōstānī आप āp, your honour, is construed with the verb in the third person plural, as in आप कहीं जाते हैं āp kahā^ũ jāte haĩ, where is your honour going? In Maithili, on the contrary, अहाँ ahāũ and अपने ap^{ne}, are construed with the second person honorific of the verb, as in अपने बहुत नीक कथा कहल ap^{ne} bahut nīk kathā kahal, your honour made a very excellent remark.

THE REFLEXIVE PRONOUN.

140. Closely connected with the foregoing is the Reflexive Pronoun अपनहिं ap^{nahi} or अपने ap^{ne}, self, which is employed exactly like the Hindōstānī आप āp, genitive अपना ap^{nā}, always referring to the person of the subject of the sentence.

The genitive of अपनहिं ap^{nahī} is अपन apan, or अपन appan, own, with an oblique form अपना ap^{nā}, which is also used as an oblique base. Thus, Acc. Dat. अपना ap^{nā}, or अपना केँ ap^{nā} kē, to oneself.

The nominative plural is अपनहिं (or अपने) सभ ap^{nahī} (or ap^{ne}) sabh, सबहिं sab^{hi}, or लोकनि lokⁿⁱ. The oblique cases of the plural are formed from the base अपना सभ ap^{nā} sabh, etc. Thus Gen. plural अपना सभक ap^{nā} sabhak, अपना सबहिक ap^{nā} sab^{hik}, अपना लोकनिक ap^{nā} lok^{nik}, of selves.

The Locative plural, अपना सभ में ap^{nā} sabh mē, or (as frequently happens) with the plural suffix dropped, अपना में ap^{nā} mē means ‘amongst themselves,’ like the Hindōstānī आपस में āpas mē.

The following are examples of the use of this pronoun :—

अपनहिं बिलास सँ गेल सरलोगवा ap^{nahī} bilās saĩ gēl sar^o-logawā, he himself, after enjoyment (of this life), went to heaven.

अपने ब्राह्मणीक रूप धै कंगनिषा चढ़लि ap^{ne} brāh^{ma}ṇīk rūp dhai kāganiṣa caṛ^hali, she herself, taking the form of a Brāhmaṇ woman, ascended the bank.

अपन मरोटी अपने गाय गबैत चलू apan maroṭī ap^{ne} gāy gabait chalū जोगिया गाम, apan murautī jogiya gām, ap^ane gāy gubait calū jogiyā gām, having sung our own death-song let us go singing to the village of Jogiya.

अपन बड़ बेटी रखलहि घर सुताय apan bah^a bēṭi rakh^alanhⁱ ghar sutāy, he has put his own daughter-in-law and daughter to sleep at home.

बेरी अपना बस में आवि जाय् bāri ap^anā bas mē āvⁱ jāy, (if) an enemy come into one's own power.

अपना में मेलि कै कै रहबह ap^anā mē mēlⁱ kai kā rah^abāh, you will remain at peace amongst yourselves. i.e., with each other.

THE DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS, AND PRONOUN OF THE THIRD PERSON.

141. There are two Demonstrative Pronouns,—a Proximate, इ i or ई ī, this, and a Remote, ओ ō, that. The Remote Demonstrative Pronoun is also used as a Pronoun of the third person, with the meaning of 'he,' 'she,' or 'it.'

142. Each of these pronouns has two forms, a non-honorific and an honorific. Each of these latter, again, has two oblique forms, the old, and the modern.

143. These pronouns may be either substantives or adjectives. When used as substantives they are declined throughout. When used as adjectives they are unchanged when the substantive with which they are in agreement is in the form of the nominative, and are put in the old oblique form when the substantive is not in that form. Thus, ई नेना ī nēnā, this boy; ओ नेना ō nēnā, that boy; ई सभ नेना ī sabh nēnā, or ई नेना सभ ī nēnā sabh, these boys; ओ सभ नेना ō sabh nēnā, or ओ नेना सभ ō nēnā sabh, those boys; but प्रहि नेनाक ehⁱ nēnāk, of this boy; ओहि नेनाक ohⁱ nēnāk, of that boy; प्रहि सभ नेनाक ehⁱ sabh nēnāk, or प्रहि नेना सभक ehⁱ nēnā sabhak, of these boys; ओहि सभ नेनाक ohⁱ sabh nēnāk, or ओहि

नेना सभक ohⁱ nēnā sabhak, of those boys. The modern oblique forms are never used in this way.

Other examples of the adjectival use of these pronouns are:—

प्रहि बेकूप के कहीं तक नीक अकिल हतैक, ehⁱ bēkūph kē kahī tak nīk akil haitaik, how far will wisdom come to this fool.

प्रहि फसिलक की रंग अहि ehⁱ phasilak kī rang achⁱ, what is the prospect of this harvest.

ओहि राति के कतई चलेत गेल ohⁱ rāti kē katahⁱ calait gēl, that night he went away somewhere.

ओहि रसायनीक ठेकान नहि लागल ohⁱ rasāyanīk thēkān nahⁱ
lāgal, no trace was found of that alchemist.

144. When used as substantives, the non-honorific pronouns have two forms,—one referring to inanimate objects and using the old oblique form, while the other refers only to animate objects and uses the modern oblique form. Thus प्रहि में ehⁱ mē, in this (thing); प्रकार में ekarā mē, in this (living creature); ओहि में ohⁱ mē, in that (thing), in it; ओकरा में okarā mē, in that (living creature), in him, in her.

There are thus three declensions of Demonstrative Pronouns when used as substantives, viz:—

- (a) Non-honorific inanimate.
- (b) Non-honorific animate.
- (b) Honorific animate.

It stands to reason that an honorific inanimate declension is not likely to occur. The following is the declension of Demonstrative Pronouns.

145. (a) NON-HONORIFIC INANIMATE.

Singular.

	इ i or ई ī, this.	ओ ō, that.
Nom.	इ i or ई ī, this	ओ ō, that.
Acc.	इ i, ई ī, इह ⁱ eh ⁱ , इह ⁱ के ⁱ eh ⁱ kē, this.	ओ ō, ओह ⁱ oh ⁱ , ओह ⁱ के ⁱ oh ⁱ kē, that.
Instr.	इ [ँ] ē, इह [ँ] स [ँ] eh [ँ] sā, by this.	ओह [ँ] स [ँ] oh [ँ] sā, by that.
Dat.	इह ⁱ eh ⁱ , इह ⁱ के ⁱ eh ⁱ kē, to this.	ओह ⁱ oh ⁱ , ओह ⁱ के ⁱ oh ⁱ kē, to that.
Abl.	इह [ँ] स [ँ] eh [ँ] sā, from this.	ओह [ँ] स [ँ] oh [ँ] sā, from that.
Gen.	इकर ⁱ ehkar, of this.	ओकर ⁱ okar, of that.
Loc.	इह [ँ] में [ँ] eh [ँ] mē, in this.	ओह [ँ] में [ँ] oh [ँ] mē, in that.

Plural.

Nom.	इ सभ i sabh, or ई सभ ī sabh, ओ सभ ō sabh, these.	those.
Acc.	इह ⁱ सभ (के ⁱ) eh ⁱ sabh (kē), these.	ओह ⁱ सभ (के ⁱ) oh ⁱ sabh (kē), those.
Dat.	इह ⁱ सभ (के ⁱ) eh ⁱ sabh (kē), to these.	ओह ⁱ सभ (के ⁱ) oh ⁱ sabh (kē), to those.
Abl.	इह [ँ] सभ स [ँ] eh [ँ] sabh sā, from these.	ओह [ँ] सभ स [ँ] oh [ँ] sabh sā, from those.
Gen.	इह ⁱ सभक ⁱ eh ⁱ sabhak, of these.	ओह ⁱ सभक ⁱ oh ⁱ sabhak, of those.
Loc.	इह [ँ] सभ में [ँ] eh [ँ] sabh mē, in these.	ओह [ँ] सभ में [ँ] oh [ँ] sabh mē, in those.

Instead of प्रहि ehⁱ, we may have, throughout, प्रह eh or प्रेह aih, and similarly for ओहि ohⁱ, we may have ओह oh or ओह auh. I have not noted any instrumental form of ओ ō, corresponding to the ऐ ē of ई i. The genitives singular एकर ēkar and ओकर ōkar are contractions of प्रहि कर ehⁱ kar and ओहि कर ohⁱ kar respectively. I have not met with forms like प्रहिक ehik or ओहिक ohik, as we might expect. The plural suffix may be सबहि sabahi instead of सभ sabh. लोकनि lok^ani cannot be used, as the pronouns refer only to inanimate objects.

As examples of these inanimate non-honorific pronouns, we may quote :—

ई एकर आठम बिस्वान थिके ī ēkar āṭham biān thikui, this is the eighth calving of this one (referring to a cow).

ई ले जाह ī lē jāh, take away this.

प्रहि नहिं जनली अहाँ भद्री हो ehⁱ nahⁱ jan^alī ahā bhadri hō, I did not know this, that your honour is Bhadrī.

प्रहि सँ ई फल बहराइअहि ehⁱ sā ī phal baharāi-achⁱ, from this this fruit comes out, i.e., the moral of this is the following :—

ओहि में किछु लाभ नहिं ohⁱ mē kicch^u lābh nahⁱ, in that there is no profit.

कौआ ओकर गुदा खाए गेल kauā ōkar guddā khāe gēl, the crow ate up its kernel.

As an emphatic form of these pronouns we have इहे ihe, this indeed, and उहे uhe or वैह waih, that indeed, as in दीना भद्री जिवेत चल उहे गबैत रहै dinā bhadri jibait chal, uhe gabait rahai, (when) Dīnā and Bhadrī were alive, that is the very song they used to sing; वैह चोराए कै ले गेल अहि waih corāe kai lai gēl achⁱ, it is he who has stolen (the property) and carried it off.

146. (b) NON-HONORIFIC ANIMATE.

This is declined like the inanimate pronoun, except that प्रकरा ekārā is substituted for प्रहि ehi and ओकरा okārā for ओहि ohi. Thus :—

Singular.

Nom.	इ i or ई ī , this	ओ ō , that.
Dat.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{प्रकरा } ekārā, \\ \text{प्रकरा केँ } ekārā kē, \end{array} \right\}$	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{ओकरा } okārā, \\ \text{ओकरा केँ } okārā kē, \end{array} \right\}$
Gen.	एकर ekar , of this.	ओकर okar , of that.

Plural.

Nom.	इ सभ i sabh , ई सभ ī sabh , etc., ओ सभ ō sabh , etc., those these.
Dat.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{प्रकरा सभ (केँ) } ekārā sabh (kē), \\ \text{ओकरा सभ (केँ) } okārā sabh (kē), \end{array} \right\}$ to these. to those.

Similarly for the other cases. I have not noted any instrumental form of ओ ō, corresponding to the प्रकरेँ ekārē of ई ī. In the plural, instead of सभ sabh, we can, as usual, have सबहि sabah or लोकनि lokani. As examples of these animate non-honorific pronouns, we may quote :—

ओ आरकाहि गाभिनि अहि ō āikālhⁱ gābhiniⁱ achiⁱ, nowadays she is in calf (referring to a cow).

ओकरा प्रहि तरहेँ घबड़ाएल देखि केँ okārā ehi tarahē ghabarāel dekhiⁱ kē, having seen him distracted in this manner.

In the following ओकरा okārā is irregularly used to refer to an inanimate object. तखन ओ सभ ओकरा ऋट पट तोड़ि देलक takhan ō sabh okārā jhaṭ-paṭ tōṛiⁱ dēlak, then they at once broke it (sc. a stick).

एकर आठम बिआन ēkar āṭham biān, her eighth calving.

जेहि सौं ओकर परबरास होइक सै अबस्य० कर्तब्य० चौक jehi saū ōkar par^abaraś hōik sē abasya kartabya thīk, we must certainly do what is necessary for its (the child's) support.

प्रकरा सभ केँ किछु कै देखाबी ekarā sabh kē kichu kai dekhābī, having done something, let me show it to all these (viz. to his sons).

प्रकरा सबहि केँ हमरा लग पठाए दैह ekarā sabahi kē hamarā lag paṭhāe daih, send all these (viz., dogs) to me.

हिं hī added to these oblique forms gives emphasis, while ऊं hū when suffixed, means 'also.' Thus प्रकरहिं केँ ekarahi kē, it is to this one; ओकरऊं पठाए दिओक okarahū paṭhāe diauk, send him also. Observe that the final आ ā of प्रकरा ekarā and ओकरा okarā is shortened before these suffixes.

147. (c) HONORIFIC.

The old honorific oblique forms of ई ī and ओ ō are हिनि hinī and हुनि hunī respectively. We meet them variously spelt. Sometimes we have हिन hin and हुन hun; sometimes हिन्हि hinhi and हुन्हि hunhi, and sometimes हिन्ह hinh and हुन्ह hunh. For the sake of convenience I shall only employ हिनि hinī and हुनि hunī in the paradigms, but it should be remembered that the other forms are often met with. Indeed, the most usual form of the genitive is हिनक hinak and हुनक hunak, and not हिनिक hinik and हुनिक hunik. These old oblique forms are only employed as adjectives, and, being honorific, rarely occur in the literary style, though one hears them in conversation. We have an example in हुनि स्वामिक कारन hunī swāmik kāran, for the sake of that (respected) husband (the prospective wife is speaking), in the song of Salhēs.

148. The modern oblique form is the oblique genitive of the old oblique form. Thus, हिनका hin^akā and उनका hun^akā, of which हिनिका hinikā, हिनका hin^akā, हिनिका hinhikā, and उनिका hunikā, उनका hun^akā, उनिका hunhikā, are optional varieties.

149. The declension of the honorific pronoun is the same as that of the non-honorific, substituting हिनका hin^akā and उनका hun^akā, or any of the optional spellings, for प्रकरा ek^arā and ओकरा ok^arā, respectively. Thus :—

Singular.

Nom.	इ i or ई ī , this.	ओ ō , that.
Instr.	हिनका सँ hin^akā sã , by this.	उनका सँ hun^akā sã , by that.
Dat.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{हिनका } \text{हिन}^{\text{a}}\text{क}^{\text{a}}, \\ \text{हिनका } \text{कै}^{\text{a}} \text{हिन}^{\text{a}}\text{क}^{\text{a}} \text{कै}^{\text{a}}, \end{array} \right\}$ to this.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{उनका } \text{हून}^{\text{a}}\text{क}^{\text{a}}, \\ \text{उनका } \text{क}^{\text{a}} \text{हून}^{\text{a}}\text{क}^{\text{a}} \text{कै}^{\text{a}}, \end{array} \right\}$ to that.
Gen.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{हिनक } \text{हिन}^{\text{a}}\text{क}, \\ \text{हिनकर } \text{हिन}^{\text{a}}\text{क}^{\text{a}}, \end{array} \right\}$ of this.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{उनक } \text{हून}^{\text{a}}\text{क}, \\ \text{उनकर } \text{हून}^{\text{a}}\text{क}^{\text{a}}, \end{array} \right\}$ of that.

Plural.

Nom.	इ सभ i sabh , ई सभ ī sabh , etc., these.	ओ सभ ō sabh , etc., those.
Dat.	हिनका सभ (कै) hin^akā sabh (kai) , to these.	उनका सभ (कै) hun^akā sabh (kai) , to those.

Similarly for the other cases. As usual, in the plural we can use सबहि sabahi or लोकनि lok^ani instead of सभ sabh. Examples of the use of this form of the demonstrative pronoun are :—

हिनका फुरसति देब hin^akā phursati dēb, I will give him leave to depart.

हा माप बाप गारी देलक hun^akā māe bāp gārī dēlak, have the father and mother given abuse to her (i.e., have they abused her).

उमिका माता नहिं humikā mātā nahī, to him there is no mother, he has no mother.

उनक कानन सुनि hunak kānab sunī, hearing her weeping.

150. The above genitives एकर ekar, ओकर okar, हिनक hinak, or हिनकर hinakar and उनक hunak or उनकर hunakar, are usually all put into the oblique form when agreeing with a noun in an oblique case. Examples of this will be found in § 134 ante.

THE RELATIVE AND CORRELATIVE PRONOUNS.

151. The Relative Pronoun is जे jē, who, which, and its Correlative is से sē, he, she, it, that.

152. As in the case of the Demonstrative Pronouns, each has two forms, a non-honorific and an honorific; and the non-honorific form, again, may be animate or inanimate. There is, however this difference, that in the Instrumental, Ablative, and Genitive singular, and throughout the plural, the form usually employed for inanimate nouns may also be employed for animate ones.

153. When used as adjectives, the oblique forms (जाहि jāhī and ताहि tāhī) of the non-honorific inanimate declension are used when in agreement with a noun in an oblique case. Examples of the adjectival use of these pronouns are as follows:—

जे चीज बलु सभ अहाँक नोकसान भेल अहि, से सभ पड़चत jē cīj bast^u sabh ahāṅ nokāsān bhel achi, sē sabh pahūcat, all your property which has been spoilt, will arrive (i.e., be restored).

जे लोक आएल बल से लोक गेल jē lōk āel chal, sē lōk gēl, the man who came, went.

जाहि लोकक खेत ताहि लोकक धान jāhī lōkak khēt, tāhī lōkak dhān, the person who owns the field, owns the paddy.

154. When used as a substantive, the inanimate non-honorific form is declined as follows. The Instrumental, Ablative, and Genitive singular, and the whole of the plural can be also used to refer to animate nouns.

155. (a) NON-HONORIFIC INANIMATE.

Singular.

	जे jē , which, who.	से sē , he, she, it, that.
Nom.	जे jē , which.	से sē , that.
Acc.	जाहि (कै) jāhī (kē) , to which.	ताहि (कै) tāhī (kē) , to that.
Instr.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{जे } jē \\ \text{जाहि से } jāhī sē, \end{array} \right\}$ by which, by whom.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{ते } tē \\ \text{ताहि से } tāhī sē, \end{array} \right\}$ by that, by him.
Dat.	जाहि (कै) jāhī (kē) , to which.	ताहि (कै) tāhī (kē) , to that.
Abl.	जाहि से jāhī sē , from which, from whom.	ताहि से tāhī sē , from that, from him.
Gen.	जस jas ^u , of which, of whom.	तस tas ^u , of that, of him.
Loc.	जाहि में jāhī mē , in which.	ताहि में tāhī mē , in that.

Plural.

Nom.	जे सभ jē sabh , which, who.	से सभ sē sabh , those, they.
Acc.	जाहि सभ (कै) jāhī sabh kē , which, who.	ताहि सभ (कै) tāhī sabh (kē) , those, they.
Instr.	जाहि सभ से jāhī sabh sē , by which, by whom.	ताहि सभ से tāhī sabh sē , by those, by them.
Dat.	जाहि सभ (कै) jāhī sabh (kē) , to which, to whom.	ताहि सभ (कै) tāhī sabh (kē) , to those, to them.

- Abl. जाहि सभ सँ jāhⁱ sabh sã, from ताहि सभ सँ tāhⁱ sabh sã, from which, from whom. those, from them.
- Gen. जाहि सभक jāhⁱ sabhak, of ताहि सभक tāhⁱ sabhak, of which, of whom. those, of them.
- Loc. जाहि सभ में jāhⁱ sabh mē, in ताहि सभ में tāhⁱ sabh mē, in which, in whom. those, in them.

Instead of जाहि jāhⁱ and ताहि tāhⁱ, we sometimes find in poetry जा jā and ता tā. We also sometimes have जेहि jehⁱ and तेहि tehⁱ, which are properly Bhojpuri. From this last we have an instrumental जेहिं jehⁱ and तेहिं tehⁱ, which are used adverbially, to mean 'as,' 'so.' The Genitives जसु jas^u, and तसु tas^u, are only used in proverbs and poetry. In one place Vidyapati has तासि tāsⁱ (xviii, 7). I have not met forms like जाहिक jāhik and ताहिक tāhik, which we might expect. The plural suffix may, as usual, be सबहि sabahⁱ or लोकनि lok^{ani} instead of सभ sabh. As examples of this form of the honorific pronoun we may quote:—

जे आएल से गेल jē āel sē gēl, he who came, went.

जाहि सँ नाम चलैन्हि से हमर किरिया करैह jāhⁱ sã nām calainhⁱ, sē hamar kiriyā karāih, in order that (lit. from which) our name may continue, so perform our funeral rites.

In the following the final i of जाहि jāhⁱ has been lengthened for the sake of metre.

जाही सँ किहु पाबिथि सहिथि कहुइ बेन jāhī sã kih^u pābi^{thi} sahi^{thi} kahūi bēn, from whomsoever you would receive benefits, you must bear abusive words.

कैप्रक कथा सभ सिखाइ दिखइ कि जाहि सँ तोहरा लाभ हैतइ kaiek kathā sabh sikhāi diah^u, ki jāhⁱ sã tōh^{arā} lābh hai^{tah^u}, I will teach you several sayings from which there will be gain to you.

जकरा जा सँ रीती दुरऊक दुरि गेलें दोगुन पिरौती jakarā jā sã rītī durahuka duri gēlē doguna piritī, to whom, with whom there is affection (i.e., when there is mutual affection), the love is twice as strong the more distant they are from each other (Vidyāpati, xlv. 1).

ता सम tā sama, like that (Vidyāpati, xvi. 2).

जहि सौं ओकर परबरास होइक jehī saũ ōkur parābarās hōik, so that (lit. from which) its support may be, (we must take precautions for the child's support).

तेहि अबसर tehī abasara, at that time (Vid. xxviii. 4).

जहिं छेलाह तेहिं गेला, jehīñ ailāh tehīñ gēlā, as he came, so he went.

जसु मन परम तरासे jasu mana parama tarāse, in whose heart there is exceeding fear (Vid. vii. 5).

तसु साहस नहिं सौमा tasu sāhasa nahīñ sāmā, there is no limit to her courage (Vid. vii. 4).

तासि रिपु tāsi ripu, his foe (Vid. xviii. 7).

156. Several emphatic forms of these pronouns have been noted. Such are जैह jaiḥ, who, सैह seh, सैह saiḥ, सोइ sōe, even he : सैहो sēhō, सैहो sēhō, सैहसो seh-o, he also. Thus,— सैह चतुर जन औह बुझत अबधारी saiḥa catura jana jaiḥa bujhata abadhārī, they alone are wise who can understand it correctly (Vid. xvii. 7).

तनिका सैह पै नाह tanikā seh pai nāh, he alone (will be) a husband to her.

चानन लाग बिखम सर सोइ cānana lāga bikhama sura sōe, the application of sandalwood,—even that is an intolerable arrow (Vid. xvii. 3).

सेहओ दुरि गेहा seha-o duri gēlā, that also went far away (Vid. lxiii. 4).

सेहो थिक ओहि ठामा sēhō thika ohi thāmā, that also is in that place (Vid. xvii. 3).

157. It will have been noticed from the above that while se is generally employed as a correlative, it is sometimes used as an independent demonstrative pronoun. Its Instrumental singular appears under various forms, such as तै taī, तौ taū, तो tau, तो tū, or with emphatic ई ī, तैई tēī, or with emphatic ओ o, तैओ tēo, तैओ taio, or तैओ taiao, all of which are commonly used adverbially. Thus:—

तै नहिं करयि गरासे tē nahī karathī garāsē, therefore he does not devour it (Vid. xiv. 8).

तौ नहिं कमल सुखाई taū nahī kamala sukhāī, therefore the lotus does not wither (Vid. xiv. 6).

तौ पय जीबे अधर सुधा रस जो पय पीबे taū paya jībē, adhara sudhā-rasa jāū paya pībē, so long will it live, as long as it sips the nectar of the lower lip (Vid. ii. 5).

तो पय जीबयि जीबे tō paya jībathi jībē, so long will he remain living (Vid. x. 10).

तैई बहिं गेल जावा tēī bahī gēl jāwā, exactly so did the wind blow.

तैओ धसल केस पासे tēo dhasala kēśa pāsē, therefore also my hair was disordered (Vid. xl. 7).

तैओ तुलित नहिं भेला taio tulita nahī bhēlā, still it did not equal (the beauty of thy face) (Vid. vi. 4).

तैओ कुमुदिनि करय अनंदा taiao kumudini karaya anandā, nevertheless the water-lily rejoices (Vid. xlvi. 6).

जकरा सँ रस चूनि रहल अछि jakarā sđ ras cūbⁱ rahal achⁱ, (grapes) from which the juice is exuding (here the pronoun is, exceptionally, inanimate).

जेकर बनल अखड़वा तेकर बारहो मास jēkar banal akhar^awā tēkar bār^aho mās, he whose (fields) are ready in Āṣāḍh, is ready also all the year round.

हिं hⁱ (even), and हुं h^u (also), are added as in the case of demonstratives. Thus (Vid. l. 4).

प्रहि अबसर पऊ मिलन जेहन सुख ।

जकरहिं होउ से जान ॥

ehi abasara pahū milana jehana sukha ।

jakarahi^ṅ hoe sē jāna ॥

Only she that hath experienced them, knows the bliss of the tryst with the beloved at such a time.

159. (c) HONORIFIC ANIMATE.

The honorific oblique forms of जे jē and से sē are जनि janⁱ and तनि tanⁱ, respectively. We thus get the following declension which is exactly parallel to that of ई ī and ओ ō :—

Singular.

Nom.	जे jē , who.	से sē , he, she, that.
Instr.	जनिका सँ janikā sđ , by whom.	तनिका सँ tanikā sđ , by him, her.
Dat.	जनिका (केँ) janikā (kē) , to whom.	तनिका (केँ) tanikā (kē) , to him, her.
Gen.	जनिक janik , जनिकर janikar , whose.	तनिक tanik , तनिकर tanikar , his, hers.

Plural.

Nom. जे सभ jē sabh, who. से सभ sē sabh, they.

Dat. जनिका सभ (कें) janikā sabh तनिका सभ (कें) tanikā sabh (kē), to whom. (kē), to them.

And so on for the other cases. As usual, in the plural we can use सबहि sabahī, or लोकनि lokani instead of सभ sabh. Examples of these honorific forms are :—

जेहम जनिकर चाकरी तेहन सन भरि देयि jehan janikar cākari.
tehanē-san bharī dēthī, as is each one's (lit. whose) service, exactly so he pays in full.

केषो जमानत दै के बचलाइ जनिका बमला नेहो keō jamānat dai kē bacālāh, janikā amālā nēhī, some, to whom there was affection on the part of the court officials, got off by giving bail.

जनिक छहन धनि janika chana dhani, (a man) whose wife is so (beautiful), (Vid. li. 2).

कि कहब तनिक गेषाने ki kahaba tanika geānē. what shall I say
(about) his wisdom? (Vid. xxii. 2).

160. I have not noted any occurrence of the employment of the oblique genitive of जे jē, though, of course, it is commonly heard colloquially. For से sē, we have the following pair of examples :—

Direct Genitive—

लाख गारि देलें, तकर उतर हम नहिं किछु कहलौक lākh gārī dēlē, takar utar ham nahī kichu kahāluk, a thousand abuses didst thou give me, but I said to thee no answer to (lit. of) it.

Oblique Genitive—

तकरा बल से गुलामी जट चरबैत छहि takarā bal sē gulāmī jat carabait achī, through her might Gulāmi Jāṭ is grazing (cattle).

161. INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.

There are two interrogative pronouns, viz., के kē, who ? and कौ kī, what ? The former only refers to animate objects, and the latter only to inanimate.

162. When employed as adjectives के kē and कौ kī become कौन kōn or कौन kaun, but when agreeing with a noun in the nominative singular कौ kī may remain unchanged. Examples of the adjectival use of these pronouns are :—

के kē,—खो कौन लोक थीक ō kōn lōk thīk, what caste is he ?

कौन लोकक घोड़ हैक kōn lōkak ghōṛ chaik, of what person is (this) the horse, i.e., what person owns the horse ?

कौन गरु परलौ kaun garū paralau, what misfortune has befallen you ?

पूछैत हैंहि जे कौन लोगक चबेलौ थीक puchait chainhī jē kaun lōgak habēlī chīk, you are asking, '(of a man) of what caste is this the house ?'

कौन उपाय जाणव जोगिया नगर kaun upāy jāeb jōgiyā nagar, by what device shall we go to Jogiyā town ?

कौ kī,—ई कौन बिश्वान थिकैक i kōn biśvān thīkaik, what calving is this ? (i.e., how many times has she calved before ?)

ओकरा में कौन गुन हैक okarā mē kōn gun chaik, what virtue is there in it ?

कौन लोटा में पानि लाणल रह kōn lōṭā mē pāni lāel chāh, in what vessel have you brought the water ?

कौन दिसा के अबैत होऐ कइछ बुझाय kaun disā kē abait hōai kahay, tell (me) in what direction he may be coming.

फेरि की भगड़ा अछि phērī kī jhagārā achī, then what (cause of) quarrel can there be ?

कौ नाम छिक kī nām chhik, what name is it ?

163. The declension of के kē (the animate pronoun) closely follows that of the animate forms of जे jē.

There are, as usual non-honorific and honorific declensions. They are as follows :—

Singular.

Non-honorific.

Honorific.

Nom.	के kē , who ? which ?	के kē , who ? which ?
Instr.	ककरे kak^arē , ककरा स kak^arā sā ,	} by } whom ? कनिका स kanikā sā , by whom ?
Dat.	ककरा (के) kak^arā (kē) , to whom ?	कनिका (के) kanikā (kē) , to whom ?
Gen.	ककर kakar , whose ?	कनिक kanik , कनिकर kanikar , whose ?

Plural.

Nom.	के सब kē sabh , who ?	के सब kē sabh , who ?
Dat.	ककरा सब (के) kak^arā sabh (kē) , to whom ?	कनिका सब के kanikā sabh kē , to whom ?

and so on for the other cases. In the plural, as usual, सबहि sabahⁱ or लोकनि lak^ani, may be substituted for सब sabh. Occasionally we come across केकर kēkar instead of ककर kakar, and केकरा kek^arā instead of ककरा kak^arā, but these are properly Bhojpuri forms. I have not come across काहि kāhⁱ corresponding to जाहि jāhⁱ in the modern language, but Vidyāpati employs it in passages such as काहि कहब दुख kāhⁱ kahaba dukha, to whom shall I tell my distress ? (lxi. 2.)

As examples of these animate interrogative pronouns, we may quote :—

ककर घोड़ हैक kakar ghūr haiḥ, whose horse is it ?

केकर एहना जमाए kēkara ehana jamāe, who has such a son-in-law (Vid. lxxxix. 4) ?

ककरा दे के जोगिया जाँजरी भेजब समाद kakārā dē ke jogiyā jāñjarī bhējāb samād, having given whom (i.e., by means of whom) shall we send word to Jogiyā Jāñjari.

लुबधल नयन हटय के पार lubadhala nayana haṭaya kē pāra, who can turn aside a greedy eye ? (Vid. iv. 3).

I have not come across any instances of the honorific forms in literature, but they are occasionally heard colloquially.

164. The inanimate interrogative pronoun is कि ki or कौ kī, what ? It is often written किछ kiu or किए kiē, especially in poetry. Its declension is quite irregular, and is as follows :—

Singular.

Nom. कि ki, कौ kī, or किछ kiu, what ?

Acc. कथी कें, kathī kē, or कौ kī, what ?

Instr. कथीँ kathīँ, कथी सँ kathī sँ, by what ?

Dat. कथी लै kathī lai, किछे kiuḥ, किए kiē, or किछ kie, to or for what ? why ?

Abl. कथी सँ kathī sँ, from what ?

Gen. कथीक kathīk, of what ?

Loc. कथी में kathī mē, in what ?

Plural wanting. Note the form of the Dative. This case has many variations. I have noted कि ला ki lā, कि लै ki lai, कौ ला kī lā, कौ लै kī lai, कथी ला kathī lā, कथी लै kathī lai. लै lai is often written लय lay or लए lae, and instead of कथी kathī, we often have कथि kathi. Like the dative, the instrumental कथीँ kathīँ is used to mean ' why ? '

Examples of this pronoun are :—

कि कहब तनिक गेथाने ki kahaba tanika geānē, what shall I say
(about) his wisdom ? (Vid. xxii. 2).

अपनेक बकरी की भेल ap^anek bak^arī kī bhēl, what has happened to your goat ?

की चैक kī chaik, what is it ?

किय भेल kīa bhēl, what has happened ?

किय कहौ हे मुसाऊ kīa kahau, hē musāh^u, O Musāhu, what have you to say ?

किए बिधाता लिखि मोहि देल kiē bidhātā likhi mohi dēl, why hath God written (it) for me (in my fate) ? (Vid. lvii. 1).

कथी में पानि लाएल बह kathī mē pāni lāel chāh, in what have you brought the water ?

कथौ हमरा चोर बनबैची kathⁱ ham^arā cōr ban^abaichī, why do you make me out a thief ?

कथि लए कंश पटकलह मोहि kathī lāe kaṁśa putakalāhu mōhi, why, O Kaṁśa, didst thou dash me down (Manbōdh's Harivamśa, i. 37).

फोटरा गौदर कथि ला मरद खोतार लेलें phoṭ^arā gīdar kathī lā marad autār lēlē, O Phoṭ^arā, the jackal, why has a man taken your form ?

को कह नन्द महर किप्र मान kyō kaha nanda mahara kie māna, others (lit. some) said, 'Why does King Nanda agree ?'
(Manbōdh, vii. 45).

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

165. These are कोसो keo, anyone, someone ; किहु kich^u, anything, something ; and कोप्रक kaiek, several.

166. कैसो keo, anyone, someone, appears under various forms. I have noted कैसो keō, क्यो kyō, and कैस्यो keao. In old poetry we sometimes meet केदउ kēdahu.

167. When used as an adjective, it usually takes the form कोनो kōno or कौनो kauno, but we sometimes find कैसो keo used instead.

The following are examples of its use as an adjective:—

कोनो नेना नहिं आएल kōno nēnā nahī āel, no boy came.

कोनो गृहस्थक फलवाड़ी में kōno gr̥hasthak phulawāṛī mē, in the garden of a certain householder.

कोनो बातक मन में अंदेश मति राखी kōno bātak man mē andēśa matī rākhī, do not have anxiety in your mind about anything.

कौनो मुसहर ने घर से होइत अहि बाहिर kauno musahar nē ghar se hōit achī bāhīr, no Musahar comes out of the house.

कौनो बात के हरकति नहिं kauno bāt kē harakatī nahī, there is no inconvenience for (want of) anything.

कैसो अपूर्व दंगक लोक keo apūrb dhaṅgak lōk, a man of some extraordinary kind, or some man of an extraordinary kind.

It will be seen that when used as an adjective, it can refer to inanimate objects as well as animate ones.

168. When used as a substantive, it has an oblique form ककरड़ kak^arah^u, often written ककरो kak^arō. Its genitive is ककर kak^arō. In poetry we sometimes find a form काउ kāhu instead of ककरड़ kak^arah^u, with a genitive काउक kāhuka. It is therefore thus declined:—

Singular.

Nom.	{ केषो keo , केषो keō , क्यो kyō , or केषयो keaō , }	anyone, someone.
Acc.	ककरऊँ, kak^arah^ū , or ककरऊँ के kak^arah^ū kē)	someone, or anyone.
Inst.	ककरऊँ सँ kak^arah^ū sã , by anyone, etc.
Dat.	{ ककरऊँ kak^arah^ū , or ककरऊँ के kak^arah^ū kē }	to anyone, etc.
Abl.	ककरऊँ सँ kak^arah^ū sã , from anyone, etc.
Gen.	ककरो kak^arō , of anyone, etc.
Loc.	ककरऊँ में kak^arah^ū mē , in anyone, etc.

The plural is the same as the singular. ककरो kak^arō may be used for ककरऊँ kak^arah^ū throughout.

Examples of the use of this pronoun are:—

केयो नहिँ आएल keo nahĩ āel, no one came.

क्यो घर अंगना केषयो दुआरि kyō ghara āganā keao duāri, some (danced) in the courtyard of the house and some in the doorway (Manbōdh's Harivaṃśā, ii. 45).

निज भुज बल ककरऊँ नहिँ गनए nija bhujā balā kakarahū nahi ganae, (on account of) the strength of their own arms they esteem no one (Manbōdh, vi. 33).

किहु नहिँ ततऊँ काऊ सौँ भेल kichu nahĩ tatahū kōhu sō bhēla from that quarter nothing (i.e., no help) came from anyone (Manbōdh, i. 7).

क्यो नहिँ मानए काऊक हटल kyō nahĩ mānāe kōhuka haṭala, no one heeds the remonstrances of anyone (Manbōdh, iv. 17).

169. The indefinite pronoun inanimate is केषु kichū or किछु kicchu. It means 'anything' and 'something.' When it means 'anything,' the oblique form is the same as the nominative, but when it means 'something' its oblique form is कय् kathū. We therefore have the following declensions :—

170. किह् kich^u, or किच्छु kichch^u anything.

Nom. किह् kich^u, anything.

Acc. किह् के kich^u kē, anything.

Inst. किह् से kich^u sē, by anything.

Dat. किह् के kich^u kē, to anything.

Abl. किह् से kich^u sē, from anything.

Gen. किहुक kichuk, of anything.

Loc. किह् में kich^u mē, in anything.

171. किह् kich^u, or किच्छु kichch^u something.

Nom. किह् kich^u, something.

Acc. कय् के kathū kē, something.

Inst. कय् से kathū sē, by something.

Dat. कय् के kathū kē, to something.

Abl. कय् से kathū sē, from something.

Gen. कयुक kathūk, of something.

Loc. कय् में kathū mē, in something.

Examples of the use of this pronoun are :—

ओहि ग्राम में ककरो किह् नहिं हैक ohi grām mē kakarō kich^u nahⁱ hai^k chaik, in that village no one has anything.

कह् अमोट पठबिह kich^u amōṭ pathabihā, send (me) some mango conserve.

ओ औखध कय् में धैल होतैक ō āukhadh kathū mē dhail hotaik, that medicine must be put into something.

- * 172. The Indefinite pronoun कैक kaiek, some, several, is an adjective, and is not declined. An example of its use is:—

तोहरा कैक कथा सभ सिखाए दिखइ toh^ara kaiek kathā sabh sikhāe diakh^u, I will teach you several matters.

PART III.

CONJUGATION.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

A. General Remarks.

174. The conjugation of the verb forms the most complicated part of Maithili Grammar. Like the verbs of many partially cultivated languages, it has few parts for which there are not two or three optional forms. These are not local peculiarities, but may often be used by the same speaker as his fancy or as the rhythm of the sentence dictates. In many cases I cannot find that they represent different shades of meaning.

175. Maithili verbs may conveniently be divided into the two classes of Transitive and Intransitive. These differ in the conjugation of the tenses formed from the past participle. In the paradigms of the regular verb, the verb देखब dēkhab, to see, will be used as the example of a transitive verb, and the verb सुतब sūtab, to sleep, as the example of an intransitive verb. It will be observed that in both these verbs the root-vowel is long, and it must be carefully remembered that in the conjugation of all such verbs, the root-vowel is liable to be shortened, under the rules given in § 32 and ff. ante. It is most important to bear this in mind, as the whole system of conjugation is full of it.

176. There is one exception to this rule of the shortened antepenultimate, and this is that when ऐ ai, or औ au, is final, it counts as only one syllable (even when written अइ ai, अउ ae, or अउ au, औओ ao, respectively) and not as two (see §§ 13, 33 ii). Thus under the general rule, we should expect the ē in the form देखे dēkhai to be shortened; but it is not. The reason for this apparent irregularity is that in verbal forms a final ऐ ai always represents an older देखि ahⁱ, and a final खौ au always represents an older खउ ah^u, each of which, under the rule, counts only as one syllable. देखै dēkhai is for देखि dēkhahⁱ, and देखौ dekhaui is for देखउ dēkhah^u, and in both of these older forms the long ē is quite regular. The apparent exception disappears when ऐ ai or खौ ceases to be final. Thus in देखैक dekhaik (for देखहिक dēkhahik) and देखौक dekhaui for देखउक dēkhahuk), the shortening of the ē to e is quite regular.

B. Root. Verbal Nouns and Participles.

177. It will be more convenient to deal with the finite tenses after we have described the root and the various verbal nouns and participles. The Root of every verb is the same as the shortest form of the second person non-honorific of the Old Present. Thus the 2nd pers. non-hon. Old Present of देखब dēkh^b, to see, is देख dēkh, which is also the root.

178. The Verbal nouns are three in number.

(a) The first verbal noun is formed by adding देखि dēkhⁱ to the root. Thus देखि dēkhⁱ the act of seeing (see § 57). The final देखि dēkhⁱ is often omitted in writing and pronunciation, so that we have देख dēkh instead of देखि dēkhⁱ. Its oblique form is देखै dēkhai or देखँ dēkhā, and the rules for its declension together with examples are given in § 80 ante. Some roots ending in vowels are irregular in the formation of the first verbal noun.

179. (b) The second verbal noun is usually formed by adding खब ab to the root (see § 67) and is generally employed as the infinitive; thus देखब dēkh^{ab}, the act of seeing, to see. Its oblique form is देखबा dēkh^{abā}, and the rules for its declension together with examples are given in § 81 ante.

Verbs whose roots end in खा ā form their infinitives in खब eb. Thus from जा jā, we have जाखब jāeb, to go.

Those whose roots end in खाब āb, also form their infinitives in खब eb, but with the elision of the ब b of the root. Thus from the root पाब pāb, obtain, we have the infinitive पाअब pāeb, to obtain. In poetry we often find ओब ob instead of एब eb in this case. Thus पाओब pāob.

Those verbs whose roots end in इ i or ई ī, form the infinitive in अब ab or उब ub. Thus, सि si, sew, makes सिअब siab or सिउब siub.

Those verbs whose roots end in ऊ ū, form the infinitive in अब ab or इब ib. Thus चू cū, drip, makes चूअब cūab, or चूइब cūib, to drip.

Those verbs whose roots end in ओ ō, form the infinitive in अब ab or एब eb. Thus the root धो dhō, wash, makes धोअब dhōab or धोएब dhōeb, to wash.

Irregular are :—

✓ हो hō, become, Infinitive होअब hōeb or होब haib.

✓ दे dē give, Infinitive देब dēb.

✓ ले lē take, Infinitive लेब lēb.

This verbal noun is derived from the Sanskrit future passive participle in तव्य tavya, and is hence employed in the formation of the future tense.

180. (c) The third verbal noun is formed by adding अल al to the root (see § 68), thus देखल dēkhal, the act of seeing. The oblique form is देखला dēkhalā, and the rules for its declension together with examples are given in § 81, ante. This verbal noun is generally the same as the past participle, but when the latter is irregular the verbal noun sometimes takes the regular form. Thus the ✓ जा jā, go, has its past participle (irregular) गेल gel, but its third verbal noun is जाअल jāel. From this example it will be seen that (compare the second verbal noun), it ends sometimes in अल al instead of अब ab. The rule is the same as in the case of अब ab.

The instrumental or locative of this verbal noun (or perhaps of the past participle) in ल al, is often used absolutely to indicate continued action. Thus :—एक गैमारी गोशारिनि माथ पर मटकुरी धैलें ललि आरबलि ek gamārⁱ goārinⁱ māth par maṭ^okurī dhailēⁱ calⁱ jāichalⁱ, a foolish milkmaid, by placing a curd-pot on her head, was going along. That is to say, she was going along with a curd-pot on her head.

Similarly we have from the ✓ ले lē, take, लेलें जाप्रब lēlē jāeb, to take away with one, लेलें आप्रब lēlē āeb, to bring with one. In such common phrases न n is often substituted for ल l, so that we have लेनें जाप्रब lēnē jāeb or even नेनें आप्रब nēnē āeb. These forms are different in meaning from forms such as ले जाप्रब lai jāeb (Hindi ले जाना lē jānā) to take away or ले आप्रब lai āeb (Hindi ले आना lē ānā) or लाप्रब lāeb (Hindi लाना lānā) to bring. They correspond rather to the Hindi लिये जाना liyē jānā, to take away with one.

Examples of such forms are :—

हमरो समाद नैहर लेनें जाह hamarō samāda naihara lēnē jāhū, take away with you a message for my father's house also (Vid. lxxix. 10).

अहिरा गोशार समाद नेनें अबैत बैक ahirā goār samād nēnē abait chaik, Ahirā Goār is bringing the news with him.

ले जाह सलहेस के ... कचे बांस के फटा सो पीठि ओदारि देब lai jāh sal^hhēs kē ... kacē bās ke phathā sō pīṭhi odārⁱ dēb, take away Salhēs ... with a split piece of green bamboo flay his back. (बांस के bās ke is not a Maithili form. It is borrowed, as often happens in folktales, from another dialect, viz., Bhojpurī. The correct Maithili would be बांसक bāsak or बांस केर bās kēr.)

जकर बेदुली लाप्रल तकर तिरिखा केहन सुरखी jakar bedulī lāel takar tiriā kehan sur^okhī, how fair must the woman who owns the spangle which you brought !

181. The Noun of Agency, corresponding to the Hindi noun in बाह्ना wāḷā, is formed by adding बाह bāh or बाह् wāh to the root. Thus देखबाह dekh^abāh or देखबाह् dekh^awāh, a seer, one who sees. See § 72.

182. The Present Participle is formed by adding ऐत ait, often written अइत ait or अयित ayit, to the root (see § 64). Thus देखैत dekhaiṭ, देखइत dekhaiṭ, or देखयित dekhayit, seeing. The ऐ ai of this termination is very unstable. Thus with verbs whose roots end in a long vowel, the termination becomes इत it, as in जाइत jāit, going; होइत hōit, or होइत hōit, becoming. The ✓ सि si, sew, has सिऐत siait, सिउत siut, and सिइत siit, but ✓ पी pī, drink, makes पिबैत pibait, just as ✓ पाब pāb, obtain, has पबैत pabait. The ✓ दे dē, give, and the ✓ ले lē, take, have, respectively, दैत duit and लैत lait for their present participles. In the Past Conditional tense, which is formed from this participle, the ऐत ait is, as a rule, similarly weakened. Thus देखितअँ dekhitaḥ^a, (if) I had seen.

183. By adding the oblique termination हँ hi to the weakened present participle we get a form called the “Adverbial Participle.” Thus देखितहँ dekhitaḥⁱ, on seeing, in the act of seeing, immediately on seeing, equivalent to the Hindī देखते-ही dēkh^atē-hī. The following are examples of the employment of these participles:—

कनैत खिजैत धामो आपल kanait (✓ कान kān) khijait (✓ खीज khīj) dhāmī āel, Dhāmī came weeping and feeling angry (note the shortening of the antepenultimate vowel).

हमरा सबहिक देखैत स्वामि-धन हथा नष्ट होइह ham^arā sab^ahik dekhaiṭ swāmī-dhan vr̥thā naṣṭ hōich, in our presence [lit. (in the) seeing of us] our master's property is being destroyed.

दीमा राम के धरितहँ भद्रोक छुनौ कछुनी चुटि गेल dīnā rām kē dharitaḥⁱ bhadrik ehunī kehunī chuṭi gēl, immediately on (Phoṭ^arā's) seizing Dīnā Rām, Bhadrī's knees and elbows were freed.

184. The Past Participle is usually formed by adding अल al to the root (see § 68). When the root ends in a vowel, or in आब āb, the vowel of the suffix is liable to change, much as the termination अब ab of the second verbal noun is changed. Thus :—

Verbs whose roots end in आ ā, add एल el. Thus ✓ घबड़ा ghabārā, to be agitated, past participle घबड़ाएल ghabārāel.

Verbs whose roots end in आब āb, add ओल ol. Thus, from ✓ पाब pāb, obtain, पाओल pāol.

Verbs whose roots end in इ i or ई ī, add अल al or उल ul. Thus from ✓ सि si, sew, सिअल siul or सिउल siul, from ✓ पी pī, drink, पीउल pīul.

Verbs whose roots end in ऊ ū take अल al or इल il. Thus, from ✓ चू cū, drip, चूअल cūal or चूइल cūil.

Verbs whose roots end in ओ ō take अल al or एल el. Thus, from ✓ धो dhō, wash, धोअल dhōal or धोएल dhōel.

Six verbs have irregular past participles as follows :—

✓ कर kar , do	Past Participle कैल kail .
✓ धर dhar , seize, place	.. धैल dhail .
✓ मर mar , die	.. मरल maral or मुइल muil .
✓ दे dē , give	.. देल dēl .
✓ ले lē , take	.. लेल lēl .
✓ हो hō , become	.. भेल bhēl .

The past participle भेल bhēl, added to another past participle, imparts to it more of the character of an adjective, and, at the same time, adds completeness to the idea. Thus, सुतल भेल, sūtal bhēl, asleep; देखल भेल dēkhal bhēl, seen.

The instrumental of the past participle is employed in conjugation to form the perfect and pluperfect tenses.

I have not come across many good instances in literature of the use of the past participle as an adjective. It is, of course, extremely commonly employed in the formation of the tenses. The following may be taken as examples of the adjectival use:—

एक गरीब परोसिया जाइक मारल घर सँ निकसि आएल, ek garīb parosiya jāṛak mārāl ghar saṁ nikasī āel, a poor neighbour, struck of (i.e. by) cold, came forth from (his) house.

185. The Conjunctive Participle corresponds to the Hindi देख कर dēkh kar, having seen, and is properly the same in form as the first verbal noun. Thus, देखि dēkhī (or देख dēkh), having seen. This is the form we generally find in poetry or proverbs, but in the modern language it is usual to add the suffixes के ke, कै kaī, or कैक kaikāī. Thus देखि के dēkhī ke, देखि कै dēkhī kaī, देखि कैक dēkhī kaikāī, having seen. A poetical form of कै kaī is कहूँ kahūṁ, thus डूबि कहूँ dūbī kahūṁ, having dived. The following verbs have irregular conjunctive participles. Only the short form is given in each case. The suffixes can be added as usual:—

- | | | |
|-------------------------------------|-------------|---|
| ✓ कर kar , do | Conj. Part. | करि karī , के ke , कै kai , or कय kay ,
कए kue , कै kā . |
| ✓ धर dhar , seize,
place. | .. | धरि dharī , धै dhai , or धय dhay , धए dhae , धै dhā . |
| ✓ आ ā , come | .. | आबि ābī , आर āi , or आय āy . |
| ✓ दे dē , give | .. | दे dē , दै dai , दय day , दए dae , दै dai ,

C. Finite Tenses.

186. Gender.—As in the case of nouns, the Maithili verb has two genders, Masculine and Feminine. Feminine forms are, as a rule, only used when the subject is a feminine animate being. The first person never shows any distinction of gender, nor do those forms (see § 188, below) in which respect is shown to the object. It follows that only those forms of the 2nd and the 3rd persons, whose objects are non-honorific (Groups I and II below), ever change for the feminine gender. Even in these persons there are many forms which are of common gender.

187. Long and Redundant Forms.—Verbs have short, long, and redundant forms just like nouns. I have not discovered any difference in their meaning. The long form is most often made by adding ऐ ai to the short form, and the redundant form by adding क k to the long form. Thus we have (short form) देखैही dekhaichī, I see, of which the long form is देखैहिऐ dekhaichiai, and the redundant form is देखैहिऐक dekhaichiaik. Similarly, we have (short form) देखलक dekh^alak, he saw, long form देखलकै dekh^alakai, redundant form देखलकैक dekh^alakaik. In some forms of the second person the long form is made by adding अहँ ah or अहुँ ah^u and the redundant form by adding अहँक ah^ak or अहुँक ah^uk with variations of spelling, which will appear in the paradigms. Thus, देख dēkh, thou seest, long form देखहँ dēkhāh or देखहुँ dēkhah^u, redundant form देखहँक dēkh^ah^ak or देखहुँक dēkh^ah^uk.

These long and redundant forms are confined to those groups of inflexions in which the object is non-honorific (vide § 188). Even then, there is no long or redundant form for the third person when the subject is honorific. They are thus confined to the following cases.

First and second persons—Subject non-honorific, object non-honorific (Group I), or subject honorific, object non-honorific (Group II).

Third person—Subject non-honorific, object non-honorific (Group I).

These groups are described below in § 188.

Examples of the employment of these long and redundant forms are as follows :—

1st Person. Short Form :—मारब धनुषा देब खँसाब, mārab dhanukhā, dēb khāsōy, I will strike him (with an arrow) from the bow, I will fell him.

Long Form:—फड़ि बेरिया मारबै धरती देबै लोटाय, chⁱ beriyā mā^abai, dhar^oti dēbai loṭāy, at this time I will strike him, I will cause him to roll upon the ground.

Redundant Form:—तड़ि ठाम देबैक धुनी खंसाय, tōhⁱ thām debaik dhunī khāsōy, at that place we shall set (lit. cause to fall) our fire (on the ground).

3rd Person. Short Form:—घड़ि एक चलबै पहर बिंति गेल gharⁱ ek cal^abē pahar biⁱ gēl, after travelling a few (lit. one) half-hours, a watch (of the day) passed.

Long Form:—तखन गेलै गंगुआ रजमुआ, takhan gēlai Gāguā rajamuā, then Gangū the barber went.

Redundant Form.—सात नींदै सुतलै बलैक फेकुनी काँचे नींद मै उठलैक चिहाय, sāt nīdō sūtalⁱ chal^aik phēkunī, kācē nīd mē uth^alaik cihāy, Phēkunī was sleeping in seven sleeps (at once), and in drowsiness she started up.

188. Number. Non-honorific and Honorific forms.—Before going further it must be explained once for all that the Maithilī verb does not change for number. There is no distinction between singular and plural. On the other hand, there is a distinction between the non-honorific and honorific forms (which, indeed, by derivation, are respectively singular and plural). In the finite tenses there are thus four groups of forms for each person, according as the subject or as the object is treated honorifically.

These four groups are :—

- (I) Subject non-honorific ; object non-honorific. E.g., he (a slave) or it sees him (a slave) or it.
- (II) Subject honorific ; object non-honorific. E.g., he (a king) sees him (a slave) or it.
- (III) Subject non-honorific ; object honorific. E.g., he (a slave) or it sees him (a king).
- (IV) Subject honorific ; object honorific. E.g., he (a king) sees him (a king).

Except in the case of the 3rd person of group IV, all the forms of groups III and IV (in which the object is honorific) are made from the long forms of groups I and II (in which it is non-honorific) respectively, by lengthening the final vowels when necessary, and adding न्हि nhⁱ.

In the case of the 3rd person of group IV, there is no long form of the 3rd person of group II from which to make it. It is therefore made from the short form of the 3rd person of group II, in a manner similar to that of the formation of the other persons of group IV.

Examples of these third and fourth groups are:—

1st person: long form, groups I and II, देखेबिष्टे dekhaichiai,
I see; groups III and IV, देखेबिष्टेन्हि dekhaichiainhⁱ.

2nd person: long form, group I, देखेबह् dekhaichah^u, you see; group III, देखेबह्न्हि dekhaichahūnhⁱ.

2nd person: long form, group II, देखेबिष्टे dekhaichiai, you (honorific) see; group IV, देखेबिष्टेन्हि dekhaichiainhⁱ.

3rd person: long form, group I, देखेबे dekhaichai, he sees; group III, देखेबेन्हि dekhaichainhⁱ.

3rd person: short form, group II, देखेबथि dekhaichathⁱ, he (honorific) sees; group IV, देखेबथीन्हि dekhaichathīnhⁱ.

In the above explanations I have employed the words “slave” and “king” to illustrate the non-honorific and honorific forms respectively, but, in common use, the distinction is not nearly so marked as this. As a practical guide, we may say that human beings are generally referred to by honorific forms, unless they are distinctly inferior, such as low-caste people, slaves, etc. On the other hand, inanimate things and irrational animals are almost always referred to as non-honorific.

In regard to Groups III and IV, I have said that the object must be honorific. The object may be the direct object or may be the indirect object. Either has the same effect on the verbal form. Thus, in the second, fourth and sixth of the following examples, of the use of these forms, the honorific object is indirect:—

First person (Groups I and II) and second person (Group II) (long forms) (as will be seen from § 190, these three are always the same in form). प्रहि बेरिया मारबे धरती देबे लोटाय, ehi beriyā mārabi dharatī dēbai loṭāy, this time I will strike him and cause him to roll over (on) the ground.

First person (Groups III and IV) and second person (Group IV). सम मशाला लक्ष्मी दाद के अपने चुपे देबैन्हि, sabha masālā Lach^{mī} Dāi kē ap^{ane} cuppē dēbainhi, your Honour will give all the spices privately to (the respected) Lakṣmī Dāi.

Second person (Group I) (long form). कौन दिसा के अबैत होऐ कहज बुझाय, kōn disā kē abait hōai kahaj^u bujhāy, explain and tell in what direction he is coming.

Second person (Group III). कालू सदा अम्मा निरसो के कहहून्हि जोगिया जाई, Kālū Sadā Ammā Nirasō kē kah^uhūnhī Jogiyā jāī, say to (the respected) Kalū Sadā and mother Nirsō, 'go to Jogiyā.'

Third person (Group I) (long form). ओकरा प्रहि तरहे घबड़ाएल देखि के एक मनुष्य कहलकै, okarā ehi tar^{ahē} ghabarāel dēkhⁱ kē ek manusya kahal^{ak}kai, seeing him (the fool) thus agitated a certain man said to him —.

Third person (Group III). मोनशी कहलथीन्हि नहिं हो, अजी लिखेकी । ओ कहलकैन्हि तँ हमरो सही के दिख, mon^āśī kahal^{ath}īnhī (Group IV), 'nahī hau, arjī likhaichī. Ō kahal^{ak}kainhi, 'tā hamarō sahī kai diā, the (respected) scribe I said (politely) to (the unknown and respected stranger), 'it is not (what you think it is, —hau not hai, see § 141), I am writing a petition.' He (i.e. the stranger who was an impudent fool) said (to the respected scribe). 'then please to put my signature also.'

Third person (Group II) (short form). देहि दुनू भाद बाँड़ि देलथि, dēhi dunū bhāi chōⁱ dēlathī, the two (famous) brothers (the heroes of the story) left their bodies.

Third person (Group IV). कालू सदा दीना भद्रो के बैसै देलथीन्हि, Kālū Sadā Dinā Bhadrō kē buisai del^{ath}īnhī, (the respected) Kālū Sadā made (the two famous brothers) Dīnā and Bhadrī sit down.

Another example occurs above under 'Third person (Group III).'

189. So far we have been dealing only with transitive verbs. Intransitive verbs have only an indirect object, and, in their case, the use of Groups III and IV is rather lax. They are, of course, employed when the indirect object is honorific, but they are also found when the verb has no object at all and when the subject, not the object is honorific. Thus :

तखन गंगा-जी कहे लगलथीन्हि, tukhan Gaṅgā-jī kahai lagal^a-thīnhⁱ, then they began to say to (the holy) Ganges.

बहुत दिन भेलैन्हि अहाँ लोकनि तकाजा नहिँ करैछिन्हि, bahut din bhelainhⁱ aḥū lokaⁿi takājā nahⁱ karaichin^h, many days (have) passed (since) you (honorific) have pressed (the respected Bhōlā Sāhu) (for the money he owes).

In the former of these two examples it will be seen that the honorific object is indirect. In the second example the close connection with a sentence having an honorific subject and an honorific direct object as well, is responsible for the form of भेलैन्हि bhelainhⁱ.

Instances of intransitive verbs with an honorific subject are much more common, especially when the subject is plural. In fact we have here a survival of the old plural signification of these forms (see the first paragraph of § 188).

Thus :—

दीना भद्रौ मरि गेलैन्हि, Dīnā Bhadrī marⁱ gelainhⁱ (Group III), Dīnā and Bhadrī are dead. Here, if the verb were transitive, the subject would be non-honorific, as the form belongs to Group III. In an intransitive verb it is honorific plural.

जाहिँ सँ नाम चलैन्हि से हमर किरिया करैह, jāhⁱ sē nām calainhⁱ sē hamar kiriyā karāh, perform our funeral rites that our (famous) names may be current (i.e. endure).

कोनो धनिक के दुइ बेटा रहैन्हि । जखन ऊनक बाप मरि गेलथीन्हि kōno dhanik kē dui bēṭā rahainhī (Group III). Jakhn hunak bāp marī gelathīnhī, to a certain (respected) rich man there were two (respected) sons. When the (respected) father of (the respected) them died

190. Person.—It is in denoting the persons that the complex character of the Maithilī verb is most manifest. There are many forms for each person. The following is a brief sketch of personal terminations.

In the first case we must note that the first person is the same whether the subject is honorific or not ; also that the second person honorific is always the same as the first person. Thus देखै dekhaichī means I or we (non-honorific), or I or we (honorific) see, or thou (honorific) seest, or you (honorific) see.

191. The rule of attraction.—In the case of some of the personal terminations, there is an important rule to be applied. It is called the rule of attraction, and is peculiar to Bihārī. We have seen that when the object of a verb is honorific certain special forms are used. Similarly, there are special forms when the object is in the second person. These forms only occur in the case of forms with a non-honorific object whose terminations contain the letter ऐ ai, and are made by changing ऐ ai to औ au. Thus देखल dekh^alak, देखलकै dekhal^akai, or देखलकैक dekhal^akaik, he saw, but देखलक dekhl^alak, देखलकौ dekhal^akau, or देखलकौक dekhal^akauk, he saw you. The relationship of the second person with the object need not be very direct, as will be seen from the fourth of the following examples :—

मुरता नेना के मारलकै, Mur^atā nēnā kē māral^akai, Murtā struck the boy.

मुरता तोहरा के मारलकौ, Mur^atā toh^arā kē māral^akau, Murtā struck you.

ओकरा गाड़ी में कोन माल है, ok^arā gāṛī mē kōn māl hai, what goods are there in his cart ?

तोहरा गाड़ी में कोन माल छौ tōh^arā gāṛī mē kōn māl chau, what goods are there in your cart ?

Note further, as to spelling, that the ऐ ai is quite frequently written अइ ai, अए ae or even अय ay, so that instead of चै chai in the penultimate example we may have चइ chai, चए chae or चय chay. Similarly instead of औ au, we may have अउ au or अओ ao. Thus instead of चौ chau we sometimes see written चउ chau or चओ chao. Historically, these औ au terminations are contractions of अइ ah^u, and we sometimes come across this spelling, especially in poetry. Thus for दिऔ dian, let me give you, I have met दिअइ diah^u, which has the same meaning.

192. It will be remembered that the 2nd person honorific is always the same as the first person. With regard to this there is one reservation, viz., that the rule of attraction does not apply to the second person. Thus देखैछौ dekhaichau, means only 'I, or we. see you'; it does not mean 'you (honorific) see you.' In the second person the termination औ au is only used to refer to the subject. Thus in the Gīt Dīnā-bhadri (149), we have जैबौ जोगिया जहाँ गाम jairban Jogiyā jahā gām, you will go to where is the village of Jogiyā. In the first person जैबौ jairban would mean 'I will go to your (house, or some such word).' Moreover 'you see you' would be an impossible idea in Maithili. We should have to say 'you see (your) self,' which is a different thing altogether and does not bring in the rule of attraction. It thus follows that the rule of attraction only applies to the first and third persons. Examples are :-

First person, देखलिऐ dekh^aliai, देखलिऐक dekh^aliaik, I or we saw; देखलिऔ dekh^aliau or देखलिऔक dekh^aliauk, I or we saw you.

Third person, non-honorific subject, non-honorific object देखलकै dekh^alakai or देखलकैक dekh^alakik, he or they saw; देखलकौ dekh^alakai or देखलकौक dekh^alakuk, he or they saw you.

I have very rarely come across forms like देखलकौन्ह dekh^a-kainhⁱ (from देखलकैन्ह dekh^alakainhⁱ), he (non-honorific) saw you (honorific) (Group III), but I doubt if they were correct. I have never met such in conversation. At the same time it may be noted that in the present conjunctive there is a form in अ०न्दि anhi, which is peculiar to this tense, and which has no special reference to the 2nd person. It has nothing to do with the rule of attraction.

On the other hand, just as a redundant form is obtained by changing ऐ ai to ऐक aik, so a redundant form is quite commonly made by changing औ au to औक auk. Thus the redundant form of देखलौ dekh^{au}li is देखलौक dekh^{au}li^{auk}, as in the above examples.

193. Other Personal Terminations.—Before taking up the general aspect of this question, we may notice the frequently occurring terminations अ०थि athi and अ०न्दि anhi. These are peculiar in the third person in the second group, in which the subject only is honorific. In the tenses formed from the past participle, अ०थि athi is used only with transitive verbs, but अ०न्दि anhi is not subject to this restriction.

In the case of intransitive verbs, we have अ०ह āh, instead of अ०थि athi, in the tenses formed from the past participle. But अ०ह āh is not confined to the 3rd person. In the 3rd person it is honorific like अ०थि athi, but it can also be employed for the second person non-honorific. Thus सुतल०ह sut^{al}āh means either ‘he or they (honorific) slept,’ or else ‘thou or you (non-honorific) slept.’

अ०ह āh, is also used honorifically in the third person of the future of both transitive and intransitive verbs.

अ०ह āh has a feminine form ईह ih or ई०हि ihⁱ. Thus सुतलीह sut^{al}ih or सुतली०हि sut^{al}ihⁱ, she or they (fem.) (honorific) slept or thou or you (fem. non-hon.) slept. अ०थि athi and अ०न्दि anhi have no special feminine forms. They are of common gender.

We may give the following examples of the use of these terminations :—

अन्धि anhⁱ.

Past Conditional (formed from present participle)—औतन्धि

दुरागमन करैतन्धि जमैया जाँज्रि, autanhⁱ (intransitive), durāgaman karaitanhⁱ (transitive) jamaiyā Jājariⁱ (if) (the two famous) sons-in-law had come, they would have performed (the ceremony of) durāgaman at Jānjari.

Past Indicative (formed from past participle)—बड़ फभौत दीना

भद्री कैलन्धि दुनू भाइ, baṛ phajhait Dinā Bhadriⁱ kailanhⁱ (transitive) dunū bhāi, great indignity did the two (famous) brothers, Dinā and Bhadri (to me).

Perfect (formed from past participle) फेर ऐलन्धि अछि से

देखलक लोग सभ, pher ailanhⁱ achi sē dekh^{al}ak lōg sabh, the people saw (that) (the respected Dinā and Bhadri) have come back.

In old poetry, this termination is often written as a suffix, without the disappearance of the initial अ a. Thus, we have in Manbōdh's Haribans :—

कनक मुकुट भलकल-अन्धि द्वार, kanaka mukuṭa jhalakala-anhi dwāra, the golden diadem gleamed in the doorway.

जनि भपटल-अन्धि बाज बटेरि, jani jhapatālu-anhi bāja baṭeri, as a falcon swooped upon a quail

In the old poetry we even find this termination suffixed to the termination अइ āh as in the following passage from the same poem :—

कऊ खन नाचथि गावथि गीत ।

कैतइ-अन्धि से परलए बीत ।

Kahu khana nācathi gābathi gīta.

Kaitāha-anhi sē paralae bīta.

(The child Kṛṣṇa) sometimes danceth and sometimes singeth songs, (if) he will eat (transitive future), a whole age passeth away (i.e., an age used to pass even in getting him away from his play to eat).

So we have it added to the termination अथि athⁱ, in the following from the same :—

पूछि-अन्ति तौ भदबा कहब, pūchalhi-anhi taū bhadabā kahaba, if he (Kṛṣṇa) ask you, then you will say that it is an unlucky day.

अथि athⁱ.

Old Present (formed from the root) :—

कनक धामी के कहिहोन्हि बुझाय । दुनू बेटीक कहिहोन्हि जे कोहबर
करथि तैयार । दुनू जमाय मारल गेलैन्हि ।

Kanak Dhāmī kē kahihauñhⁱ bujhāy, dunū bēṭīk kahihauñhⁱ jē koh^abar karathⁱ (transitive) taiyār, dunū jamāy mārāl gelainhⁱ,

Tell and explain to (the respected) Kanak Dhāmī. Tell him that the two (respected) sons-in-law for whom he (the respected one) is preparing the marriage bowers of his two daughters, have been glain.

कालू सदा बैठल रहथि दरबाजा, Kālū Sadā baiṭhal rahathⁱ (in-transitive) dur^abājā (the respected) Kālū Sadā was (lit. remains) seated at his doorway.

Past indicative (formed from past participle) :—

देहि दुनू भाद कोड़ि देलथि, dēhⁱ dunū bhāi chōṛⁱ dēlathⁱ, the two (famous) brothers left their bodies

अह āh. Third person honorific.

Future Indicative (transitive or intransitive) :—राजा भीम सेन

कहतह हाल हम नहिं जानी, rājā Bhīm Sain kah^atāh hāl, ham nahⁱ jānī, Rājā Bhim Sēn will tell (transitive) the affair, we do not know.

आहि तरह जाति में रहतह से उपाय के देबहीन्हि, jāhⁱ tarah jāṭⁱ mē rah^atāh sē upāy ke deb^ahinⁱ, you will arrange so that they may remain (intransitive) in caste.

Past Indicative (only intransitive) :—भद्रौक चागु सल्हेस भे गेलाच
ठाढ़ि, Bhadrik āgū Salhēs bhai gē'āh thāṛhī, before Bhadri
(the famous) Salhēs took his stand.

Feminine examples are :—डेगे डेगे चललीच जोजन भरि जाइ जुमलीच अपना फुलवाड़ी, dēgē dēgē calālīh, jōjan bharī jāi jumālīh apānā phul'awāṛī, step by step she went, having gone a full league she arrived at her garden.

धामीक सबद सुनि उठलीच दीना भद्रौक माइ चिहाय, Dhāmīk sabad sunī uṭhālīhī Dīnā Bhadrik māi cihāy, hearing Dhāmi's voice, the mother of Dīnā and Bhadri started up.

Second person non honorific : कोन गरु परल जे सुतलाच खटबाइ, kaun garū paral jē sutalāh khaṭ'abāi, what calamity has befallen (you) that you are sleeping on your bed ?

194. Tenses. The tenses of the Maithili verb are the same as in Bengali, and are conjugated very similarly in their main principles.

We may divide them into—

- (a)—Tenses formed from the root.
- (b)—The Future.
- (c)—Tenses formed from the Present Participle.
- (d)—Tenses formed from the Past Participle.

The first three classes are conjugated in the same way whether a verb is transitive or intransitive ; but the tenses formed from the past participle are conjugated differently according to whether the verb is transitive or intransitive. In this respect, we may note that the verb substantive is treated as intransitive.

The following is a list of the more usual tenses :—

- (a) (1) Old Present Indicative
- (2) Present Conditional
- (3) Imperative
- formed from the root.
- (b) (4) Future Indicative
- of mixed formation.

- (c) (5) Past Conditional
- (6) Present Indicative
- (7) Imperfect Indicative formed from the present participle.
- (d) (8) Past Indicative
- (9) Perfect Indicative
- (10) Pluperfect Indicative formed from the past participle.

195. I now proceed to give the personal terminations of these tenses in the case of regular verbs whose roots end in consonants. When a root ends in a vowel, the addition of the termination causes some anomalies which will be discussed under the head of Vocalic Roots in Chapter IV. Similarly, there are a few irregular verbs which will be specially dealt with in Chapter V.

Some of the examples which I give of the various terminations, are instances of these anomalous formations. I had to do this when no other examples were available. In such cases I have invariably drawn attention to the fact, or have given a reference to the section where the anomaly is dealt with.

When there are two or more forms in use for one person of one group or section of a group, I put the one most commonly employed first. The order of forms in the following paradigms has nothing to do with derivation. In fact, the oldest forms, being seldom employed, usually come last. For instance, the termination iah^w of the long form of the first person, Groups I and II with the object in the second person, of the Old Present, is certainly the original of the termination iauu. But I put iauu first because it is the one commonly met with. Iah^w is seldom heard, and the third termination given in the paradigms, iā, only occurs in poetry. Unless feminine forms are specially given, all forms are of common gender.

196. The three tenses formed from the root,—the Old Present, the Present Conditional, and the Imperative,—are all really variants of one tense. Custom has, however, ordained slight variations in the conjugation according to the use to which the tense is put. It will be seen (§ 201) that this tense is also employed as a future.

(a) (1) The Old Present is not much used now-a-days, except in poetry and proverbs and in idiomatic phrases, such as कौ कौ कौ कौ कौ kā kahi, what am I to say? It is conjugated by adding the personal terminations to the root direct. These are as follows:—

PERSON.	SHORT FORM.		LONG FORM.		REDUNDANT FORM.		GROUP III. (Subject : non-honorific. Object : non-honorific.)	GROUP IV. (Subject : honorific. Object : honorific.)
	GROUP I. (Subject : non-honorific. Object : non-honorific.)	GROUP II. (Subject : honorific. Object : non-honorific.)	GROUP I. (Subject : non-honorific. Object : non-honorific.)	GROUP II. (Subject : honorific. Object : non-honorific.)	GROUP I. (Subject : non-honorific. Object : non-honorific.)	GROUP II. (Subject : honorific. Object : non-honorific.)
1	i.	i.	Or (with object in 2nd person). idā, idhā, or *id.	Or (with object in 2nd person). itā. itak.	Same as 1st person, but no forms for object in 2nd person.	Same as 1st person, but no forms for object in 2nd person.	itānhi
2	(The bare root).	Same as 1st person.	āh, ahā, au ; fem. ahī, āhī.	Same as 1st person, but no forms for object in 2nd person.	ahā, ahuk, ahik.	Same as 1st person, but no forms for object in 2nd person.	ahānhi	Same as 1st person.
3	2. *a, *u *ahī.	ai (ae). Or (with object in 2nd person.) au (or ahā.)	Or (with object in 2nd person.) ai. auk.	Or (with object in 2nd person.) itā. itak.	Or (with object in 2nd person.) itā. itak.	Or (with object in 2nd person.) itā. itak.	ahānhi. ahānhi.

In the above, forms which are chiefly employed in poetry are marked with an asterisk. Besides these we may mention a non-honorific first person singular in ō occasionally used by the vulgar, and an old form of the second person in asi, found in Vidyāpati. Thus:—

पुखबड़ि बन्दौं सुरज purubah̄ bandō̄ suruj, in the East I worship the sun.

मृगमद पंक करसि अंग रागा mrga-mada paṅka karasi āga rāgā, with paste of musk dost thou anoint (thy) limbs (Vid. xii, 2)

As examples of the use of this tense, we may quote the following:—

First Person: मरी पिआस पिआबऊ पानि, marī piāsa piābahu pāni, I die of thirst, give me water to drink (Vid. xii, 2).

आज देखिटे सखि बड़ि अनुमनि सनि, āja (for āja) dekhinī sakhi bari anumani sani, to-day, O friend, I see her very melancholy (Vid. xxxiv, 1).

दौरौ गाम सुनिटेक, Daurī gām suniat̄k, I hear (the name of) the village Dauri.

Second Person:—(I have not come across any instance of the second person of this tense used in literature. There are examples of this person in the Present Conditional, and in the Imperative.)

राऊ दूरि बसु निअरो न आबयि तैं नहिं करथि मरासे, Rāhu dūri basu niaro na ābathi, tē nahī karathi garāsē, Rāhu (the demon of eclipse) (i.e., her hair) dwelleth afar off, and doth not approach (the sun and moon, i.e., her eyes), and therefore he doth not eclipse them (Vid. xiv, 8).

कटला तरु जक खसु अड़राय, kaṭalā taru jaka khasu aṛarāya, she falls screaming like a severed tree (Man. ii, 52).

भनहिं विद्यापति, bhanahī Bidyāpati, saith Vidyāpati (Vid. passim).

इतनी लिखैक भिनतिया, itānī likhaik minatiyā, so much (in the way of) respectful salutations he writes.

दीना भद्रिक कनेहि जोनिषा दोस्त महीम, Dīnā Bhadrīk kanaiṇh' (✓kān) Jogiyā dōst mahīm, the friends and lovers of (the respected) Dīnā and Bhadrī all weep in Jogiyā.

198. (a) (2). The Present Conditional is only a variant of the Old Present, from which it is derived. It prefers to substitute औ au for ऐ ai, in the third person. In this case the औ au (also written अह ah or औ o) does not indicate that the object is in the second person. The forms in ऐ ai of the Old Present are also occasionally met in this tense. The following are the terminations. Those marked with an asterisk are chiefly used in poetry :—

PERSON.	SHORT FORM.		LONG FORM.		REDUNDANT FORM.		GROUP IV.
	GROUP I. (Subject : non-honorific. Object : non-honorific.)	GROUP II. (Subject : honorific. Object : non-honorific.)	GROUP I. (Subject : non-honorific. Object : non-honorific.)	GROUP II. (Subject : honorific. Object : non-honorific.)	GROUP I. (Subject : non-honorific. Object : non-honorific.)	GROUP II. (Subject : honorific. Object : non-honorific.)
1	i		iai Or (with object in 2nd person.) iaū, iaḥ*, ia		Or (with object in 2nd person.) iaik iauk		iainh
2		Same as 1st person. (The bare root).	Same as 1st person, but no forms for object in 2nd person. āh, ah*, au; fem. ahī, āhī*.		Same as 1st person, but no forms for object in 2nd person. ahāḥ, ahuk, ahik.		Same as 1st person. ahanh*
3	ē, *a, u.	athī, ath	au, ah*, ō, (sometimes ai).	...	auk (sometimes aik)	...	ainh* aanh* athinh*, ethanh*.

The following are examples of the use of this tense :—

First person :—आठम दिन चोर माल हाजिर करी नहिं हाजिर करी तो नौम दिन तोहरा सौं विवाह करी, āṭham dīn cōr māl hājir karī (future) ; nahī hājir karī (pres. conditional), tau naum dīn toh^{ra} sāū bibāh karī (future), on the eighth day I will produce the thief (and) the stolen, property ; (if) I do not produce (them), then on the ninth day I will marry you.

कौ कहिचौक ki kahīauk, what am I to say (on your behalf).

Second person :—जखन अपनै चाही तखन तोड़वा लेल जाई, jakhan ap^{ne} cāhī, takhan tor^{wa} lēl jāī, when you, sir, may desire, then have (the fruit) plucked and take it away.

सत्य० पूछी satya pūchī, (if) your honour ask the truth.

नहिं पतियाइ तो आविहै, nahī patiyāh^u (✓ patiyā + ah^u) to ābihē, if she do not believe you, then come.

जाहि सँ नाम चलैहि से हमर किरिया करैह, jāhī sē nām calai^h sē hamar kiriyā karāh, perform our funeral rites that our name may endure.

199. (a) (3). The Imperative is again a variant of the Present Conditional. The first person usually ends in \bar{u} , instead of \bar{i} , although the latter is also used. There are a number of alternative forms of the second person. The following are the terminations. To these the termination \bar{a} gá, also employed for the future, is often added without affecting the sense. Terminations marked with an asterisk are chiefly used in poetry.

PERSON.	SHORT FORM.		LONG FORM.		REDUNDANT FORM.
	GROUP I. (Subject : non-honorific. Object : non-honorific.)	GROUP II. (Subject : honorific. Object : non-honorific.)	GROUP I. (Subject : non-honorific. Object : non-honorific.)	GROUP II. 3	\bar{e} , \bar{u} , \bar{a} .		$\bar{a}\bar{u}$, $\bar{a}\bar{h}\bar{u}$, \bar{o} , (sometimes $\bar{a}\bar{i}$.)		$\bar{a}\bar{u}\bar{h}\bar{i}$.

The following are examples of the use of this tense:—

अपना अपना घर में सुन्नर खाप्रक कर-गँ, apṇā apṇā ghar mē sunnar khāprak kar-gā, each in your own house prepare beautiful food. (A mother-in-law is addressing her daughters-in-law. Hence non-honorific terms are used).

200. There are various forms of a respectful imperative in the second person, made by adding रहै ihē, रहै iā (or रह्य iyā), रहै idh, रहै iā, रहौक iauk, रहौक ihauk, रहौन्हि ihaunhⁱ, रहयि ihathⁱ, or बहौन्हि bahīnhⁱ to the root. These I call Mild Imperatives. There are also some periphrastic respectful forms made by combining the 2nd verbal noun in ल l, with the Imperative or Future of the जा jā, go, which I call the Respectful Imperative and the Respectful Future respectively. Examples of these are as follows :—

नहिं पतियाऊ तो आविहै, nahⁱ patiyāh^u, to ābihē, if she do not believe you, then please to come.

दीस निगम दुर आनि मिलाबिय ।

ताहि दिख बिधि मुख आध ॥

Dīsa nigama dui āni milābiya (m.c. for milābiyā).

Tāhi dia (m.c. for diā) Bidhi-mukha ādha (Vid. xvii., 4).

Join the (ten) directions to the (four) vēdas, and to that add half the (four) faces of Brahmā.

प्रक बेरि ऊकुम दिख, ek bēri hukum diā, please give (me) the order but once. (cf. the example of दिङ् dih^u, in § 199).

तहाँ तौ बैसिह हम जाइत हौ दौरी गाम, tahā tō baisihā, ham jāit chī Daurī gām, please sit there, I am going to Dauri village.

प्रक सेर अन्न घटि नहिँ देबहीन्ह, ek sēr ann ghaṭⁱ nahⁱ deb^ahīnhⁱ, please do not give one seer of grain less (than the right amount).

Respectful Imperative :—जखन अपने चाही तखन तोड़बा लेल जाय, jakhan ap^ane cāhī, takhan tor^abā lēl jāy, when you, sir, may desire, then be good enough to have the fruit plucked and take it.

Respectful Future :—देखल जाइत, dēkhal jāet, you will be pleased to see, i.e., be good enough to look and see.

NOTE.—The Respectful Imperative and Respectful Future are really impersonal passives. लेल जाय lēl jāy, is, literally, 'let it be taken.' So देखल जाएत dēkhal jāet, is, 'it will be seen (by you).' This use of the impersonal passive as a form of respect, is carried to great lengths in the Naipālī language spoken immediately to the north of Mithilā.

201 (b). The Future tense in Maithili is formed in three ways. In the first place it may be the same as the present conditional. We often find the forms of the present conditional or imperative employed in the sense of the future. It may be noted that, in the cognate Kāśmīrī language, the only form of the future is made in the same way.

In the second place, a number of the forms of the future are based on the second verbal noun, which ends in ब b (देखब dēkhab, to see).

In the third place, a number of the forms of the future are based on the present participle, ending in ऐत ait (देखैत dēkhait, seeing). In this case the termination of the participle is lightened by changing ऐत ait to अत at (देखत dēkhat) or इत it (देखित dēkhit).

202. The idea of future time can be emphasized by adding गं gā (in old Maithili गै gai or गए gae) to any of these forms. The addition of this termination is quite optional, and is most common in conversation. Examples of the use of this termination taken from literature are as follows. Those of गै gai and गए gae are in poetry and are taken from Manbōdh's Haribans :—

प्रहि दही के बेचब-गं आओर कंचा सबहि सँ आम कीनि लेब, ehī dahī kē bēcab-gā, āor kañcā sabahī sã ām kīnī lēb, I'll sell these curds, and with the pice (I get for them) I will buy mangoes. (This example shows how purely optional the use of गं gā is. It is employed with one future and not with the other).

बाप माद के कह-गं ठेकान, bāp māi-kē kahū-gā thekān, we shall (i.e., let us) inform (our) parents as to (our) whereabouts.

अपना अपना घर में सुन्नर खाएक करै-गं, apənā apənā ghar mē sunnar khāek karē-gā, you will prepare beautiful food each in her own room.

मारब-गं हम काहि बयान, māraba-gai hama kālhi bathāna, to-morrow will I destroy the cowsheds.

तखनुक चरख कहब-गए काहि, takhanuka harakha kahaba-gae kāhi, to whom shall I tell the joy of that moment ?

The second and third of the above examples have also been given as examples of imperatives. Grammatically, the termination गं gā shows that they are futures, used in the sense of polite imperatives. They are the first form of the future, which is identical with the present conditional and imperative.

It is hardly necessary to point out the correspondence of this termination with the Hindī गा gā in forms such as देखूँ-गा dēkhū̃-gā, I shall see.

It is unnecessary to give a table of the terminations of the first form of the future. They are identical with those of the present conditional and imperative. One example may be given in which the same word is used once as a future conditional, and once as a future indicative :—

नहिं हाजिर करी तौ नौम दीन तोहरा सौं बिबाह करी, nahĩ hājir karī, tau naum dēn toharā saū bibāh karī, If I shall not produce (the thief) then I will marry you on the ninth day.

Other examples are :—

एहि उपकारक बदला तोहरा कैएक कथा सिखाय दिखइ, ehi upakārak badlā toharā kaiek kathā sikhāy diah̃, in return for this favour I will teach you (object in second person) certain things.

किछु सीखि लेए तँ पठाय दिऐक, kicch̃ sikh̃ lēē, t̃ paṭhāy diaik, let him learn something, and then I will send him (to school).

The following are examples of this form of the future:—

First Person: नहिं पतियाऊ तो अबिहें देबहुँ गोसाही गुजराय, nahĩ patiyāh^u to ābihē, dēbah^u (dē + ^abah^u) goāhī gujarāy, testimony.

 release you; till then I will not set you free.

204. (b) (4). Future, third form, based on the present participle ending in at ai, of which the at is usually weakened to a, but sometimes to i. The terminations are to be added to the root direct. This form is mainly used in the third person. In the first person it is only found in groups I and II, and in the 2nd person only in group II, and even here it is not common.

205. (c) (5). The Past Conditional is formed from the present participle, to which the personal terminations are added directly. In the short form of group I, no termination is added in the third person, the bare present participle being here employed alone.

The present participle ends in ऐत ait, as in देखैत dekhaiṭ, seeing. When personal terminations are added, this termination is usually lightened to इत it, thus देखित dēkhit. This lightening is not however obligatory, and we sometimes hear the ऐ ai retained. This is not a peculiarity of any particular form, but depends entirely on the personal equation of the writer or the speaker. Sometimes the ऐत ait is lightened to अत at (देखत dēkhat), instead of इत it. This also is a case of personal equation.

The following are the terminations of this tense. I have included the lightened participial termination in each instance, so that the terminations as given, are to be added to the root direct. In every instance ai or a may (as has been explained) be substituted for the initial i of the termination. The terminations commencing with i are, however, much the most usual.

206. (c) (5) Past Conditional. The terminations are added to the root direct.

* or *aitah or *etah and so throughout except in the short form of the 3rd person of group I.

The following are examples of the use of this tense :—

First Person :—जो हमहूँ तोहरा जकां बनीज-ब्यापार करितहूँ बाबोर बन्न तोलितहूँ तखन बार पाबो भरि बन्न एम्हर ओम्हर सँ and there.*

जमितहूँ तो बगहा में बरदी तमाकू लदबैतिष्टे, *janitah^h to bag^{ah}ā mē bar^{adī} tamākū lad^{abaiti}ai, if I had known, I would have

Second Person (also Third Person) :—जो तौ हमरा नहिं चाड़ितह nahⁱ chāritāh āor mārⁱ ditāh, takhan ō mōtī toh^{ar}ā hāth lagait^h,

Third Person :—जिबैत रहैत तो जोगिया अबैत पलटि, jibait rahait to jogiyā abait palatⁱ, if they had been alive they would have come back to Jogiyā.

बान केओ रहितय मारितहूँ मुक्का दितहूँ खंसाय, *ān keo rahitathⁱ mārī-tanhⁱ jamaiyā jājari, if they had come to Jājari his sons-

Sometimes the imperfect tense indicative is employed in the sense of the past conditional. An example is जो जिबैत चलाह दीना भद्री जोगिया नगर कौनो मुसहरनी नहिं कैलक सिंगार, jo jibait chalāh dīnā bhadri jogiyā nagar, kauno musahar^{anī} nahⁱ kailak sīgār, if Dinā and Bhadri had been alive in Jogiyā town, no Musahar's wife would have dared to adorn herself. In this example the past tense indicative is also employed in the apodosis in the sense of the past conditional.

207. (c) (6) Present Indicative.(c) (7) Imperfect Indicative.

These two tenses are formed by combining the present participle with Auxiliary Verbs. They will be dealt with under the head of periphrastic tenses (Chapter III).

208. (d) (8) Past Indicative.—This tense is formed from the past participle in बल al (देखल dēkhal), which in the case of transitive verbs is a passive. Thus देखल, dēkhal, means 'seen,' and when we want to say 'I saw' we must say 'seen by me.' We have observed that nouns and pronouns have nothing corresponding to the agent case in Hindi. The 'by me,' 'by you,' or 'by him,' etc., which forms the subject of the verb, is therefore indicated by the terminations suffixed in conjugating the tense. देखलहुँ, dekh^hlah^h, means 'seen by me,' 'I saw'; देखलर, dekh^hlāh, means 'seen by you,' 'you saw'; देखलक dekh^hlak, means 'seen by him,' 'he saw'; and so on.

On the other hand the past participle of an intransitive verb is not necessarily passive. सुतल, sūtal means 'slept,' and in conjugation 'I slept' may be represented by either 'it was slept by me' or by 'slept I.' In Maithili both principles are followed in conjugating intransitive verbs. This is most manifest in the periphrastic tenses formed from the past participle, the perfect and the pluperfect, but we also see clear traces of it in the conjugation of the past indicative. Here there is a mixture of forms. For 'I slept' we usually say 'it was slept by me'; but for 'you slept' we do not say 'it was slept by you' (सुतलर sut^hlāh) but we say सुतलर sut^hlāh, i.e., slept you. It thus follows that the conjugation of the past tense of an intransitive verb sometimes agrees with that of the past tense of a transitive verb, and sometimes differs.

At the present day all sense of the reason for this difference has disappeared from the language. No native of Mithilā, when employing the past tense of a transitive verb, is aware that he is using a passive idiom. To him the pasts of both kinds of verbs are conjugated in as straightforward a manner as the English, I loved, thou lovedst, he loved. All that he is conscious of is that in the tenses formed from the past participle, the conjugation of transitive verbs differs from that of intransitive ones, and, for practical purposes this is all that need be known. It is unnecessary to consider देखलूँ dekh^alah^z as meaning 'it was seen-by-me,' and it is quite sufficient to consider it as meaning 'I saw,' just as सुतलूँ sut^alah^z means 'I slept'; but it is useful to know the origin of the difference, and for that reason the above explanation has been given.

We commence with giving the terminations of the past tense of the transitive verb.

209. (d) (8) Past Indicative of a Transitive verb. The terminations to be added to the root direct.

PERSON.	SHORT FORM.		LONG FORM.		REDUNDANT FORM.		GROUP IV. (Subject ; honorific. Object ; honorific.)
	GROUP I. (Subject : non- honorific. Object : non- honorific.)	GROUP II. (Subject : hono- rific. Object : non- honorific.)	GROUP I. (Subject : non- honorific. Object : non- honorific.)	GROUP II. (Subject : hono- rific. Object : non- honorific.)	GROUP I. (Subject : non- honorific. Object : non- honorific.)	GROUP II. (Subject : hono- rific. Object : non- honorific.)
1	alāh^{h} , al , alā ; fem. al^{h} .		alai , alai Or (with object in 2nd person) alau , alah , alai , alah		alāik , alaiak Or (with object in 2nd person.) alauk , alaiak		alāinh^{h} , $\text{alaiinh}^{\text{h}}$
2	alē , alai .	Same as 1st person.	alāh ; fem. alāh^{h} alāh^{h} .	Same as 1st person, but no forms for object in 2nd person.	alahā , alahik	Same as 1st person.
3	alak (al ; fem. al^{h} .)	alanh^{h} (alath^{h} .)	alakai Or (with object in 2nd person.) alakau	alakak Or (with object in 2nd person.) alakauk .		$\text{alahinh}^{\text{h}}$ $\text{alahinh}^{\text{h}}$

In the above paradigm the termination al (fem. alⁱ) properly belongs to the first person in the short form of Group I. In the case of intransitive verbs, it is not used in the first person, but is used in the third person of the same group. In old (e.g., in Manbōdh's Haribans) poetry, and in the speech of the illiterate (e.g., in the song of Salhēs), this termination is, however, also used in the third person of the transitive verbs. I have, therefore, inserted it also under the third person, placing it within marks of parenthesis to show that its use in this person is not regular.

In the third person of Group II, the termination alanhⁱ is the one in common use. I have only noted one occurrence in literature of the form alathⁱ.

The following are examples of the use of this tense:—

First Person:—भन मनबोध पहाँ किहु रहल ।

कथा प्रसंग बागु हम कहल ।

Bhuna Manabōdha pachā kichu rahala.¹

Kathā prasaṅga āgu hama kahala.¹

Saith Manbōdh, 'this occurred (intransitive, 3rd person) somewhat subsequently. In the order of (my) tale I said (transitive, 1st person) it too soon.'

कहियो न देखल गेऊमनक फेंच पर खंजन फहरारत kahiyō na dēkhal gehumanak phēc par khañjan phah^arāt, never (before) did I see a khañjan-bird hovering over the hood of a cobra.

जनम सँ पुजलहुँ मोकामा गढ़ में, janam sā puja^{al}ah^a mokāmā gaṛh mē, from (my) birth, did I worshipped (thee) in Mokāmā fort.

बालपन बचरा बान्हलि पर पुरख सुँह नहिं देखलि जनम पाप्र सिन्दुर नहिं माँग पहिरलि । ऊनका कारन काँचे बाँसक कोहर बान्हलि लाल चलंग सभ रंग सेज बोहाबोलि सिक्किया चीरि के बनिया बनाबोलि, bāl^opan ac^orā bānhalⁱ, par purukh mūh nahⁱ dēkhalⁱ, janam pāe sindur nahⁱ māṅg pahiralⁱ; hun^okā kāran kācē bāsak koh^obar bānhalⁱ, lāl palāṅg sabh rang sēj ochāolⁱ (for ochāb + alⁱ), sikiyā cīrⁱ kai beniyā banāolⁱ (banāb + alⁱ), (a woman speaks) I tied up my girlhood with my body-cloth, the face of another man I did not see, from my birth I did not wear vermilion on the parting of my hair. For him did I build a bridal arbour of fresh bamboos, on a crimson bed did I overspread a mattress of varied colours, and with a split reed did I apply silver spots to my brow.

¹ i.e., rahal, kahal. Being in verse, the final a is pronounced. See § 9.

लाख अपराध कैलौक । लाख गाँरि देलें । तकर उत्तर हम नहिँ

Second Person: जाहिँ मरद लै जोबन सेबलें से मरद बैसल चौक देबहा
नदीक धार, jāhⁱ marad lai jōban seb^olē, sē marad baisal chauk deb^ohā nadik dhār, the man for whom you have kept your virginity, is seated for you by the stream of the river Debhā.

कोन गरु परलो बड़ भोरे बेकल दुआर, kaun garū par^olau bar bhōrē chēkal duār, what misfortune has befallen you that your Honour has obstructed my door very early in the morning?

बिन अपराधेँ गरदनियाँ देलह, bin^u ap^orādhē gar^odaniyā dēlah, without fault (i.e., for no fault) you gave them neck-thrusting (i.e., you thrust them away by the neck).

Third Person: कौनो नहिँ चिन्हलक जोगियाक लोग, keo nahⁱ cinh^olak, jogiyāk lōg, none of the people of Jogiyā recognised them.

देखलक सल्लेस जे बड़ अजगुत भेल, dekh^olak salhēs jē bar aj^ogut bhēl, Salhēs saw that (something) very extraordinary (had) happened.

पटि दे धेलक पटि दे मारलक बान्हलक पछुआहिँ धै के, catⁱ dē dhailak, patⁱ dē mār^olak, bānh^olak pachuārⁱ dhai ke, giving abruptness (i.e., suddenly) he seized (him), giving instantaneousness (i.e., instantly) he struck (him), seizing him from behind he bound him.

This termination *o*lak is very common.

The following are examples of the irregular omission of the final ak.

हँसि हँसि कुसल पुचल ब्रजनाथ, hāsi hāsi kusala puchala braja-nātha, smilingly Vrajanāth asked his welfare. (Manbōdh, vii, 28)

कै देब सबर सबहुँ प्रह कहल ।

निज अनुचर सभ कहल हकार ।

‘kai deba sabai’ sabahū eha kahala,.....

nija anucara sabha kahala hakāra. (Manbōdh, ii, 34, 35).

All of them said this ‘we will do everything’.....His attendants all uttered a howl.

बाजै लागल भद्री दीना सौं साजल जबाब, bājai lāgal (intransitive) bhadri, dīnā saū sājal (for sāj^olak) jabāb, Bhadrī began to speak, to Dīnā he arranged his answer.

तखन दीना मालिनि दक्षिणक चीर पहिरि लेलि पाटौ सन्धारि लेलि मैना काजर पेन्हि लेलि असले कसबीनि भेलि, takhan daunā mālinⁱ dachinak cīr pahirⁱ lēlⁱ (transitive), pāṭi samhārⁱ lēlⁱ, nainā kājār pēnhⁱ lēlⁱ.....ās^olē kas^obīnⁱ bhēlⁱ (intransitive), then Daunā Mālin apparelled herself in garments of the south, arranged her flat temple-locks, (and) applied collyrium to her eyes.....(in appearance) she became a real harlot.

[It will be seen that in the last two examples, taken from modern prose, the irregular form of the transitive verbs seems to be suggested by the neighbourhood of an intransitive verb with the same subject.]

फेर मारलन्हि दीना राम फोटरा के देलन्हि खसाय, pher mār^olanhⁱ dīnā rām phoṭ^orā kē dēlanhⁱ khasāy, again (the respected) Dīnā Rām smote Phoṭrā and dashed him down (dēlanhⁱ for dē + ^olanhⁱ).

अपन बहू बेटी रखलन्हि घर सुताय । हमर बेटी पुतुह देखलन्हि नागट उघारि, apan bah^o bēṭi rakh^olanhⁱ ghar sutāy, hamar bēṭi putuh^o dekh^olanhⁱ nāgaṭ ughārⁱ, he (the respected one) put his own daughter-in-law and daughter to sleep in his house, and (came here and) having uncovered them saw my daughter and daughter-in-law naked.

[As an example of Manbōdh's method of employing the suffix अन्हि anhī (§ 193), we may quote:—

सबउ देवल-अन्हि जे बल जागल, sabahu dekhala-anhi jē chala jāgala, every one who was awake saw (what happened).]

[The solitary example of the form in लथि lathī which I have noted occurs in the song of Dinā Bhadrī. It is as follows:—

देहि दुनू भार छोड़ि देलथि, dēhī dunū bhāi chōṛī dēlathī (for dē + lathī), the two brothers left their bodies (and disappeared).]

कथा सभ सौं बउत बुझौलकै परंतु केसो किछु नहिं मानलकै, kathā sabh saū bahut bujhaul^okai (for bujhāb + al^okai), parant^u keo kicch^u nahī mānal^okai, he remonstrated much with them by words, but no one heeded (him) at all.

ददा हो नहिं बुझलको, दुनू पुतुइ के फजिहति कैलक, dadā hō, nahī bujhal^okau; dunū putuh^u kē phajihatī kailak, brother, she did not understand you; she has done indignity to her daughters-in-law.

तखन ओकरा सभक बाप कहलकै, takhan okarā sabhak bāp kahal^okai, then their father said to them.

ओ कहलकैन्हि हमरो नमस्कार लिखि दिखौन्हि । मोनसी कहलथौन्हि नहिं हो ō kahal^okainhi 'hamarō namaskār likhī diaunhi'; mon^osī kahal^othinhī 'nahī hau,' he (the ignorant fool, not respected) said (politely to the respected scribe) 'please write my compliments also.' The (respected) scribe said (politely, to the fool, whom he treated with respect) 'it is not (what you think).'

As a specimen of Manbōdh's use of the suffix anhⁱ (§ 193), we may quote :—

पैर परल-अन्हि प्रेम जनाए । paira parala-anhi prēma janāe
(The respected) Akrūra expressing (his) affection fell at (Kṛṣṇa's) feet (Man. vii, 27).

211. In order to make the Transitive and Intransitive conjugations of this tense quite clear, the student may be reminded that some terminations are common to transitive and intransitive verbs, while others are peculiar to transitive, and others again to transitive verbs. This is made plain in the two following tables :—

212. (d) (9). Perfect Indicative.(d)(10). Pluperfect Indicative.

These two tenses are formed by combining the past participle with auxiliary verbs. They will be dealt with under the head of periphrastic tenses (Chapter III).

CHAPTER II.

VERBS SUBSTANTIVE AND AUXILIARY VERBS.

213. The Verb Substantive is freely employed in the formation of periphrastic tenses;—viz. of the Present Indicative, the Imperfect Indicative, the Perfect Indicative, and the Pluperfect Indicative. There are several forms of the verb substantive, all of which are in common use.

214. The verb substantive most frequently met with is that formed from the root अह ach, be. It is defective in its conjugation, the only parts used being the present and past tenses and the present participle. Moreover, in the modern language, except in one form of the 3rd person of the present, and in the present participle, the initial अ a is always dropped, so that the word for 'I am' is चि chī, not अचि achī. In the older language, however, of poetry and occasionally in folktales, the initial अ a is commonly preserved. In poetry, moreover, the final ऐ ai of the long form of the first person (including the 2nd person honorific), is often weakened to अ a, so that we have चिअ chia for चिऐ chiai for 'I am,' 'you are.' In the following paradigm such poetical forms are given within marks of parenthesis.

The conjugation of the present tense of this verb is based on the conjugation of the old Present (see § 197) of the regular verb, but presents a few abnormal forms. The conjugation of the past tense follows that of the past tense of the regular intransitive verb. This verb is conjugated as follows:—

✓ अह ach, be.

Present Participle :—अचैत achait; fem. अचैति achaiti, being.

215. Present. I am, &c.

The following are examples of the use of this verb, as a verb substantive. Many other examples will be found under the head of the periphrastic tenses.

This verb is very frequently used with a genitive or dative of possession to mean 'to have.' Thus from Manbōdh (vi, 34, 35).

करि बार अहि मोहि कुबलइ पौइ । cānura muṣṭi hamara achi māla ।.....

नहिं मोरा टका अहि नहिं धेनु माई nahĩ mōrā takā achi nahĩ dhēnu gāĩ, I have no money and no milch cow.

✓ अह ah, be.

219. Another form of the verb substantive which we frequently hear in conversation is connected with the Hindi है hai, is, and may be said to be based on the root अह ah, be. It is still more defective than the root अह ach; indeed, I have only met two forms of it, viz.:

अहि ahⁱ, he is.

हौ hau, he is (object in 2nd person).

The latter form would postulate the existence of है hai, but I have not come across it. Examples of the use of these two forms are:—

थोरैक आम हमरा संग अहि thōrek ām ham^{arā} sang ahⁱ, a few mangoes are in my possession.

देस देस आओर गाम गाम घुमला सँ की लाभ अहि dēs dēs āor gām gām ghum^{alā} sāĩ kī lābh ahⁱ, what profit is there from wandering about from country to country and from village to village ?

मोनसौ कहलथोन्हि नहिं हौ mon^{as} kah^{al}oth^{ih}uhⁱ ‘nāhⁱ hau, ‘the (respected) scribe said (politely) ‘it is not (what you think).’

The use of this root is regular in the Mag^ahī and Bhoj^apurī dialects of Bihāri. In them the verb is much more fully conjugated.

✓ थिक thik, be.

220. Instead of the verb ✓ अह ach, the verb ✓ थिक thik may be substituted, but only in the present tense.

221. The ✓ थिक thik is by origin the strong form of the ✓ *थि thi, which is derived from the Sanskrit स्थित sthita, stood. स्थित sthita is the past participle of the Sanskrit intransitive ✓ स्थ sthā, stand. It should therefore be remembered that ✓ थिक thik is by origin a past participle of an intransitive verb.

Although, therefore, it is now only used in the sense of the present tense, it takes the terminations of the past tense of an intransitive verb, the letter ल l being omitted. It will be remembered that this ल l is the sign of the past tense, and in this case it is not required, as the ✓ थिक thik is already in the past.

The following is therefore the conjugation of the ✓ थिक thik in the present tense. It is not used in any other tense.

222. Present. I am, &c.

हमर सक नहिं थीक hamar sak nahⁱ thīkⁱ, my power is not (i.e., I am not able). Here, quite exceptionally, an inanimate word is treated as a feminine, and has a feminine verb after it.

✓ रह rah, remain.

223. Instead of the verb ✓ अछ ach, the verb ✓ रह rah may be substituted, but only in the past tense. That is to say, instead of बलौ chalī, I was, we may say रहौ rahī.

The verb ✓ rah means literally 'remain,' and when used as a verb substantive this meaning is retained. The verb is taken to signify 'I was such and such, and I remain so.' Hence 'I remain' is considered as equivalent to 'I was.' When used in the sense of 'I was' although the signification is one of past time, the verb is therefore conjugated in the old present and not in the form of the past tense.

The following is therefore the conjugation of the verb ✓ rah in the sense of the past tense of the verb substantive. It is not used for any other tense of the verb substantive. In the sense of 'remain' this verb is conjugated throughout, and is quite regular.

224. Old Present for Past. 'I was,' &c.

The following are examples of the use of the ✓ rah as a Verb Substantive.

First Person :—I have not noted any instances of the use of this person as a verb substantive. It occurs as an auxiliary verb.

Second Person :—The same remarks apply.

Third Person : प्रलप काल तहँ रह नहिँ घाटि, pralae kâla tahā raha nahī ghāṭi, (the crash) was not less than (that at) the time of the general destruction of the universe (Man. v, 39).

रहथि मिथिला में बीरेस्वर नामक मन्त्री, rahathī mithilā mē bīrēśwar nāmak mantrī, in Mithilā there was a prime-minister named Virēśwara.

अखन धै लेलें बलें तखन बाइब की रहौ, jakhan dhai lēlē chālē takhan chārab kī rahau, (lit.) when you had seized me, then what letting go was there (to you) (i.e. why did you let me go) ?

हाड़ जे मुँह में रहैक से-हो गमोलक, hār jē mūh mē rahnik, sē-hō gumaulak, the bone which was in his mouth, he lost that also.

कोनो धनिक केँ दुर बेटा रहैन्हि, kōnō dhanik kē dui bētā rahainhī, to a certain rich man there were two (respected) sons.

225. It is thus seen that there are several forms of the verb substantive. All these can also be used as auxiliary verbs in the formation of periphrastic tenses. The ✓ ach is the one generally employed, but we frequently meet the others used instead of it. This should be borne in mind, as, in the paradigms, I shall in the main confine myself to the forms with ✓ ach.

The following summary of the short forms of the 3rd person will serve as a reminder.

अहि achⁱ ,	}	he is or अहि ahⁱ ,
or
थिक thik	}
चल chal ,	}	he was.
or रहे rahē

226. The ✓ हो hō, become, as a Verb Substantive, and as an Auxiliary Verb.

It will have been observed that the Verbs Substantive just described are all defective, possessing amongst them all only two finite tenses,—the present indicative, and the past indicative. The remaining tenses, when required, are furnished by the corresponding forms of the ✓ हो hō, become. This verb is also employed in the formation of some of the rarer periphrastic tenses (see § 241).

The verb ✓ हो hō is anomalous in several of its forms, and will be fully described under the head of irregular verbs (§ 322).

For our present purposes it is sufficient to note here the following tenses, which are employed as auxiliaries :—

- (2) Present Conditional :—होई hōī, (if) I become,
(if) I be.
- (4) Future Indicative :—हैब haib or होएब hoeb, I shall become, I shall be.
- (5) Past Conditional :—होइतहुँ hōitahū, (if) I had become, (if) I had been.

The past is भेलहुँ bhēlahū, I became. It is not employed either as a Verb Substantive or as an Auxiliary Verb.

CHAPTER III.

PERIPHRASTIC TENSES.

227. In the list of tenses given in § 194, the following are periphrastic :—

- (c) (6) Present Indicative
- (7) Imperfect Indicative
Formed from the Present Participle.
- (d) (9) Perfect Indicative
- (10) Pluperfect Indicative
Formed from the Past Participle.

Besides these there are six rare tenses, which can theoretically be made with the aid of the \checkmark हो hō, become, as an auxiliary verb. They run parallel to the corresponding tenses in Hindi, but I have met only one instance of them in my reading. They are dealt with in § 241.

228. (c) (6) The Present Indicative is formed by conjugating the present tense of the auxiliary verb with the present participle. Thus देखैत dekhait, seeing; हो chī, I am; देखैत हो dekhait chī, I see. Or we may have देखैत अहि dekhait ahī, he sees (there is no first person for this form of the auxiliary); or देखैत थिकहूँ dekhait thikahū̃, I see. Of course, instead of हो chī, we can have चिउ chiui, चिओ chiau, चिऐक chiaik, and so on. In all cases that goes without saying.

In this tense (and also in the imperfect) it is very common to drop the final त t of the present participle, and to write it as one word with the auxiliary. Thus देखैहो dekhai-chī, I see, and so throughout. Here, although written in the Nāgarī character as one word, the two do not form a real compound. This is seen in cases in which the present participle does not end in ऐत ait, but, as is the case with some vocalic roots, in इत it preceded by a long vowel (see Chapter IV). In such cases the suffixed auxiliary does not bring in the rule of the short antepenultimate, as it would if it was really compounded with the participle. Thus, the present participle of the \checkmark खा khā, eat, is खाइत khāit, and the present indicative is खाँची khāi-chī, not खाँचि khaichī, I am eating. In transliteration, I, therefore, insert a hyphen between the participle and the auxiliary as shown above.

In the short form of Group I in the 3rd person there is a further slight optional irregularity. For “he sees,” the usual (but not, by any means, the only) form is देखै *dekhaich*ⁱ or even देखै dekhaich, as well as देखै अछि *dekhaiṭ achh*ⁱ or देखैअछि *dekhai-achh*ⁱ. It should be noted carefully that this is always pronounced *dekha-ichh*ⁱ or dekha-ichh, and that the a and the i never coalesce into ऐ ai as is usually the case (see § 13). Here the two letters always form two distinct syllables.

In the feminine, the feminine of the present participle (देखैति dekhaiṭi) should be used. The final ति *t*ⁱ is elided exactly like the masculine त t.

It will be remembered that there are various ways of spelling the present participle. We may have देखै dekhaiṭ, or देखैत dekhaiṭ or देखैत dekhaet, or देखैति dekhayit. As explained in § 13, this is only a matter of spelling, not of pronunciation.

The following are therefore the terminations of this tense :—

229 (c) (6). Present Indicative. Uncontracted form. The terminations to be added to the root direct.

In the above paradigms I have omitted duplicate forms of the Verb Substantive. They can easily be supplied.

It is unnecessary to do more than remind the student that any other form of the verb substantive (अहि ahⁱ, हो hau, थिकहूँ thikah^h, &c.), can be used instead of those given above.

The following are examples of the use of this tense :—

(This and the preceding are from Candā Jhā's version of the Puruṣa Parikṣā, p. 51. Note the spelling of the present participle).

दीना राम कहैत बहि, dinā rām kahait chathⁱ, Dinā Rām says (so and so).

तखन पुछैथीथि चंपा takhan puchait-chathīhī campā, then (the respected) Campā (name of a woman) asks (politely).

No example of the use of the ✓थिक thik as an auxiliary occurs in the above examples. I have failed to find such in literature, where it seems to be only used as a verb substantive. We, however, occasionally hear it employed as an auxiliary in conversation.

231. (c) (7). The Imperfect Indicative is formed by conjugating the past tense of the Auxiliary Verb with the present participle. Thus देखैत dekhait, seeing; चलहूँ chalahū^ṁ, I was; देखैत चलहूँ dekhait chalahū^ṁ, I was seeing. Or we may say देखैत रहै dekhait rahī.

As in the present tense it is very common to drop the final न t of the present participle, and to write it as one word with the auxiliary. Thus देखैचलहुँ dekhai-chalah³, and so throughout.

In the feminine, the feminine of the present participle (देखैति dekhaiⁱ) should be used. The final ति tⁱ is elided exactly like the masculine न t.

As in the Present Indicative (see § 228) there are the usual variations of spelling of the present participle.

The following are therefore the terminations of this tense :—

232. (c) (7). Imperfect Indicative. Uncontracted form. The terminations to be added to the root direct.

In the course of my reading, I have only noted this tense in the third person. All three persons are heard in conversation. The following are examples of the third person :—

ओ बाहर ठाढ़ भेल हाथ मिड़ैत चल, ō bāhar thāṛh bhēl hāth mi-rait chal, he stood outside (and) was wringing his hands.

दीना भद्रौ जिवैत चल उहे गबैत रहै, dinā bhadrī jibait chal uhe gabait rahai, (when) Dinā (and) Bhadrī were living, they were singing (i.e., used to sing) that very song.

एक मोनसी बजार में बैसल चिट्ठी लिखैत चल, ek mon^{asi}, bajār mē baisal, ciṭṭhī likhai-chal, a scribe, seated in the market, was writing a letter.

एक गधारि गोधारिनि माथ पर मटकुरी धैलें चलि जा रहल, ek gamārī goāriniⁱ māth par maṭ^{akuri} dhailēⁱ calⁱ jāi-chalⁱ (the present participle of the ✓जा jā is जाइत jāit, see §§ 282, 310), a foolish milkmaid was going along with a pot of curds on her head.

234. (d) (9). Perfect Indicative.—This tense is conjugated in two ways. The first form is the one most commonly met with, and is made on the same principle both for transitive and intransitive verbs. All that is necessary is to take the corresponding form of the past indicative and to suffix to it the third person of the present of the auxiliary verb,—usually in the form अछि achⁱ or अहि ahⁱ. Note that in whatever person the verb may be, the auxiliary is always in the third person. Thus :—

Past, देखलहुँ dekh^olah^u, I saw.

Perfect, देखलहुँ अछि dekh^olah^u achⁱ or देखलहुँ अहि dekh^olah^u ahⁱ, I have seen.

Past, देखल dēkhal, I saw.

Perfect, देखल अछि dēkhal achⁱ or देखल अहि dēkhal ahⁱ, I have seen.

Past, देखलहुँ dekh^olāh, you saw.

Perfect, देखलहुँ अछि dekh^olāh achⁱ or देखलहुँ अहि dekh^olāh ahⁱ you have seen.

Past, देखलक dekh^{al}lak, he saw.

Perfect, देखलक अहि (or अहि) dekh^{al}lak achⁱ (or ahⁱ), he has seen.

Past, सुतलहुँ sut^{al}ah^u, I slept.

Perfect, सुतलहुँ अहि (or अहि) sut^{al}ah^u achⁱ (or ahⁱ) I have slept.

Past, सुतलह sut^{al}āh, you slept.

Perfect, सुतलह अहि (or अहि) sut^{al}āh achⁱ (or ahⁱ) you have slept.

Past, सुतलै sut^{al}ai, he slept.

Perfect, सुतलै अहि (or अहि) sut^{al}ai achⁱ (or ahⁱ) he has slept.

It will be remembered that the short form of the third person of the past tense of transitive verbs ends in *al*ak (thus देखलक dekh^{al}lak, he saw), while in the case of intransitive verbs it ends in al (सुतल sūtāl, he slept). We never say सुतलक sut^{al}ak. In the perfect tense, however, the form सुतलक sut^{al}ak is regularly employed, and is, indeed, the customary form. Thus सुतलक अहि (or अहि) sut^{al}ak achⁱ (or ahⁱ), he has slept.

The origin of this mode of forming the perfect is well illustrated by this last form. It will be remembered that all the terminations of the past of transitive verbs and most of those of the past of intransitive verbs are really pronouns in the case of the agent. अहूँ ah^u, means 'by me,' अक ak, means 'by him,' and so on. Thus देखल + अहूँ dekh^{al} + ah^u, means 'seen-by-me,' i.e., I saw, and देखल + अक dekh^{al} + ak means 'seen by him,' he saw. Adding अहि achⁱ (or अहि ahⁱ) we get देखल + अहूँ अहि dekh^{al} + ah^u achⁱ, (it) is seen by me, a sort of impersonal verb with the resultant meaning 'I have seen.' Similarly देखल + अक अहि dekh^{al} + ak achⁱ is, 'it is seen by him,' i.e., he has seen. In the case of intransitive verbs, सुतल sūtāl, meaning simply 'asleep,' is a past participle, employed like the Hindī past participle सोया sōyā, to mean 'he slept.' But if we want to say 'he has slept,' we must make an impersonal verb सुतल + अक अहि sutal + ak achⁱ, it is slept by him, i.e., 'he has slept.' सुतल अहि sūtal achⁱ (see below) would mean rather 'he is asleep.'

This one case of the use of सुतलक sut^{al}ak instead of सुतल sūtal is the only instance in which the conjugation of this form of the perfect differs from that of the past (omitting, of course, consideration of the added अहि achⁱ or अहि ahⁱ), and it is quite unnecessary to give a table of the terminations.

235. The following are examples of this form of the perfect:—

First Person:—एक बक्स पठाओल अहि से अहाँक हेत, ek bakas pathāol (see § 273) achⁱ, sē ahāⁱk hēt^u, I have sent a box, it is for you.

छपत बेचि के देली अहि, sūpat bēcⁱ ke dēlī (see § 314) ahⁱ, I have given in barter (lit. having sold) the full weight.

रोपलहुँ अहि, rop^{al}ah^u achⁱ, I have planted (see below).

अहाँ के खोलाओलि अहि, ahāⁱ kē kholāoliⁱ (see § 273) achⁱ, I (fem.) have caused you to be freed.

Second Person:—कान जियान भेल अहि जे हमरा बाँधि देल अहि से हाल कह, kān jiān bhēl achⁱ jē hamarā bā^{dh}i dēl (see § 314) achⁱ, sē hāl kah, explain what fault has occurred that you have bound me.

प्रहि बेरि कुसियार रोपलहुँ अहि वा नहिं। कुसियार तँ रोपलहुँ अहि, ehⁱ bē^ri kusīār rop^{al}ah^u achⁱ (2nd person) bā nahⁱ? Kusīār tē rop^{al}ah^u achⁱ (1st person), this time have you planted any sugarcane or no? I have indeed planted sugarcane (but it has not turned out well).

Third Person:—केबार अम्मा निरसो ठोकलक अहि, kebār ammā nīrāsō ṭhok^{al}ak ahⁱ, Mother Nīrsō has shut the door.

दीना भद्रौ मरि गेलन्हि तखन फेर ऐलन्हि अहि, dīnā bhadri marⁱ gelainhⁱ, takhaⁿ pher aīlunhⁱ achⁱ, Dīnā and Bhadrī died (past), then (i.e., now) they have come (perfect) back again.

सौदा देऊ पुराय बीरो बकिय रहलोक अहि, saudā deh^u purāy, auro bakiē rah^olauk ahⁱ, give the goods in full weight, more also has remained in arrear (with you) (i.e., you have still to give more to make full weight).

236. The second form of the perfect is not so common as the first form. It is made in exactly the reverse way to the method of making the first form. Here it is the present tense of the auxiliary verb which is conjugated with the past participle. In the case of transitive verbs the participle is put in the instrumental case,—thus देखलें बी dekh^olē chī, I have seen—or in the locative,—thus देखले बी dekh^olē chī. In both of these forms न n is often substituted for ल l, especially by the vulgar,—thus देखनें बी dekh^anē chī or देखने बी dekh^anē chī. The past participle, whether in the instrumental or in the locative, does not change for gender.

In the case of intransitive verbs, the past participle is in the nominative form, and is liable to inflection for gender. Thus सुतल बी sūtal chī, fem. सुतलि बी sutali chī, I have slept. This form of intransitive verbs has very often (in fact generally) very little of the meaning of the perfect tense about it. सुतल बी sūtal chī, for instance, generally means ‘I am asleep’ rather than ‘I have slept.’ Sometimes, however, the sense of the perfect is quite plain. Examples of both uses will be found below.

It is unnecessary to give tables of the termination of this form of the perfect. In transitive verbs the past participle (in the instrumental or locative) is unchangeable (either for person or for gender). In intransitive verbs it is only changeable for gender. The only thing that changes for person is the auxiliary verb, and of this any appropriate form may be used.

237. The following are examples of this form of the perfect of transitive verbs :—

First Person :—अपनेक ओतय कतेक मोट चले अहि । तीनि मोट तें लधलें बी, ap^anek otay katek mōṭ calai-ahⁱ ? Tinⁱ mōṭ tēⁱ ladh^olē chī, how many well-buckets (worked by cattle) are in use in your (farm) ? Well, I have yoked three well-buckets.

हम प्रकार मारबा में बहुत दौड़-धूप कैलें हौ, ham ekarā mār^abā mē bahut daur-dhūp kailē (see § 306) chī, I have made great exertions in killing it.

Second Person :—इ कहिनी नहिं सुनलें हइ, i kahinī nahī sunalē chāh, have you not heard this saying ?

I have not noted in literature any instance of the occurrence of the third person of this form of the perfect of a transitive verb.

The following are examples of the use of this tense in an intransitive verb :—

First Person :—सबेरक चलल हौ, sabērēk calal chī, I have started (i.e., I started) at dawn.

सुनइ गंगा चोरि कै आपल हौ, sunāh gaṅgā, cōrī kai āl (see § 312) chī, hear, O Ganges, having committed theft, I have come (or am come).

I have not come across any example of the second person.

Third Person :—पानि बरिसला बिना बड़ हानि भेल अहि, pāni barisālā binā baṛ hānī bhēl (see § 322) achī, owing to the rain not falling there has been great loss.

अंगूर सभक पछन गुच्छ सभ पाकल टट्टी में लटकि रहल अहि कि जकरा सँ रस चूबि रहल अहि, āgūr sabhak ehan guccḥ sabh pākal taṭṭī mē latukī rahal achī, ki jakarā sē ras cūbī rahal achī, such ripe bunches of grapes having hung from the trellis have remained (i.e., are there), that the juice has remained dripping (cf. § 342) (i.e., keeps dripping).

से जनमल अहि (v.l. हथि) मारत तोहि, sē janamala achī (or chathī) mārata tōhī, he has taken birth (who) will kill thee (Man. i. 377).

जाहि मरद लै जोबन सेबलें से मरद बैसल होक देवहा नदीक धार, jāhī marad lai jōban sebalē, sē marad baisal chāuk debhā nadīk dhār, the man for whom you kept your virginity, that man is seated (for you) by the stream of the river Debhā.

238. The Pluperfect Indicative is formed on the same principles as the second form of the perfect, substituting the past tense of the verb substantive for the present of the verb substantive. Thus देखलें dekh^alē, (देखले dekh^alē; देखने dekh^anē, देखने dekh^anē) बलहुँ chalah^a, I had seen; सुतल बलहुँ sūtal chalah^a, I had slept. Instead of बलहुँ chalah^a, etc., we may as usual have रही rahī, etc. There is nothing corresponding to the first form of the perfect; we never meet forms like देखलहुँ बल dekh^alah^a chal.

This tense not only has the sense of a pluperfect, but is also used to signify that the action happened a long time ago. Thus, देखलें बलहुँ dekh^alē chalah^a means either 'I had seen,' or 'I saw a long time ago.'

I have given सुतल बलहुँ sūtal chalah^a (fem. सुतलि बलहुँ sūtalⁱ chhalah^a) as the form of the pluperfect of an intransitive verb. It is necessary to add that natives of Mithilā tell me that (in this tense only) intransitive verbs may also be treated as if they were transitive so that we can also have सुतलें बलहुँ sutalē chalah^a. I have, however, never met such a form in literature.

It is unnecessary to give a table of the terminations of this tense. The following are examples of its use in literature:—

239. (a) Transitive verbs—

First Person :—हम तोहरा पहिले हस्ती में उड़ावे रहिअछ, ham toh^arā pahilē hassī mē ūṛaunē (see § 273 ff.) rahiah^a, formerly (long ago) I ridiculed you in sport.

Second Person :—जखन धे लेलें (or लेने or लेने) हलें तखन बाइब की रचो, jakhān dhai (see § 314) lēlē (or lēnē or lēnē) chalē takhan chārāb kī rahau, when you had caught me, then what letting go was there to you (i.e., why did you let me go)?

Third Person :—जतवा जनि कर लेनें हलि सुन्दरि ।

से सभ सोपलक ताही ॥ jatawā jani kara lenē chali sundari ।

sē sabha sopalaka tāhī ॥

The fair one made over everything to those from whom she had taken them (Vid. x. 2). Here लेने lēnē is shortened to लेने lenē for the sake of metre.

240. (b) Intransitive verbs—

First Person :—राति हम सुतल चलाहूँ अप्पन (for अपना) सिरकी में, rātⁱ ham sūtal chalahū^ṇ appun (for ap^ṇnā) sir^ṇkī mē, at night I was asleep in my own tent.

गेल चलाहूँ gēl chalahū^ṇ, I had gone. See next example.

Second Person :—कथी लै ओतय गेल चलाहूँ । ओतय हमर खेत अछि । ओकरा देखै गेल चलाहूँ, kathī lai otay gēl chalahū^ṇ ? otay hamar khēt achī. Ok^ṛrā dēkhai gēl chalahū^ṇ, why had you gone there ? My field is there. I had gone to see it.

Third Person :—अपन सभ धन उड़ाय भिखारि भै गेल चला, apan sabh dhan uṛāy bikhāri bhai gēl chal, having squandered all his property, he had become a beggar.

राम राम कहि के उठल चलाह, rām, rām, kahī ke uṭhal chalāh, crying ‘Rām, Rām’ he was arisen (i.e., arose).

अहिरा गोश्वर गेल कटैया भझी बैसल रहै, ahirā goār gēl kaṭaiyā, bhadri buisal rahai, Ahirā Goār went to Kaṭaiyā; Bhadri was seated (there).

सात नींदे सुतलि बलि फेकुनी, sāt nīḍē sūtalī chalī phēkunī, Phekunī (name of a woman) was asleep in seven sleeps.

It will be noted that, as in the case of the perfect, many of the examples of the intransitive verb are not true pluperfects (so far as sense goes) at all.

The √हो हō as an Auxiliary.

241. In Hindi there is a set of periphrastic tenses formed with the √हो hō, become, as the auxiliary. Most of them are very rare. As given in the grammars, under various fancy names, they are :—

चलता होऊँ, cal^ṭtā hōū^ṇ, I may be going.

चलता होऊंगा, cal^ṭtā hōū^ṅgā, I shall be going.

चलता होता, cal^ṭtā hōtā, had I been going.

चला होऊँ, calā hōū^ṇ, I may have gone.

चला होऊंगा, calā hōū^ṅgā, I shall have gone.

चला होता, calā hōtā, had I gone.

It would be, no doubt, possible to concoct parallel tenses in Maithili, but I have never met any example of any of them except one of the first, which, also, I may add, is the one which is most common in Hindī.

The one example which I have noted is :—

कोम दिसा के अबैत होटे कहउ बुझाय, kōn disā kē abait hōai kahah^u bujhāy, having explained tell (i.e., tell clearly) in what direction he may be (i.e., is probably) coming.

It will be sufficient to dismiss this and the other connected tenses with these remarks. I shall not refer to them again. If met with they will be easily recognized.

In the following chapter I give a complete paradigm of the conjugation of the regular transitive and of the regular intransitive verb, with roots ending in consonants. The roots chosen as examples are √देख dēkh, see, and √सूत sūt, sleep.

CHAPTER IV.

CONJUGATION OF THE REGULAR VERB.

242. In the following paradigms attention must be again called to the regular shortening of the antepenultimate vowel as explained in §§ 32 and ff and § 176. When the vowel of the root is आ ā, the practice is to shorten it to अ a, not to आ ā, unless this would cause ambiguity. Thus one form of the third person past indicative of the √लाग lāg, begin, is लगलै lag^alai, not लागलै lāg^alai, because in Maithili there is no √लग lag, begin, with which it can be confused. But the long form of the first person of the same tense of the √मार mār, strike, is मारलै mār^alai, not मरलै mar^alai, because the latter might be confused with the मरलै mar^alai, he died, the long form of the third person of the √mar, die.

B. INTRANSITIVE VERB.

सुत sūt, sleep.

264. It is only necessary to give paradigms of those tenses of the intransitive verb which are formed from the past participle. In the other tenses it is conjugated exactly like the transitive verb.

CHAPTER V.

VOCALIC ROOTS.

269. The roots of the verbs conjugated in the preceding chapter end in a consonant. If a root ends in a vowel, the same terminations are added, but when these commence with a vowel, changes, which require explanation, occur in the method of suffixing them to the root.

The same is the case with verbs whose roots end in आब āb, in which the ब b represents an older semi-vowel व v, which is, as a general rule, ultimately derived from a Sanskrit प p. The conjugation of these verbs runs parallel with that of verbs in आ ā, but at the same time differs from them in certain particulars. Owing to the nature of these roots in आब āb, I class them as vocalic roots for convenience of treatment.

Vocalic roots may end in आ ā, आब āb, इ i, ई ī, ए ē, ऊ ū or ओ ō. They will be dealt with in that order.

Roots in आ ā and आब āb.

270. Of all vocalic roots these are by far most common. Verbs whose roots end in आ ā include all potential passives (see § 333), a large number of intransitive verbs, and the transitive verb √ खा khā, eat.

Verbs whose roots end in आब āb include nearly all causals and double causals (see §§ 334 and ff), a certain number of transitive verbs, and the intransitive verbs √ गाब gāb, sing., √ पछताब pach^{at}tāb, repent, and √ आब āb, come. √ आब āb is irregular in some of its forms and will be dealt with in § 312, although in this chapter I have freely used regular forms in the examples. √ गाब gāb follows the other roots in आब āb, except that as they are transitive and it is usually intransitive, it in such cases takes the intransitive forms of the past tenses. When used as a transitive verb it is conjugated as such. Thus,—गाओल gāol, he sang (intransitive); but (Vid. xxiii, 11) एह गाओल eh gāol, I sang this (transitive).

271. As a great many verbs have both potential passive and causal forms, we frequently notice pairs of each conjugation running side by side. Thus from the √देख dēkh, see, we have the potential passive √देखा dēkhā, be visible, and the causal √देखाब dēkhāb, cause to see, show. The past participle of the former would be देखाएल dekhāel and of the latter देखाओल dekhāol. देखैलहुँ dekhailahū̃ would mean 'I was visible,' देखौलहुँ dekhaulahū̃ would mean 'I caused to see.'

The following are examples of these roots, with the past participle in each case :—

A. Verbs in आ ā.

Root.	Past Participle.
देखा dēkhā , be visible,	देखाएल dekhāel .
अघा aghā , be satiated,	अघाएल aghāel .
घबड़ा ghabārā , be confused,	घबड़ाएल ghabārāel .
हड़बड़ा harābarā , be flurried,	हड़बड़ाएल harābarāel .
खा khā , eat,	खाएल khāel .

B. Verbs in आब āb.

देखाब dēkhāb , show,	देखाओल dekhāol .
पाब pāb , obtain,	पाओल pāol .
गाब gāb , sing,	गाओल gāol .
पश्ताब pachātāb , repent,	पश्ताओल pachātāol .

272. As usual (vide §§ 32 ff) the termination आ ā or आब āb is liable to be shortened in the antepenultimate. It is usually, however, retained long before a final ऐ ai or औ au. Thus पाबै pābai, पाबौ pābau, as explained in § 176. Before ऐत ait of the present participle आब āb is as usual shortened, as in पबैत pabait. Verbs in आ ā, on the other hand, make the present participle as in खाइत khāit or खायित khāyit.

When the final vowel of a root in आ ā comes before a termination beginning with अ a, the two together become आअ āe. Thus खा khā + अल a becomes खाअल khāel (really for खायल khāyal, with euphonic य y inserted), eaten or I ate; खा khā + अब ab becomes खाअब khāeb, to eat or I shall eat. Before ऐ ai, it usually remains unchanged, as in देखाऐ dekhāai, he sees, but in the present participle, the termination ऐत ait becomes इत it, and before the इ i the आ ā either remains unchanged or inserts a य y; thus, as above, खाइत khāit or खायित khāyit, eating. As usual (see §§ 11, 14) इ i is often employed for अ a, and vice versa, so that we may meet forms such as खाइल khāil, खाइब khāib or खाअत khāet. In all these cases, when the आ ā is shortened under the antepenultimate rule, the two vowels together become ऐ ai (often written, as usual अइ ai or अअ ae, see § 13). Thus खैलहुँ khailah̐, I ate, खैबै khāibai, I shall eat, खैतहुँ khaitah̐ (if) I had eaten.

273. With roots ending in आब āb, the procedure is somewhat different. As a general rule, before अ a, the आब āb plus अ a becomes आओ āo. Thus देखाब dēkhāb + अब ab becomes देखाओब dekhāob (poetical form; for the usual form see below). I shall show; देखाब dēkhāb + अल al becomes देखाओल dekhāol, I showed. In the form देखाबयि *dekhābath*¹ (3rd person, Short Form, Group II, Old Present), the ब b is preserved unchanged.

Before terminations commencing with ऐ ai or औ au the ब b is usually retained. Thus देखाबै dēkhābai, देखाबौ dēkhābau (3rd person, Long Form, Group I, Old Present); Present Participle देखबैत dēkhābait, with shortening of the antepenultimate. Before इ i or ई ī, आब āb remains unchanged, as in देखाबी dēkhābī, I show.

274. In the modern language there is a tendency to assimilate the conjugation of roots in आब āb to that of those in आ ā. A glance at the paradigm will show that many optional forms are borrowed from the latter conjugation. In the 2nd verbal noun and in the future the conjugation in आ ā has almost ousted the original one. We have just seen that the old poetical form of the first person future was देखाओब dekhāob, I shall show. In the modern language it is, however, always देखाएब dekhāeb. A reference to the paradigm will show how completely the original o-conjugation has disappeared in the future. It has only survived in the third form of the tense.

On the other hand, the past tense, the one most frequently employed, strongly preserves the o-conjugation. The conjugation of roots in आ ā, has here entirely failed to gain a footing. In this tense, and elsewhere in similar circumstances, when आओ ā-o becomes अओ a-o, under the antepenultimate rule, the two adjacent vowels coalesce, and are usually written औ au. Thus, देखाओल dekhāol or देखाओलहुँ dekhāulah̃, I showed.

275. In the following paradigms, I take as the model of a root in आ ā the √देखा dekhā, be visible, and as the model of a root in आब āb, √देखाब dēkhāb, show. I only give the short and long forms of Groups I and II. The redundant forms of these two groups, and the forms of Groups III and IV can be made from these without any difficulty. In cases where any difficulty is likely to arise, I solve it in additional notes. It is only necessary to give the four simple tenses, the verbal nouns, and the participles. The periphrastic tenses can easily be made from these materials. Even for the four simple tenses, I only give the most common forms.

One other remark should be made. I have throughout spoken of roots ending in आब āb. This termination is very often written आब āw or āv, and is even so pronounced in South Mithilā. Thus, instead of देखाबी dekhābī, we hear देखाबी dekhāwī or dekhāvī, and so throughout. There is no doubt that in the best standard Maithilī the correct forms are those with ब b, though व w forms will often be found in literature (generally due to careless writing).

Roots in इ i and ई ī.

285. Roots in इ i and ई ī are conjugated exactly similarly, the only difference being that, according to the usual rule, the long ई ī is shortened to इ i when it falls in the antepenultimate. Indeed the two most important roots of this class, पि pi or पी pī, drink, and जि ji or जी jī, live, may have the i either long or short.

As the model verb, I take the √सि si, sew. It will be observed that in the case of the √सि si there are a number of optional forms, in which the letter ब b is inserted between two concurrent vowels. In the case of the two verbs √पि pi or पी pī, drink, and √जि ji or जी jī, live, it is important to note that they almost invariably employ the forms with ब b. Indeed, I may say, that I have never seen or heard the forms without the ब b in the case of these two verbs, though natives tell me they can be used. The fact is that in these two verbs the ब is not inserted, but really belongs to the root, as will be seen when we compare the Sanskrit forms पिबति pibati, he drinks, and जीवति jivati, he lives. It should also be noted that these verbs have their present participles पिबैत pibait and जिबैत jibait respectively, and insert ब b in other places, where they are not found in the case of √सि si. In order to illustrate the peculiarities of these two verbs, I give the conjugation of √पि pi or पी pī alongside of that of √सि si, to facilitate comparison. In the case of $\sqrt{\text{पि}} pi$ or $\text{पौ} p\bar{i}$, when there are two forms, one with long $\mathfrak{r} \bar{i}$ and the other with short $\mathfrak{r} i$, I only give the one with long $\mathfrak{r} \bar{i}$, and it must be remembered that a form with short $\mathfrak{r} i$ can also be used. $\sqrt{\text{जि}} ji$ or $\text{जौ} j\bar{i}$, live, is conjugated exactly like $\sqrt{\text{पि}} pi$ or $\text{पौ} p\bar{i}$.

Roots in ए ē.

295. Only two roots end in ए ē, viz. √दे dē, give, and ले lē, take. They are irregular throughout, and their conjugation will be given in chapter VI (§§ 314 ff).

Roots in ऊ ū and ओ ō.

296. These are conjugated as follows. It will be seen that, as in the case of verbs in इ i, a ब b is often optionally inserted. Sometimes we find य y instead of ब b. This is practically the only irregularity.

The model verbs are √धू cū, drip (intransitive) and √धो dhō, wash (transitive).

The most important of the roots in ओ ō is the √हो hō, become. This is very irregular, and will be conjugated in chapter VI (§§ 322 ff).

Past.

- चूखल cūal, चूरल cūil, dripped. | धोखल dhōal, धोप्रल dhōel, washed.

Probably ब b can be inserted in many more forms than are given above, but I have not met them. In conversation, a good deal depends on the personal equation of the speaker.

304. The only example of the use of a root in ज ū which I have noted in literature is the following :—

देखलक जे अंगूर प्रहन गुच्छ सभ पाकल टट्टी में लटकि रहल अहि कि जकरा सँ रस चूबि रहल अहि, dekh^alak jē āgūr ehan gucc^h sabh pāk^{al} tattī mē latakⁱ rahal achⁱ, ki jak^arā sē ras cūbⁱ rahal achⁱ, he saw that such bunches of grapes were hanging ripe from the trellis, that from them (lit. from which) the juice kept dripping (Intensive compound, see § 342).

Examples of roots in ओ ō are more common. Such are :—

(a) (1) Old Present :—

प्रक रोये अमाँ दोसर रोबे चन्ना चाप्र हाय ।

तेसर रोबै दूध चाड़ि बलकवा रे चाप्र हाय ।

ek rōyē amāⁱ; dōsar rōbē cannā, hāe hāy;

tēsar rōbai dūdh chāṛⁱ balak^awā, rē, hāe hāy.

One (person), the mother, weeps; a second, Cannā weeps, alas, alas! A third, a child leaving (its mother's) milk, weeps, ah! alas, alas!

(a) (3) Imperative :—

बाबू गोड़ हाँय धोऊ, bābū gōṛ hā̃th dhōū, gentlemen, wash your feet and hands.

Conjunctive Participle :—

बान्ह फोड़ हरि छिड़ लगबोलि, bānha phōḍe (for phōi) hari hri-dae lag^aoli, unloosing (his) bonds, she took Hari to her heart.

फेरि मरख फो के एक एक काठी देलकै, phēṛi gr^hasth phō kē ek ek kā̃thī del^akai, then the farmer, having opened (the bundle), gave (them) the sticks one by one.

CHAPTER VI.

IRREGULAR VERBS.

305. The following verbs are irregular :—

✓कर kar, do, make.

✓धर dhar, seize, place.

✓मर mar, die.

✓जा jā, go.

✓आव āv, come.

✓दे dē, give.

✓ले lē, take.

✓हो hō, become.

306. The roots कर kar and धर dhar are irregular in the formation of the past participle and of the tenses derived from it and also in the formation of the first and third verbal nouns. The two are conjugated on exactly parallel lines.

The past participle of the ✓कर kar, do, make, is कैल kail, often written कयल kayal, कएल (i.e., कएल) kael, or करल kail. From this the past tense is formed as follows. As before, only the most commonly used forms of Groups I and II are given :—

(d) (8) Past Indicative. 'I did,' 'I made,' &c.

	SHORT FORM.		LONG FORM.
	GROUP I.	GROUP II.	GROUP I.	GROUP II.

कैलहुँ kailah¹, कैल kail.

कैलिऐ kailiai.

2 कैलै kailē.

Same as 1st person.

कैलह kailh.

Same as 1st person, but no forms for object in 2nd person.

3 कैलक kailak.

कैलन्हि kailanh¹.

GROUP I.

कैलकै kailakai.

Similarly the Perfect is कैलहुँ चलि kailah¹ ach¹ or कैल चो kailē chī, and the Pluperfect is कैलै चलहुँ kailē chalah¹.

The first verbal noun is regularly करि karī, but usually takes the form कै kai, कय kay, or कै kā.

The third verbal noun, like the past participle is कैल kail, not करल karal, oblique कैला kailā.

The ✓धर dhar, seize, place, is conjugated exactly like the ✓कर kar, the ध dh being substituted for the क k.

307. The following are examples of the use of the irregular forms of these verbs.

जखनहिं लेल हरि कंसु अहोरि ।

कत परजुगति कयल अंग मोरि ॥ jukhanahī lela hari kañcu achōri ।

kata parajugati kayala āga mōri ॥

when Hari snatched away my bodice, how many devices did I make, as I twisted my limbs. (Vid. xxxi, 1).

तौं हो ददा कैल गुलामीक साथ बैर, tō, hō dadā, kail gulāmīk sāth bair, you, O brother, made enmity with Gulāmī.

तौं प्रहि कथा पर भरोसा कैलै, tō ehī kathā par bharōsā kailāh, you made belief on (i.e., you believed) this statement.

जैह कहलकै से कैलक, jaiḥ kahal^akai, sē kailak, as he said, so he did.

अंगूरक टाट पर जाल लगाय के ओकरा धैलक, āgūrak tāṭ par jāl lagāy kē ok^arā dhailak, having put a net on a vine trellis, he caught it (the bird).

ओकरा में कोन गुण हैक जे दाता ओकरा नेहाल कैलन्हि बाबोर हमरा कंगाल कैलन्हि, ok^arā mē kōn guṇ haik, jē dātā ok^arā nehāl kailanhⁱ āor ham^arā kūgāl kailanhⁱ, what are his virtues that the Giver made blessings for him, and made me a beggar ?

तीनू मामा भगिना धैलन्हि कटैया पन्थक बाट, tinū māmā bhaginā dhailanhⁱ kaṭaiyā panthak bāt, the three, uncle and nephews, took the path of the road (to) Kaṭaiyā.

केवल राहड़ि बाबोरा कैल अहि, kēbal rāhaṛⁱ bāoy kail achⁱ, I have sown (lit. done sowing) only rāhar.

हम प्रकार मारबा में बहुत दोड़-धूप कैलै बी । बाबोर तेसर खंड ई धैल अहि, ham ek^arā mār^abā mē bahut daur⁻dhūp kail^ē chī, āor tēsar khaṇḍ ī dhail achⁱ, in killing this (deer) I have done much exertion. And this third portion I have placed (here).

को कषना करि अबरन तेज, kyō karunā kari abharana tēja, some full of woe (lit. doing woe) cast aside their ornaments (Man. vii, 40).

हरि हरि कय पुनि उठति धरणि धरि ।

रैनि गमावय जागी ॥

hari hari kaya (for kai) puni uṭhati dharanī dhari |

raini gamābaya (for gamābai) jāgī ||

crying (lit. doing) 'Hari, Hari,' again she (is) rising, having lain upon (lit. having seized) the ground; so waking passeth she the night (Vid. x, 7).

प्रकरा सब के किछु के देखानी, ek^arā sabh kē kicch^u kai dekhānī, having done something, let me show it to all these (boys).

धैरज धै रउ मिलत मुरारि, dhairaja dhai rahu, milata murāri, having seized patience (i.e., being patient), remain. Murāri will meet you (Vid. lxii, 6).

दौड़-धूप कैला सँ किछु नहिं चैत, daur-dhūp kailā sē kiech^u nahⁱ chait, nothing will occur (i.e., you will get no benefit) from running about.

In one instance Vidyāpati (lxvi, 1) has a kind of long form of the conjunctive participle, viz., करिषु karie for करि kari (poetical for करि kariⁱ).

The verse runs :—

अबधि करिषु पड गेलाह, abadhi karie pahu gēlāh, my husband went, having fixed a date for his return. Compare दुटिषु ṭuṭiē in § 344.

308. The conjugation of the √मर mar, die, closely resembles that of √कर kar and √धर dhar, allowance being made for the fact that it is an intransitive verb. It is only irregular in the fact that its present participle is मरैत marait or मुटैत muait, and that its past participle is मरल maral or मुरल mul. Its past conditional is therefore मरितहुँ maritah^u or मुरतहुँ mutah^u, and its past indicative is मरलहुँ maralah^u or मुरलहुँ mulah^u. The 3rd verbal noun is the same as the past participle. The oblique form of the first verbal noun is vulgarly मुटै muai for मरै marai. See § 350.

309. I have not come across any forms of the irregular present participle in literature. The following are examples of tenses derived from the past participle :—

घन घन जे ट्रेलाह से मरल, ghana ghana jē ailāha sē marala, every troop that came (with him) died. (Man. x, 55).

ठामहि घूमि मुरल कै गोठ, ṭhāmahi ghūmi mula kai gōṭa, several turned round and died on the spot. (Man. v, 41).

मुरल अरिष्ट भेल उपकार, mula ariṣṭa bhēla upakāra, the dead bull became a blessing. (Man. vi, 14).

मुरला पूतक बहुत नाचौ, mulā (oblique) pūtak bahut nāō, a dead son has many names (i.e., is always spoken of affectionately). (Proverb).

हमरा मुरनै एक उरखी उद्गार, ham^orā muinē (for mulē, instr. of 3rd verb. noun) ek urāsī udgār, from our death joy has arisen only in (the village of) Ursī.

310. The ✓जा jā, go, is conjugated like an intransitive verb in जा ā (see §§ 270 ff.), but is irregular in its past participle, and in the tenses derived from it. The past participle is गेल gel, fem. गेलि gēli. On the other hand, the third verbal noun (that in ल l) is regular, and does not follow the past participle. It is जाइल jāel, obl. जैला jailā, not गेल gēl.

The following are the more usual forms of the tenses derived from the past participle :—

(d) (8). Past Indicative. 'I went,' &c.

PERSON.	SHORT FORM.		LONG FORM.
	GROUP I. (Subject : non-honorific. Object : non-honorific.)	GROUP II. (Subject : honorific. Object : non-honorific.)	GROUP I. (Subject : non-honorific. Object : non-honorific.)	GROUP II. (Subject : honorific. Object : non-honorific.)

2	गेलें gēlē .	Same as 1st person.	गेलाइ gēlah .	Same as 1st person, but no forms for object in 2nd person.
3	गेल gēl .	गेलाइ gēlah .	GROUP I. गेलै gēlai .

The Perfect is गेलहुँ gēlah^h achⁱ or गेल चै gēl chī, I have gone, I am gone. The Pluperfect is गेल चलाहुँ gēl chalah^h or गेलें चलाहुँ gēlē chalah^h, I had gone, I went a long time ago.

311. The following are examples of the use of the irregular forms of this verb :—

हम तोहरा हाथ सँ निकसि गेलहुँ ham toharā hāth sã nikasī gēlah̃, having emerged from your hand, I went, i.e., I escaped from your clutches.

नान्हिटा बली गे तिरिया हम रमिता भै गेली nānhitā chali, ge tiriya ham ramitā bhai gēlī, I was very young, O ladies, (when) I having become a wanderer went, i.e., when I became a wanderer (see § 342 regarding the intensive compound भै गेली bhai gēlī).

तीं हमर तीनू कथा प्रखनहि बिसरि गेलें, tō hamar tīnū kathā ekhanahī bisarī gēlē, you went having forgotten (i.e., you have entirely forgotten) already the three words of mine (§ 342).

कहाँ गेल किछ भेल थारू दोनवार, kahā̃ gēl kiā bhēl thārū donbār, where has Tharū Donbār gone, what has become of him ?

एक कोस गेलाहि हो बहोरन दुर कोस गेलाहि, ek kōs gēlah, hō bahōran, dui kōs gēlah, O Bahōran, they went one kōs, they went two kōs.

मटकुरी माथ सँ खसि टुकरी टुकरी भै गेलैक, maṭkurī māth sã khasī tukarī tukarī bhai gelaik, the pitcher having fallen from her head became (i.e., was broken to) fragments (§ 342).

एक पैघ लोकक घर में रातिक समय आगि लागि गेलैन्हि, ek paigh lōkak ghar mē rātik samay āgī lāgī gelainhi, fire seized at night time the house of a rich man (§ 342).

उनक बाप मरि गेलथिन्हि, hunak bāp marī gelṭhinhī, their (respected) father died (§ 342).

दुनू भाइ मारल गेलथून्हि कटैया खाप, dunū bhāi mārāl gelṭhinhī kaṭaiyā khāp, the two (respected) brothers were killed in Kaṭaiyā Khāp (Passive § 331).

कथी लय ओतय गेल बलहुँ । ओतय हमर खेत अहि ओकरा देखै गेल बलहुँ, kathī lay otay gēl cha'ah² ? otay hamar khēt achⁱ, ok²ra dē-khai gēl chalah², why had you gone there ? My field is there, I had gone to see it.

It will be observed that this root is frequently used with the conjunctive participles of other verbs, to form what are called 'Intensive Compounds.' These will be fully explained in § 342. It is also used to form the passive voice as will be explained in § 331.

312. The ✓आब āb, come, is in most of its tenses conjugated like an intransitive verb in आब āb, see §§ 270 ff. Its past participle is, however, formed as if the root ended in आ ā, so that it is आइल āel (आयल āyal or आइल āil), not आओल āol. The following is therefore the conjugation of the past tense. Examples of the present, future, etc., will be found under the head of roots in आब āb.

(d) (8) Past Indicative 'I came.' &c.

Similarly for the Perfect and Pluperfect.

The Present Participle is (regularly) अबैत abait (अवयित abayit). The 3rd singular Old Present is आबै ābai or आर ār, honorific आबयि ābathī, etc. The 1st singular future is आउब āeb (poetical also आबोब āob). The Conjunctive Participle is आवि abī, and also आइ āi (आय āy, etc.).

313. The following are examples of the use of this verb:—

खन परितज खन आबइ पास, khana paritaja khana ābai pāsa, sometimes she retreats and sometimes comes near him (Vid. viii, 3).

राहु दूरि बसु निचरो न आबयि, rāhu dūri basu niaro na ābathī, Rāhu dwelleth afar, (and) doth not approach her (Vid. xiv, 8).

An example of the present participle will be found under the head of roots in आब āb (§ 284).

314. The roots दे dē, give, and ले lē, take, are conjugated exactly alike. It is sufficient to give the conjugation of the ✓दे dē. That of ✓ले lē can be ascertained by simply substituting ल l for द d throughout.

These two verbs present many irregularities. These are partly due to the combination of the final vowel of the root with the terminations, but are also due to the fact that there are really two pairs of roots, viz., ✓दे dē and ✓दि dī, and ✓ले lē and ✓लि lī. Sometimes one of the pair is used, and sometimes the other. Moreover, owing to दि dī and लि lī having short vowels, the long ē of दे dē and ले lē is often shortened by analogy, so that, although I have, as a rule, only written a long ē in the paradigms, a short e can always be substituted. This is shown from the use of these forms in poetry, where pairs like देब dēb and देब deb, लेब lēb and लेब leb, देल dēl and देल del, लेल lēl and लेल lel are of frequent occurrence. Numerous instances will be found in the examples given below.

Note that, as in the conjugation of the Old Present of the regular verb (see § 176), when a dissyllabic form ends in ऐ ai derived from अहि ahī the long ए ē is not shortened on that account (though of course it may be shortened as above explained). Thus the long ē of देब dēb is not shortened in the form देबै dēbai (for *देबहि dēbah). In the redundant form देबैक debaik (for *देबचिक deb^ahik) it is, of course, shortened under the usual ante-penultimate rule.

I give the conjugation of the ✓ दे dē in Groups I and II pretty fully, as there are numerous irregular forms. The forms for Groups III and IV can easily be derived from these, and instances of them will be found among the examples.

322. The ✓हो hō, become, is also used to supply the missing tenses of the verb substantive (see § 226). Its past participle is भेल bhēl, which is conjugated as the same principle as देल dēl and लेल lēl, that is to say the vowel may always be shortened ad libitum, so that we may always have either भेल bhēl or भेल bhel.

It has for its first verbal noun होइ hōi or भै bhai, with an oblique form होमै hōmai.

The tenses not formed from the past participle may all be regularly formed from हो hō, which, as in the case of ✓दे dē and ✓ले lē, may always be shortened to हो ho. Moreover, instead of हो hō or हो ho, we often have a base ह hū or ह ha, so that the third person of the future may be होएत hōet or होएत hoet (or contracted होत hōt or होत hot), or हएत hūait or हएत hait. There are also the usual varieties of spelling. Thus होएत hōet is often found written होयत hōyat, होइत hōit, or होयित hōyit.

The optional shortening of the vowels and these various spellings are not shown in the paradigms, but numerous instances will be found in the examples which follow.

CHAPTER VII.

THE PASSIVE VOICE.

331. As in Hindī, the passive is usually formed by conjugating the past participle with the $\sqrt{\text{जा}}$ jā, go. The participle is liable to inflection as to gender, in which respect it agrees with the subject of the verb, but in other respects it remains unaltered. Thus देखल जाएब, dēkhal jāeb, means 'to be seen' देखल जाइत अछि, dēkhal jāit achi, he is being seen; देखल गेल, dēkhal gēl, he was seen; देखल गेलि, dēkhal gēli, she was seen. Examples of this form of the passive are the following:—

बड़ सुकुमार हमर स्वामी सलहेस । मारि सहल नहिं जाइकेन्हि, bar sūkumār hamar swāmī salāhēs; mārī sahal nahī jāichainhi, very tender is my lord Salhēs, a beating is not (i.e., cannot be) borne by him. (Regarding the inanimate feminine मारि mārī, see § 186.)

भाइ जेठ बलइ से मारल गेल कटैया, bhāi jēṭh chalah, sē mārāl gēl kṭaiyā, he (who) was your elder brother has been killed in Kṭaiyā.

अखन अपने मन चाही तखन तोड़बा लेल जाय, jakhan apne man cāhī, takhan ṭorābā lēl jāy, when your soul desires, then having caused (the fruit) to be plucked, let it be taken away.

In old Maithilī poetry we sometimes find the passive participle put into a strong form in आ ā, as if we said देखला dekhālā for देखल dēkhal.

Thus, Man vii, 12 :—

मुरल असुर गोठ कुरला गेल, mūla asura goṭa chulā gēla, a dead Asura had been touched (by him, and he was consequently unclean).

332. Another form of the passive is formed by conjugating the first verbal noun with the verb पड़ब parāb or परब parab, to fall. Thus देखि पड़ब dēkhⁱ paṛab, to be seen; देखि पड़ल dēkhⁱ paṛal, he was seen. The first verbal noun remained unchanged throughout. The whole is an intensive compound (see § 342), and the final इ i is often omitted.

Examples of the use of this form of the passive are :—

ई तँ केओ अपूर्ब दंगक लोक देख पड़ैअछि, ī tã keo apūrb dhaṅgak lōk dēkh paṛai-achⁱ, this, indeed, is seen (to be) (i.e., is evidently) a person of some extraordinary kind.

कुमरबैनि अछि बा प्रखन नहि । हँ किहु किहु बूझि पड़ैअछि, kumar^a-baitⁱ achⁱ bā ekhan nahⁱ ? hã kich^u kich^u būjhⁱ paṛai-achⁱ, is she showing signs of being in calf or not ? Yes, a little is becoming manifested.

333. A Potential Passive is formed for some verbs by adding आ ā to the root. Thus √देख dēkh, see, √देखा dēkhā, to be able to be seen, to be visible. This root dēkhā is conjugated exactly like any other intransitive root in आ ā (see §§ 270 ff). The potential passive indicates not so much that a thing is done, as that it can be done. Thus ई पोथी पढ़ाइअछि, ī pōthī paṛhāi-achⁱ, this book can be read, but ई पोथी पढ़ल जाइअछि, ī pōthī paṛhal jāi-achⁱ, this book is being read. Similarly (√मौंझ mōj^h, extinguish) we have हमरा पेटक आगि एहि सँ नहि मिंभाएत, ham^arā pēṭak āgⁱ ehⁱ sã nahⁱ mōjhāet, the fire of my belly will not be able to be extinguished by this.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE FORMATION OF TRANSITIVE AND CAUSAL VERBS.

334. As in other Indo-Aryan languages the intransitive verb in Maithili can be made transitive and the transitive verb causal.

The transitive verb is generally formed by adding आब āb to the root, and the causal by adding आबाब ābāb, but there are many exceptions. The roots thus formed are conjugated like transitive verbs in आब āb (see §§ 270 ff). We often find ब w written instead of ब b, as in आव āw, आवब āwāw, and this pronunciation is usually heard in Southern Maithili, but in the northern or standard dialect the sound is always that of ब b, no matter what is written.

In Hindi grammars we have rules about shortening the root vowel of certain causal verbs. These rules are not necessary in Maithili. The root vowels are shortened according to the regular rule of the short ante-penultimate vowel (see §§ 32 ff.).

It thus follows that in forms which consist of only two syllables, the root vowel is not shortened. Thus from √जाग jāg, 'be awake,' the transitive root जागब jāgāb, which is also the shortest form of the 2nd person imperative, meaning 'awaken thou.' But the first person future of the transitive is जगाएब jagāeb, with the ā shortened, as it is now in the ante-penultimate.

335. The following are examples of intransitive verbs becoming transitive, and causal. All verbs are given in the form of the infinitive, so as to show the shortening of the ante-penultimate vowel. It will be remembered that roots in आव āb form their infinitives in आएब āeb :—

INTRANSITIVE.	TRANSITIVE.	CAUSAL.
गिरब girab , to fall,	गिराएब girāeb , to fell,	गिरबाएब girābāeb , to cause to fell.
चढ़ब caṛhab , to ascend,	चढ़ाएब caṛhāeb ,	चढ़बाएब caṛhābāeb .
पिघलब piḡhalab , to melt.	पिघलाएब piḡhalāeb ,	पिघलबाएब piḡhalābāeb .
लटकब lat^akab , to hang,	लटकाएब lat^akāeb ,	लटकाबाएब lat^akābāeb .
जागब jāgab , to awake,	जगाएब jagāeb ,	जगबाएब jagābāeb .
पाकब pākab , to ripen,	पकाएब pakāeb .	पकबाएब pakābāeb .
बाजब bājab , to speak,	बजाएब baḷāeb , to call,	बजबाएब baḷābāeb . summon.
लागब lāgab , to be applied, to begin.	लगाएब lagāeb ,	लगबाएब lagābāeb .
भीजब bhijab , to be wet,	भिजाएब bhijāeb ,	भिजबाएब bhijābāeb .

INTRANSITIVE.	TRANSITIVE.	CAUSAL.
घूमब ghūmab , to go round.	घुमाएब ghumāēb ,	घुमबाएब ghum^abāēb .
डोलब dōlab , to be shaken.	डोलाएब dolāēb ,	डोलबाएब dol^abāēb .
लेटब lētab , to lie down.	लेटाएब leṭāēb ,	लेटबाएब leṭ^abāēb .

In the above, note that the $\sqrt{\text{बाज}}$ bāj, like the Hindi $\sqrt{\text{बोल}}$ bōl, is intransitive.

Note also that no verbs insert ल l as sometimes occurs in Hindi. Thus:—

INTRANSITIVE.	TRANSITIVE.	CAUSAL.
जीअब jīab , to live,	जिआएब jīāēb , to make alive.	जिअबाएब jīabāēb , to cause to make alive.

336. In the same way transitive verbs form causal and double causals. Thus:—

TRANSITIVE.	CAUSAL.	DOUBLE CAUSAL.
सुनब sunab , to hear,	सुनाएब sunāēb , to cause to hear.	सुनबाएब sun^abāēb , to cause to be heard.
देखब dēkhab , to see,	देखाएब dekḥāēb , to show.	देखबाएब dekḥ^abāēb , to cause to show.
देब dēb , to give,	देआएब dēāēb or दिआएब diāēb , to cause to give.	देअबाएब deabāēb or दिअबाएब diabāēb , to cause to be given.
धोअब dhōab , to wash,	धोआएब dhōāēb or धोबाएब dhōbāēb .	धोअबाएब dhoabāēb .
पीअब pīab , to drink,	पीआएब pīāēb or पीबाएब pībāēb , to give to drink.	पिअबाएब piabāēb .
सीखब sikhab , to learn,	सिखाएब sikhāēb ,	सिखबाएब sikh^abāēb .

337. Many intransitive verbs with a short vowel in the root simply lengthen it to form the transitive, and form the causal regularly with अबाब ābāb; thus:—

INTRANSITIVE.	TRANSITIVE.	CAUSAL.
कटब kaṭab , to be cut,	काटब kāṭab , to cut,	कटबाप्रब kaṭ^abāeb .
गड़ब gaṛab , to be buried.	गाड़ब gāṛab , to bury,	गड़बाप्रब gaṛ^abāeb .
मरब marab , to die.	मारब mārab , to kill,	मरबाप्रब mar^abāeb .
पालब palab , to be reared.	पालब pālab , to rear,	पलबाप्रब pal^abāeb .
लदब ladab , to be loaded.	लादब lādab , to load,	लदबाप्रब lad^abāeb .
निकासब nikasab , to come out.	निकासब nikāsub , to bring out.	निकासबाप्रब nikas^abāeb .

338. The following are irregular : —

INTRANSITIVE.	TRANSITIVE.	CAUSAL.
खुलब khulab , to be open.	खोलब khōlab ,	खोलबाप्रब khol^abāeb .
चूटब chūṭab , to go off,	छाड़ब chāṛab or छोड़ब chōṛab .	छाड़बाप्रब chaṛ^abāeb or छोड़बाप्रब choṛ^abāeb .
टूटब tūṭab , to be broken.	तोड़ब tōrab or तोरब tōrab .	तोड़बाप्रब tor^abāeb or तोरबाप्रब tor^abāeb .
फटब phaṭab , to be rent.	फाड़ब phāṛab ,	फाड़बाप्रब phaṛ^abāeb .
अटब aṭab , to be stopped.	अड़ाप्रब aṛāeb or अड़ब ārab .	अड़बाप्रब aṛ^abāeb .
बिकब bikab or बिकाप्रब bikāeb , to be sold.	बेचब bēcab , or बेचब bēcab .	बेचबाप्रब bec^abāeb .
रहब rahab , to remain.	राखब rākhab ,	रखबाप्रब rakh^abāeb .
खा khā , to eat,	खियाप्रब khīāeb , to feed, give to eat.	खियाप्रब khīabāeb .

Amongst others, the following verb takes the causal form, but does not use it in a causal, but only in a transitive sense; the causal form thus becomes an optional form of the transitive.

SIMPLE VERB.

कहब kahab, to say.

TRANSITIVE.

कहाएब kahāēb or कहाबाएब kahā-bāēb, to say.

339. A few examples of the Transitive and Causal verbs in literature may be given. Many more will be found under verbs in आब āb in § 284.

CHAPTER IX.

COMPOUND VERBS.

340. Compound verbs may be classed as—(1) those formed with a verbal noun, and (2) those formed with a participle.

I. Those formed with a verbal noun are—

- (a) Intensives.
- (b) Potentials.
- (c) Completives.
- (d) Permissives.
- (e) Acquisitives.
- (f) Inceptives.
- (g) Desideratives.
- (h) Frequentatives.

II. Those formed from the participles are—

- (a) Continuatives.
- (b) Staticals.

Class I.—Compounds formed with the Verbal Noun.

341. As explained in §§ 178 ff., there are three verbal nouns, viz. :—

- (1) देखि dēkhī; obl. देखै dēkhai or देख dēkhā.
- (2) देखब dēkhab; obl. देखबा dēkhābā.
- (3) देखल dēkhal; obl. देखला dēkhālā.

The following are made with the direct form of the first verbal noun :—

- (a) Intensives.
- (b) Potentials.
- (c) Completives.

The following are made with the oblique form of the first verbal noun :—

(d) Permissives.

(e) Acquisitives.

(f) Inceptives.

(g) Desideratives are sometimes made with the genitive of the second verbal noun, but more usually with the oblique form of the first verbal noun.

(h) Frequentatives are made with the direct form of the third verbal noun.

342. (a) Intensive compounds intensify or otherwise modify, the meaning of the verb whose root stands first in the compound. They are made by adding to the direct form of the first verbal noun one of certain auxiliary verbs. The verbal noun remains unchanged, and the auxiliary verb is conjugated throughout as usual. This second auxiliary conjugated member does not, however, retain its separate character and significance, but only modifies, in accordance with the general idea which it embodies, the meaning of the unconjugated verbal noun to which it is attached.

The first verbal noun ends in इ (देखि dēkhī). This final vowel is only half-pronounced, and, in these compounds, it is often dropped both in writing and in pronunciation; so that, in these compounds, we may have either देखि dēkhī or देख dēkh. This elision of i (or y, etc., see § 281) most frequently occurs in the case of verbs whose roots ends in vowels.

The auxiliary verbs usually employed to form intensives are :—

देब dēb, to give, implying in these compounds intensity.

डारब ḍārab, to throw, „ violence.

आएब āeb, to come, }
जाएब jāeb, to go, } „ completion.

पड़ब paṛab or परब paraḥ, to fall, „ chance.

उठब uṭhab, to rise, „ suddenness.

रहब rahab, to remain, „ continuation.

लेब lēb, to take, „ reflexiveness.

Note that पड़ब paṛab, to fall, is also used to make passives. See § 332.

Examples of such intensive compounds are :—

भरब bharab , to fill.	भरि देब bharⁱ dēb , to fill up.
उड़ाप्रब urāēb , to cause to fly.	उड़ा or (उड़ा) देब urāi (or urā) dēb , to squander.
हेड़ाप्रब heṛāēb , to lose.	हेड़ा देब hēṛā dēb , to lose out and out.
खसाप्रब khasāēb , to cause to fall.	खसाय देब khasāy dēb , to throw down.
काटब kāṭab , to cut.	काटि डारब kāṭⁱ dārab , to cut off.
banab , to be made.	बनि आप्रब banⁱ āēb or बनि जाप्रब banⁱ jāēb , to be completely made.
चलब calab , to go.	चलि जाप्रब calⁱ jāēb , to go away.
खाप्रब khārb , to eat.	खा जाप्रब khā jāēb , to eat up.
पीअब pīab , to drink.	पी जाप्रब pī jāēb or पिबि जाप्रब pibⁱ jāēb , to drink up.
होप्रब hōēb , to be, to be-come.	हो जाप्रब hō jāēb , भै जाप्रब bhai jāēb , to become (definitely).
जाप्रब jāēb , to go.	जाप्र पड़ब jāē parab , to happen to go.
पुकारब pukārab , to call out.	पुकारि उठब pukārⁱ uṭhab , to call out suddenly, give a scream.
होप्रब hōēb , to be, become.	हो रहब hō rahab , to be.
सूतब sūtab , to sleep.	सूति रहब sūtⁱ rahab , to sleep on.
पीअब pīab , to drink.	पी लेब pī lēb or पिबि लेब pibⁱ lēb , to drink, take to drink.
rākhab , to place.	राखि लेब rākhi lēb , to lay by (for one's own use).
लेब lēb , to take.	ले लेब lai lēb , to take for oneself.

343. It will be remembered that the conjunctive participle may be the same in form as the verbal noun. Phrases in which this form of the conjunctive participle occurs are not intensive compounds. Thus ले जाप्रब lai jāēb, 'having taken to go,' 'to take away,' is not an intensive compound. If it were an intensive compound, it would mean 'to take completely,' which it does not mean. On the other hand दै जाप्रब dai jāeb is an intensive compound and means 'to give out and out.' Again, while बनि आप्रब banī āeb is an intensive compound, and means 'to be completely made,' निकसि आप्रब nikasī āeb is 'having emerged to come,' i.e., 'to come out,' and is not an intensive compound, but is simply a phrase with the conjunctive participle. The essence of an intensive compound is that the auxiliary verb loses all or some of its proper meaning, which is not in the case in निकसि आप्रब nikasī āeb.

344. These intensive compounds are extremely common in Maithilī. Dozens of instances will be found on every page of any book in the language. The following are a few typical examples :—

काठी सबड़ि केँ तोड़ि दे, kāṭhī sabahī kē tōṛī dē, break the sticks.

हमरा लग पठाय दैह, hamārā lag paṭhāy daih, send (them) to us.

सभ भेड़ङ् खाय गेल, sabh bhēṛaḥ khāy gēl, they ate up all the sheep also.

तीनि सै सँ किच्छु बड़ि जाप्रत, tīnī sai sǎ kicchū bahī jāet, they somewhat exceed three hundred.

सभ बस्तुजात जरि केँ ज़ाउर भै गेल, sabh bastujāt jarī kǎ chāur bhai gēl, all the property being burnt became ashes.

एक खिखिरि कोनो फुलबारी में आय पड़ल, ek khikhirī kōnō phulabārī mē jāy paṛalī, a she-fox happened to go into a certain garden.

अम्माक सबद सुनि दीना भद्रौ उठल चिहाय, ammāk sabad sunī dīnā bhadrī uṭhal cihāy (for cihāy uṭhal), hearing their mother's words Dinā and Bhadrī started up.

एक मुर्गा गोबरक ढेरी केँ चांगुर सँ उकटि रहल चल, ek murgā gobārak ḍhērī kē cāgur sǎ ukatī rahal chal, a cock was scratching (going along scratching) a dunghill with his claw.

किच्छु सीखि लेय, kicchū sikhī lē, let him learn (for himself).

अपना में बाँटि ली, apnā mē bāṭī lī, let us divide (it) among ourselves.

आबह बैसह पिबि लह पानि, ābaha (m.c. for ābāh), baisaha (baisāh), pibi laha (for lāh) pāni, come, sit down, take a drink of water (Vid. lxxx, 4).

In one place Vidyāpati employs a sort of long form of the first verbal noun.

जैतहिं हार टुटि गेल ना, jaitahī hāra tuṭie (for tuṭī) gela nā, as I went my necklace broke in pieces (ना nā is expletive) (Vid. xxvi, 3). Compare Vidyāpati's conjunctive participle करिह karie at the end of § 307.

345. (b) Potential compounds are formed by conjugating the verb सकब, sakab, 'to be able,' with the direct form of the first verbal noun of the principal verb. As in intensives, the final इ is sometimes omitted. Thus:—

चलि सकब chalī sakab, to be able to move.

बाजि सकब bājī sakab, to be able to speak.

लिखि सकब likhī sakab, to be able to write.

दे सकब dai sakab, to be able to give.

ले सकब lai sakab, to be able to take.

जाए सकब jāe sakab, to be able to go.

भेट सकब bhēt sakab, to be able to meet.

Examples from literature are—

ध्यान में आवि सकैअइ, dhyān mē ābī sakai-achī, it can come into thought, it is conceivable.

पहतौला सँ की भै सकैअइ, pach^ataulā sē kī bhai sakai-achī, from regretting what can happen?

अंगूर सभक गुच्छ लग नहिं पऊँच सकलि, āgūr sabhak gucc^h lag nahī pahūc sakali, she could not reach the bunch of grapes.

346. (c) Completive compounds are similarly formed with the verb चुकब cukab, to be finished. The इ is here also sometimes dropped. Thus:—

मारि चुकब, mārī cukab, to have finished beating.

खा चुकब, khā cukab, to have finished eating.

दे चुकब, dai cukab, to have finished giving.

Curiously enough, I have not noted any occurrence of this compound in literature.

347. (d) Permissive compounds are made by conjugating the verb देब dēb, to give, with the oblique form of the first verbal noun. Thus :—

जाए देब, jāe dēb, to allow to go.

ओ ओकरा खाए देलकैक, ō okārā khāe del^akaik, he allowed him to eat.

कालू सदा दोना भद्री के बैसै देलथीन्हि, kālū sadā dinā bhadrī kē baisai del^athīnhī, Kālū Sadā allowed Dinā and Bhadrī to sit down.

नहिं दूध पीबै देबै, nahī dudh pībai dēbē, (if) you will not allow us to drink milk.

348. (e) Acquisitive compounds are similarly formed with the verb पाएब pāeb, to get. Thus :—

ओ उठै नहिं पाबथि, ō uṭhai nahī pābathī, let him not get (permission) to rise.

जिबइत जाए प्रकौ नहिं पाब्योत, jibaita jāe ekau nahī pāota, not one will get leave (i.e., be able) to depart alive (Man. viii, 43).

349. (f) Inceptive compounds are similarly formed with the verb लागब lāgab, to begin. Thus :—

कहै लागब, kahā lāgab, to begin to speak.

दीखै लागब, dīā lāgab, to begin to give.

बाघ खाए लागल, bāgh khāe lāgal, the tiger began to eat.

बुढ़िया कहै लागल, buṛhiā kahai lāgalī, the old woman began to say.

चारि जन आससी पुरख ततहि असंक सुतल परस्पर कथा करय लगलौह, cārⁱ jan āsī purukh tatahⁱ asank sūtal paraspar kathā karay lag^olāh, four lazy men, lying there without anxiety, began to talk to each other (Puruṣa Parikṣā, p. 51).

In one instance Manbōdh (i, 12) uses the oblique form of the second verbal noun in an inceptive compound, as follows:—

कमलासन किछु कहबाँ लागु, kamalāsana kichu kahabā^ũ lāgu, (Brahmā) whose seat is on the lotus begins to say something.

350. (g) Desiderative compounds, as in Hindī, often indicate that something is on the point of occurrence. They are formed in two ways:—

(i) By the phrase देख्वा अछि icchā achhⁱ, meaning “there is a desire,” following the genitive of the second verbal noun in ब b.

(ii) By the accusative, genitive, or simple oblique form of the first or second verbal noun with the verb चाहब cāhab, to wish:—
 Examples—

(i) देखबाक देख्वा अछि, dekh^obāk icchā achhⁱ, there is a desire of seeing, i.e., I wish to see.

(ii) हम देख के चाहैही, ham dekhā kē चाहै-chī, I wish to see.

ओ बाज चाहैअछि, ō bājā चाहै-achⁱ, he wishes to speak.

मारै चाहलक, mārai cāh^olak, he wanted to kill (him).

धरै चाह फेरि साँपे, dhurai cāha pheri sāpē, a snake again wishes to seize it (Vid. xxii, 6).

घड़ी बाज चाहैछलि, ghuṛī bājai चाहै-chalⁱ, the clock was about to strike.

हमहूँ अपना बालक के स्कूल में पठाबे चाहैही, hamah^ũ ap^onā bālak kē skūl mē pathābai चाहै-chī, I also want to send my boy to school.

ओ जाय चाहैछथि, ō jāe चाहै-chathⁱ, he wishes to go.

ओ मरै (vulgarly मुष्टे) चाहैत अछि, ō marai (vulgarly muai) चाहैत achⁱ, he is at the point of death.

धौल धाएल भैङी पाँका लागै चाँहैअछि, dhāul dhāel bhēṅī pākā laḡai cāhai-achⁱ, the sheep washed (for sale) is about to fall into the slough. (Proverb.)

एहि पोथी केँ पढ़क चाही, ehⁱ pōthi kēṅ paṛhāk cāhī, one should read this book.

तोहरा ओतय जाएक (or जाए or जाए केँ) चाही, toh^arā otay jāek (or jāe or jāe kēṅ) cāhī, you should go there.

बहुत सोच बिचारि केँ करैक चाही . . . पश्तैबाक नहिँ चाही, bahut sōc bicārⁱ kai karai^k cāhī . . . pach^ataibāk nahⁱ cāhī, one should act after much thought and consideration . . . one should not regret.

In the above, note the use of चाही cāhī, equivalent to the Hindi चाहिये cāhiyē.

Class II.—Compounds formed with Participles.

351. (a). Continuative compounds are formed with the direct form of the masculine Present Participle. Thus:—

लिखैत जाएब, likhait jāeb, to continue writing.

पढ़ैत जाएब, paṛhait jāeb, to continue reading.

बजैत जाएब, bajait jāeb, to continue speaking.

जाइत रहब, jāit rahab, to continue going

पबैत जाएब, pabait āeb, to go on finding.

पानि बहैत जाइअछि, pāni bahait jāi-achⁱ, the water keeps flowing away.

नदी केर धार बहैत रहैअछि, nadī kēr dhār bahait rahai-achⁱ, the stream of the river keeps flowing on.

352. (b) Statical compounds are similarly made except that the participle agrees in gender with the subject of the verb. Thus:—

कनैत चलब, kanait calab, to go along crying.

गबैत जाएब, gabait āeb, to come singing.

रसायनी ओहि राति कै कतहुँ चलैत भेल, rasāyānī ohī rātī kē katahū calait bhēl, the alchemist that night became going somewhere (i.e., took to his heels).

Quasi continuative or statical compounds are also formed with the third verbal noun or past participle, as in :—

पानि बहल जाइत अछि, pāni bahal jāit achi, the water keeps flowing away.

प्रक बाघ पड़ल फिरैबल, ek bāgh paral phirai-chal, a tiger was prowling about.

हमरा संग लागल चलैह hamarā saṅg lāgal calāh, come along with me.

अढ़ाइ सै तँ बचलै रहत । आखोर ओहि में सँ जे बाँचल निकसत, ओहि सभक नीक दाम भैयत, aṛhāi sai tā bacalē rahat, āor ohī mē sāi jē bācal niksat, ohī sabhak nīk dām bhētat, at any rate a hundred will remain over and above, and from those that will remain over and above, I will get a good price for them. Note in this case that the locative of the verbal noun and the direct form of the participle are quite synonymous.

353. The equivalent of the Hindi चला जाना calā jānā is the intensive compound चलि जाइब calī jāeb or चलि होइब calī hōeb. Thus :—

चलि गेल जोगिया जाँजरी, calī gēl jogiyā-jājarī, they went away to Jogiyā-Jānjari हाथ लेलै बाढ़नि चलि भेलि सिंघ दरबाज, hāth lēlē bāḍhani calī bhēli sīṅgh darabāj, taking the broom in her hand she went to the main door of the house.

कुज भवन सँ चलि भेलि हे, kuñja bhabana saṁ calī bheli hē, (as) she came out of the arbour (Vid. xxi, 1).

चलि जाइब calī jāeb means 'to go away,' चलि होइब calī hōeb is simply 'to go.'

354. Attention has also been called in § 180 to the use of the instrumental or locative of the third verbal noun or past participle to indicate continued action, especially to the phrases लेलें जाअब lēlē jāeb, to take away with one, and लेलें आअब lēlē āeb, to bring with one, equivalent to the Hindi लिये जाना liyē jānā and लिये आना liyē ānā, respectively. Equivalent to the Hindi ले आना lē ānā or लाना lānā is लै आअब lai āeb, or लाअब lāeb, to bring. Varieties of लै आअब lai āeb are लिआअब liāeb, लय आअब lay āeb, and लँ आअब lā āeb. Equivalent to the Hindi ले जाना lē jānā is ले (लय or लँ) जाअब lai (lay or lā) jāeb, to take away. Thus:—

किच्छु चाँनी हमरा ओतय लै आबह, kicch^u cānī ham^{arā} otay lai ābāh, bring some silver to my house.

सामी सलहेस लाअब जादू सौं लोभाअ, swāmī sal^{hēs} lāeb jādū saū lobhāe, I will bring my lord Salhēs, having enticed him by enchantment.

हमरा सौं की लेबै ओजह इनाम, ham^{arā} saū kī laibai ojah inām, what reward or present will you bring from me ?

हम चोरी कै लेलहुँ, ham cōrī kai lailah^u, having done theft, I have brought (it).

लै जाह, lai jāh, take away, as in § 180.

हमरा सोभा सँ उठा लँ जाअत, ham^{arā} sōjhā sēⁱ uṭhā lā jāet, he will take it away from before me.

हमरो रंग रभस लय जैबह ।

लेबह कोन सनेसे ।

hamarō raṅga rabhasa laya jāibaha (for jāibāh) ।

laibaha (for laibāh) kōna sanēsē ॥

Thou wilt also take away also all my joy and passion,
What present will you bring (in return) (Vid. lv, 2).

More usual than लाअब lāeb is the verb आनब ānab, to bring, as in दुर सै रुपैयाक चाँनी ओहि रसायनी के आनि देलकै, dui sai rupai-āk cānī ohⁱ rasāy^{anī} kē ānⁱ del^{ak}ai, having brought silver (to the value) of two hundred rupees, he gave it to that alchemist.

360. The following are examples in which adverbs take the signs of cases after them :—

प्रखनुक बेरि नीक बेक, Now is the best time. (Lit. The time of now is good).

तहिखा सँ आर भेट भेल अहि, I have not seen you since then till to-day. (Lit. From that time to-day a (first) meeting has occurred).

अन्तकाल में ग्यान भेलैन्हि, At length he came to his senses.

खो आर केँ काल्हि कहैत अयि, He puts off from to-day to to-morrow. (Lit. He calls to-day to-morrow).

PARTICLES OF EMPHASIS.

361. These are ई and हि or हिं, only, even, and खो and ऊ or हूँ, also, even. They are always used enclitically, and when any of them is added to a word ending in आ, that आ is omitted. Examples : हमरो, mine only (हमर + ई), or me only (हमरा + ई); प्रखनहिं, even now, already; हमरो or हमरहुँ, mine also, or me also; उतर, a reply, उतरो, even a reply; अपनहुँ, even one's own.

B. Postpositions.

362. The following is a list of the more usual Postpositions:—

आगु, आगाँ, Before.	संसुख, सोभाँ, Facing.
पीछ, पाछ, पाछाँ, Behind.	साझत, Before.
बाड़ि, Except.	लेल, For, on account of.

भीतर, Within.	बदला, In exchange (for), instead
तक, Up to.	जकाँ, Like.

The above all govern either the simple oblique form or else the genitive case, saving बाड़ि, except, and बिनु or बिना, without. The latter governs either the Instrumental or the Dative, as in:—

बाड़ि takes the accusative. खुँदचा बाड़ि किष्कु नहिं, nothing but the husk.

C. Conjunction.

363. The following are the more useful:—

आबोर, औ, or औ And.	की...की, Either...or.
के or कि, That.	परंतु, But.
औ, Else, even.	नौ, If.
न, Then.

यों is often idiomatically omitted. Thus :—

जोहरी प्रकरा पवैत तँ अत्यंत खुस होइत, if a jeweller had got this then he would have been much pleased.

364. D. Interjections, see § 93. Others as in Hindi.
